System Needed to Rid Communities Of Shifting Men

Senator G. Robertson Considers Them a Menace He Tells Conference on Unemployment Relief; Says Dominion Government Cannot Be Held Solely to Blame for Unemployment Relief; Vancouver Has Paid $1,250,000 and Matched Its Last Dollar, Says Mayor Taylor

The cities and municipalities of British Columbia must abandon hope that the Bennett Government will hold itself solely responsible for relief of unemployment, Senator Gideon Robertson, Federal Minister of Labor, yesterday afternoon warned sixty municipal chiefs at the conference at the Parliament Buildings. He appealed for cessation of efforts to pass the burden to other shoulders, and intimated he was considering methods of relieving municipalities of transient "floater" labor, by removing such men. He was giving personal opinions, which were not binding upon the federal government, he emphasized, when thanking the delegates for their attendance and suggestions.

'QUITE IMPOSSIBLE'

"This is an intricate, serious business, but I suggest to you that it is quite impossible that any federal government should hold itself solely responsible for unemployment relief," the Senator said.

"I regard 'the floater' as a menace to our future contentment. They remind me of a herd of cows, taking here a bite and there a mouthful. They get in a dissatisfied state. There are thousands of adolescent young men who go years without employment, they are apt to get ideas and notions bad for themselves and the community. It seems to me that some system should be evolved which will take care of them which would lift them out and so relieve the municipalities."

Senator Robertson concluded by showing the expiring relief scheme had provided work costing $70,660,000, of which the federal treasury contributed $16,069,000. The amount paid to date was $8,700,000. Of the direct relief fund of $4,000,000 less than one-half had been requisitioned, indicating the conditions not as severe as believed.

"You regard the matter of unemployment as a federal duty; we look on it as primarily a municipal matter. That is the chief difference between us. Remember this, the federal government will go on relieving distress," he concluded.

The conference was marked by frank speaking, especially on the part of the representatives of Vancouver City, who told Senator Robertson that unless something practical was forthcoming speedily, strong measures might have to be taken to maintain order.

"We feel that unemployment relief is now a national question, more serious than a good many of us anticipated. Are we going to let it get out of hand?" said Mayor L. D. Taylor of Vancouver, the first speaker of the afternoon. He said the question must be settled quickly, particularly in the west, where the mines were not working, there was no activity in lumbering, and the price of grain did not encourage development of the prairies.

Asking for a conference of provincial premiers, he said the delegation from the lower mainland municipalities had agreed the unemployment problem was no municipal responsibility and that the municipalities could no longer match dollar for dollar with the governments. "As far as Vancouver is concerned, we have matched our last dollar," he asserted, declaring unemployment offered as great a problem as did the Great War.

FORESEES TROUBLE

Col. Cooper, relief officer of Vancouver, recalled that in 1929 Vancouver was paying relief of $2 daily to married men, yet the Dominion in 1930 had permitted entry into Canada of 84,000 foreigners. Senator Robertson interjected that on August 30 an order absolutely stopping immigration had been issued. Col. Cooper then declared many unfit had since been admitted to Canada, quoting a number of Vancouver records of men who arrived in the last year and had been heavy burdens on the city. "I support the mayor in his statement 'this is no municipal matter, it is a Dominion affair,'" he said. Senator Robertson asked for copies of the documents, for action by the Dominion Department of Immigration.

Col. Cooper then attacked the activities of the British Dominions Emigration Society, formerly the East End Emigration Society of London, Eng., mentioning British public bodies which granted subventions. He quoted testimonials which indicated the emigrants were flocking to the cities instead of working on farms. Col. Cooper told Senator Robertson that, while he did not hold the Dominion government responsible for the society's activities, yet the records showed the Immigration Department was familiar with conditions under which it sent people to Canada.

ROBERTSON'S ATTITUDE IS CRITICIZED

Mayor Taylor Dissatisfied With Unemployment Relief Conference Here

Will Go Ahead With Plan to Have Meeting of Western Officials

Vancouver, June 16.—Dissatisfaction with the attitude of Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, at yesterday's provincial unemployment conference in Victoria is expressed by Mayor Louis D. Taylor, who, with other civic officials, placed Vancouver's relief situation before the minister at the capital.

Despite the minister's disinclination to summon a western Canada conference shortly, Mayor Taylor intends to continue with his plan to call such a meeting, and has telegraphed Mayor R. H. Webb of Winnipeg to co-operate in arranging a gathering in Regina within the next ten days. To this meeting would be invited western premiers, mayors and reeves of the larger districts.

"We shall formulate a united western policy at this conference," says Mayor Taylor, "and will thus be in a postion to outline the western situation to the government before Parliament rises.

NO ONE SATISFIED

"I don't think anyone was satisfied with the result of yesterday's conference," said the mayor.

"Senator Robertson did not seem to appreciate the fact, which we outlined to him, that we had gone our limit in matching government funds for relief work under the federal act. He suggested that, if such were the case, the municipalities would be bankrupt.

"I replied that no municipality is bankrupt, but will be if the government expects them to shoulder the entire unemployment situation of the lower mainland and Vancouver Island.

"This problem is essentially one for the Dominion Government, and perhaps the province, but it has gone far beyond the resources of the municipalities."

Rockets Propel Glider On Successful Flight

Sutemaru Shingu, Osaka Newspaperman, Lands Here From President Taft

Sutemaru Shingu, debonair and youthful Japanese, with a flair for travel, reached Victoria at 8 o'clock this morning from Japan by the President Taft and by 9.15 o'clock he was stowed with a lone grip and portable typewriter in the cockpit of Percy Barnes's mail plane for Seattle on the second lap of what he hopes to be a record-breaking world-girdling tour by established air, sea and land routes.

He will leave the Boeing Field at Seattle at 6 o'clock this evening for the east.

Shingu is a member of the editorial staff of The Osaka Asahi and he is attempting to beat the time of T. Fukuma, a brother scribe, and identified with the staff of The Tokio Asahi, who left Tokio on June 15, taking the opposite world route.

By the time the President Taft had tied up at Pier No. 2, Shingu, seeing Canada for the first time, was standing at the passenger port in the ship's side, displaying the utmost eagerness to be on his way.

He was given every possible assistance by the immigration and customs officials and, after a hurried talk with local newspapermen, in which he was forced to reply to a barrage of questions, the Japanese world-girdler clambered down the gangway and by the time the mails had been transferred, he waved a breezy farewell and was aloft.

MACDONALD'S DECISION TURNS CRISIS AWAY

British Cabinet Provisionally Accepts Redrafted Liberal Land to Amendment

Canadian Press

London, June 16.—The MacDonald government to-day provisionally accepted the Liberal party's redrafted amendment to Chancellor Philip Snowden's proposed penny-a-pound land value tax, averting what had threatened to be a serious crisis.

The acceptance was described as subject to reconsideration of certain details of the amendment.

M.P.'S HEAR PRAIRIE FARMER ON WAR SALES OF WHEAT

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16.—Before two cabinet ministers and a full meeting of the agriculture committee of the Commons, Robert Whiteside, a Saskatchewan farmer, to-day went into the involved details of the marketing of the 1918 and 1919 wheat crops at fixed prices under government auspices. Although he was closely cross-questioned with regard to his charges that somewhere the wheat growers had been done out of large sums of money through the transaction, the witness stuck to his story.

Mr. Whiteside stated he did not charge the government of the time or any member of it with making an improper profit out of the handling of the wheat. He said he had no evidence to show any profits derived from wheat had been turned into the Dominion treasury, but he insisted a profit had been made somewhere, for at the time the price of wheat was fixed it was selling at $2.40 a bushel and the price fixed was $2.21. Sir George Foster, then Minister of Trade and Commerce, had written him a letter saying the wheat had been sold at market prices.

Although the suggestion was advanced that Sir George, now a Senator should be called to explain his letter, no action was taken.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell said Sir George Foster had made a mistake and Mr. Whiteside's mistake had been based on Sir George's letter.

Attorney-General Pooley must surrender all books and papers of Solloway, Mills and Company Ltd. which have been seized and held under the Securities Frauds Prevention Act, the British Columbia Court of Appeal ruled this morning, in final settlement of the appeal of McGee vs. Pooley.

Wendell B. Farris, K.C., said he presumed the order would prevent use of material and information in pending criminal prosecutions of I. Solloway and Harvey Mills. Chief Justice J. A. Macdonald expressed the view that such protection w accorded by the main judgment. A. H. McNeill, K.C., counsel for the Attorney-General, protested that the point was never argued and no such claim had been made on behalf of McGee.

Mr. Farris declared that for three or four months the Crown had been investigating the books and taking material therefrom. "Having obtained this illegitimate evidence they should be enjoined from using it at the

SCHOOL BOARD ECONOMY PLAN

Consider Small Reductions in Size of Teaching Staff

Reductions in the size of the teaching staff of the city as an economy move is under consideration by the School Board, it was learned to-day. No announcement is expected until the full changes have been decided.

While the reduction will not be a drastic one, it will be the means of slightly cutting down expenditure, it is understood, and will involve the superannuation of some of the veteran teachers in the grade schools of the city.

The High School, it is stated, will lose two or three teachers and there will be some changes in the grade school staffs as well as the usual alterations.

Boulevard Men Try to Out-water Jupiter Pluvius

The rain may have come down almost in torrents, but in parts of the residential sections it was a peculiar rain in that it apparently was not wet, concluded a number of citizens this morning.

"Yes, sir, I thought it was wet, but I began to doubt my senses, when I saw the boulevard men out in oilskins and gum boots working with their hose spreading water in the largest volume they could command on the grass, and apparently trying to outdo the volume of water that was descending from the skies and making pools on the grass," one person said. "The only conclusion I could come to was that the boulevard men had decided nature's rain didn't count with the grass as growing moisture, and that the only water it recognized was what came through the municipal pipes."

Five Members Chosen to Report On That Angle of Commons Study of System

Sub-committee Will Put Information in Form to Be Presented to Commons Committee on Railways, Which at Present is Holding Hearings in Preparation for General Debate in House; Euler Causes McGibbon to Withdraw Use of Words "Field for Graft" in Discussion of C.N.R.

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16.—A subcommittee of five members of the Commons select standing committee on railways and shipping was appointed this forenoon to inquire into and secure information on the salaries paid officials of the Canadian National Railways.

This developed out of a discussion on the matter of salaries, in which Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R., took the position that to disclose these salaries might result in efforts on the part of other enterprises to induce those officials to join them.

The committee comprises Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal, Waterloo North, Ont.; R. B. Hanson, Conservative, York-Sunbury, N.B.; A. A. Heaps, Labor, Winnipeg North; Dr. Peter McGibbon, Conservative, Muskoka, Ont., and Hon. Robert Rogers, Conservative, Winnipeg South.

THORNTON'S POSITION

As far as his own position and salary were concerned, Sir Henry told the committee they did not "matter a hoot," but it was extremely distasteful to him, after all the years he had put in on the Canadian National Railways, that he should be placed in the position of having to come before a parliamentary committee to defend this situation.

ON BOOKS AT $100,000,000

The committee began this forenoon's work with a consideration of finances of the C.N.R. system.

Sir Henry Thornton first gave answers to several questions put at the last sitting. Both he and Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, said the valuation of the old Canadian Northern Railway on the present books of the Canadian National was $100,000,000. When the Northern lines were purchased by the government, a price of $10,000,000 was paid after arbitration proceedings. The line was carried on the balance sheet of the Canadian Northern Railways, however, at $100,000,000, which was the par value of the stock.

APPROVED BY BOARD

Turning to the question of his own salary and remunerations paid the executive officers of the road, Sir Henry said his salary and the allowances paid him had been determined by the board of directors of the railway and approved late in 1929. The salary was an obligation by contract with the government, and both it and the allowances had been within the knowledge and had the approval of the late government.

McGIBBON'S STAEMENT

Predicating his remarks with the statement he did not pretend to tell Sir Henry how much salary he was worth, Dr. Peter McGibbon, Conservative, Muskoka, Ont., said he believed the country should be told the amount of the salary and the extent of the extra fees and expenses. The railway president's contract with the government called for a salary of $75,000 a year, plus certain extras. The popular opinion throughout the country was that Sir Henry was making $150,000 a year.

"I wish it were true," interjected Sir Henry.

The Canadian people, proceeded Dr. McGibbon, thought certain expenses, which they now paid, should come from the pockets of the railway executives. The general impression was there was "rank extravagance from top to bottom," and that men had been retired at "ridiculous salaries," after

PROLONGED RAIN BRINGS LOSS TO ISLAND FARMS

Saanich Strawberries, Ruined For Shipping, Diverted to Jam Use

All June Totals For Downpour Passed as Wet Weather Continues

British Columbia crops have been variously affected by the heavy rainfall during the last week which was general in most parts of the province.

Strawberry growers and cherry producers have lost part of their crops because the rain for which they were praying two weeks ago has been too heavy. Hay crops already cut have been damaged seriously but in other areas the rain has benefited the hay, according to information at the department of agriculture.

As the rainfall here continues the situation in Saanich is becoming more acute. Prolongation of the rainy spell has greatly reduced the supply of berries which will be shipped to the prairies this week, it being estimated that fruit sufficient to make up eight or ten cars of fruit must be diverted to processing and jam, thereby bringing greatly reduced returns compared with crate fruit.

AT CRITICAL POINT

Should the wet weather continue the loss will be much more severe, as a large quantity of ripe fruit is now at the critical point where dull warm dry weather is essential to save it from rot.

The growing season will be greatly extended, however, and the rains have assured the growers that, whatever the

The date of the by-elections had been under consideration by the government for some time.

Robert Clarke, aged eighteen, is charged with driving to the common danger in connection with the crash. He was released on bail of $2,000. Clarke escaped with a few minor bruises.

King Scores Bennett Budget and Declares Sub-amendment Error

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16—When Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, rose to speak in the budget debate in the Commons this afternoon he was greeted with prolonged applause from his followers.

He stated he found it impossible to support the U.F.A. sub-amendment to the budget. This, among other things, recommends Canada depart from the gold standard.

POLICIES OF CABINET

The present budget, said Mr. King in beginning his speech, was of exceptional interest for two or three reasons. In the first place, it had been presented while all countries, including Canada, were in the midst of economic depression and while considerable social unrest was abroad. The budget also reflected the policies and the spirit of the present administration. Thirdly, for the first time in Canadian history, the budget had been presented by a cabinet minister who held the dual office of Prime Minister and Minister of Finance.

Sons of Freedom Drive Census Officers Away

Canadian Press

Grand Forks, B.C., June 16.—W. F. Laidman, census commissioner for Yale, and his attorney, Horace W. Galbraith of Vernon, had a narrow escape from disrobement at the hands of the Sons of Freedom sect of Doukhobors to-day when they sought to gather census information from a colony numbering upward of 200.

The officials were forced to leave in haste, with the Doukhobors shrieking threats of vengeance on them and on any government officials who might come.

Women were the worst offenders in the demonstration and two of them scarcely out of their teens who had attended high school and spoke perfect English, were especially venomous. The women tore clothing from some of the older men who attempted to give information to the officials and once, when one of the men had given a list of some thirty names, the women took the papers from the officers and tore them to shreds.

DOUKHOBORS CHASED

Commissioner Laidman and Mr. Galbraith had laid careful and diplomatic plans for to-day's work. They took with them Cecil Koochin, for years an office man of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, and Fred Reibin, community Doukhobor from Brilliant. These men were just as hostilely received. After chasing Koochin, the Doukhobors attempted to disrobe Reibin.

To-day's attempt followed a nude parade a day or so ago when the local enumerator, E. L. Kidd, spent a couple of hours with the colonists in a fruitless effort to get information.

Grand Forks authorities are pressing the Dominion Government to deal with the disturbant Doukhobors and make them observe the law.

immediate losses may be, they will be made up in part by the absence of nubbins. "Only good big plump juicy berries will be coming from Saanich to household tables this year," one grower remarked this morning.

WEST COAST FAIR

Curiously enough, although Victoria has had a record June rainfall, the West Coast of the Island, usually the rainiest part of the province, has experienced fairly mild weather, according to F. Napier Denison, superintendent of the Gonzales Meteorological Observatory.

Up to noon to-day the precipitation here during the last two days had reached a total of 2.02 inches and the total for the month was 3.12 inches which is a long way above the average. The rain to-day was general in the Okanagan, Kamloops and Kootenay areas, he said.

So far this year Victoria has had 15.89 inches of rain, which is 5.65 inches above the average.

BASEMENT FLOODED

Further reports of damage done by the downpour yesterday included that of Hatt's Hardware where unestimated loss was caused by a flooded basement.

Horse racing at Colwood, cancelled yesterday owing to the flooded condition of the track, was resumed to-day after crews had worked to get the surface in shape, although it was still muddy.

HAD ENOUGH MOISTURE

Vancouver, June 16.—Rains last week were welcomed by the berry growers because hot weather had been ripening the crop too fast.

This week, the continued downfall is becoming embarrassing. It is difficult some berries are rotting before they to pick strawberries without grit and ripen. Berry patches and hay fields have had enough moisture for the present.

To-day's downpour is general up and down the coast.

In the Fraser Valley, not much hay is lying in the fields, but what is cut has been seriously damaged. Many fields are ready for cutting, but will have to await fine weather. The cherry crop around Chilliwack will be somewhat injured, but is not sufficiently ripened to suffer very badly.

In some sections of Washington and Oregon, where the cherry crop is much earlier, the yield has been damaged up to seventy-five per cent. Hay crops in these two states have also been seriously affected.

MERELY DOING DUTY

"I expect to make it in thirty-two days," said Shingu just before he left Victoria for Seattle. "I am just doing my duty to my paper," he proudly exclaimed when questioned as to whether he and Fukuma were making the fast world tour in anticipation of a prize.

"I was given this assignment by my newspaper, and I am going to lose no time in carrying out my instructions. There is nothing more to it than that. As far as I know there will be no prize at the end of the journey."

The Asahi Publishing Company, which owns the Osaka and Tokio newspapers, conceived the idea of assigning a couple of its reporters to an attractive beat and simultaneously lining up some really good copy. That was the impression conveyed by Shingu on his arrival here. He sailed from Yokohama on June 6.

From the German capital he will take the German-Russian air route to Moscow and on to Irkutsk, at which Central Russian point he will take train to Korea, flying from Keijo across the Sea of Japan to Tokio.

Shingu was met here by K. Ishii, promenent Japanese merchant of Victoria. Fukuma, who is traveling through Russia on the opposite route, will pass through here on his way to Tokio.

MOTHERWELL SAYS BENNETT BLUNDERING

Ex-Minister Tells Commons People Wondering What Government Will Do Next

Describes Ministry as "Helplessly Hopeless in Its Attemps to Do Something"

Ottawa, June 16.—"What will this rattle-brained government do next?" That is what the people of Canada are wondering about the Bennett Ministry, says Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture.

The government "is just blundering along hopelessly helpless and helplessly hopeful in its attempts to do something," in the opinion of the Liberal member for Melville, Sask.

Speaking in the budget debate in the Commons yesterday evening, Mr. Motherwell said he did not believe the bonus of five cents a bushel could be confined to export wheat. The only place where the export character of wheat could be determined was at the seaport and if the bonus was paid there it would go to the exporter and not the farmer. The exporter might split it with the foreign buyer in order to make a sale.

"Then," he said, "you would have the government bonusing the miller on the other side to compete with the Canadian miller—and that from the 'Canada First' party."

The only way to pay the bonus was at the point of shipment on all wheat.

DISCRIMINATION

But, Mr. Motherwell contended, it was absurd to discriminate against coarse grains in subsidizing wheat. There were many farmers who could not grow wheat but who produced coarse grains and livestock. They were being discriminated against.

"I would suggest to the government," he added, "that they pay the bonus on all cereals. But they will not take my advice. They do not know whether or not it is good advice. They are just blundering along."

The government was subsidizing wheat in order to send it to a market that was already suffering from an over supply, he said.

MILLIONAIRES AND BUDGET

The present budget was not a millionaires' budget, but was that of a multi-millionaire, said Mr. Motherwell.

"It is the multi-millionaires who have got away with the swag," Mr. Motherwell said.

Mr. Motherwell was proceeding to criticize the government for the inclusion within the cabinet of a number of millionaires, and commented that if he had done what the cabinet did he would be in the penitentiary. Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, rose and protested. Mr. Motherwell's language was out of order, he said.

Speaker Black ruled the expression was unparliamentary and requested Mr. Motherwell to withdraw it.

"I'll withdraw anything you like so long as you let me get ahead," said the former Minister of Agriculture.

"Doesn't the honorable member know there is not one single million-dollar income in Canada?" asked R. B. Hanson, Conservative, York-Sunbury, N.B.

Mr. Motherwell said that after the budget provisions had begun to operate there would be several.

WHEAT CONFERENCE

Speaking of the Bennett government's moves in the wheat export field, Mr. Motherwell said:

"Our friend the High Commissioner, Mr. Ferguson, went to Rome to attend the International Wheat Conference. He was not there two days till he had it split up into two rival camps, the exporters and the importers. Then Mr. Ferguson walked off to London with the exporters and allowed the importers to go to Paris and establish a competing organization.

"The High Commissioner and the Prime Minister are two choice diplomats. They go out with blood and thunder in their eyes and start bludgeoning."

STAMP COMMISSION

The Stamp commission, said Mr. Motherwell, had simply confirmed the findings of the Turgeon commission that the selling of grain futures was unavoidable, he said. Why had the government spent money on the Stamp commission to find out something that was obvious?

BENNETT'S BELFAST SPEECH

Mr. Motherwell turned to the speech made by Premier Bennett last year following the bestowal on him of an honorary degree by the University of Belfast during the Imperial Conference. The Prime Minister had tactlessly recalled the Boston Tea Party and the consequences thereof. That, thought Mr. Motherwell, was "the essence of stupidity, or worse."

At the Belfast banquet, said Mr. Motherwell, Mr. Bennett had said that while at one time the ties of kinship were all right, to-day the world had come to such a pass that there was nothing but the ties of business and economics that would keep the Empire together.

"On this point," continued Mr. Motherwell, "let me say, What right has the Prime Minister to castigate the farmers on the prairies who are in despair and do not know which way to turn, for talking about secession, not knowing what else to talk about to draw attention to their plight, when he himself, in Belfast of all places on earth, predicted the fall of the British Empire?

DESCRIBED AS LIBELLOUS

"No farmer on the prairies ever uttered such a libellous statement against the loyalty of the various units of the British Empire—and this from the sublime and super-loyal Tory Party of Canada. . . . When they want more revenue they shut it off by the imposition of tariffs. When they want our dairymen to get a better price for butter they dump Australian butter on our markets. God knows what they will do next. That is what the people are wondering. What will this rattle-brained government do next?"

The conduct of Premier Bennett overseas, said Mr. Motherwell, was "similar to what would be expected from Big Bill Thompson of Chicago or Jack Dempsey; it was of a Donnybrook nature all around."

UNEMPLOYED IN OTTAWA HEAR LABOR MEN

Several Hundred March to Parliament Buildings Carrying Banners With Slogans

Woodsworth Tells Them to Lay Requests Before Ottawa City Council

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16.—Several hundred local unemployed men gathered in Market Square this morning, where they were addressed by the three Labor members of the Commons, and then marched to the Parliament Buildings. The unemployed gathered in front of the main entrance of the buildings but the preventive staff did not allow them to enter. They waited while one or two of their number went up to see the Labor members.

Packed densely in the arch of the Victory Tower, the men were fairly quiet, although at intervals there was some shouting. They bore rough banners with such slogans as "Why should we starve in the midst of plenty?" "Must our children starve?" and "We ask for work or maintenance."

WATCH DEVELOPMENTS

Assuring the unemployed men and women of Ottawa they were assiduously watching their interests in the Commons, J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg North Centre; A. A. Heaps, Winnipeg North, and Angus MacInnis, Vancouver South, the three Labor members of Parliament, addressed the mass meeting in the market place. Following the assembly the men formed up in column and marched through the streets.

TO BOARD OF CONTROL

Peaceful and orderly, the crowd listened to the Labor members. Mr. Woodsworth stressed the complexities in regard to administrative jurisdiction over such matters as unemployment. He urged the first responsibility lay with the city and exhorted the men to form a committee in order to present their demands for aid to the Board of Control.

Mr. Heaps found the workers in general not without responsibility for the present situation. If they would elect Labor members to Parliament they would find their interests better looked after.

Mr. MacInnis told of conditions in Vancouver.

STOCKS SELLING AT BIG DISCOUNT UNDER BOOK VALUE

New York, June 16.—According to a compilation of one leading investment trust statistician the common stock of many of the largest and soundest corporations are currently selling substantially below their book values. U.S. Steel, for example, is selling in the market for approximately 46 cents on the dollar, while Southern Pacific is selling at 32 cents on the same basis, and New York Central at 50 cents. Others include Louisville and Nashville at 64.1 per cent under book value, Western Union 47 per cent, Westinghouse 27.2 per cent, International Harvester 24.2 per cent and Standard Oil of California 23 per cent.

COL. J. H. WOODS WILL LEAD TREK TO CHURCHILL

bility and progress, said Col. Woods in an interview this morning with The Times, following his arrival at the Empress Hotel from Vancouver.

TO ASSIST GOVERNMENT

"As the result of our deliberations we hope we may be of assistance to the Dominion Government in reaching a possible solution of the unemployment situation," he said. "We realize that the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and its affiliations represents the strongest cross-section of Canadian business opinion we have and we hope to be able to offer the judgment of that cross-section of opinion and assist the government to a practical solution of the problems facing the country."

"We expect to eliminate any feeling of depression that may exist by seeing for ourselves this wonderful country, which, we believe, represents the most extravagant wealth in the centre of the Dominion," added Col. Woods in discussing the nature of the forthcoming trip to Churchill. "We are out to get all the information possible, to absorb it and to benefit by it."

There are 210 chambers of commerce and boards of trade in Canada with a membership of some 300,000 business men represented in its various trade affiliations.

TRADE MISSIONS

Reference was made by the president to the number of important missions which have been abroad in recent months seeking to develop Canadian trade. He spoke of the mission to the Orient, which had accomplished a great deal leading to the encouragement of Canadian trade. He had recently returned as member of a fully representative group of Canadian business men, which visited the British Empire trade exposition at Buenos Aires, and he took the view that the mission to the Argentine and Brazil would result in the expansion of Canadian trade in the South American countries.

RAIN IN ALBERTA

Speaking of general conditions in the east, Col. Woods remarked upon a much-improved situation in Alberta where rains had changed the face of nature and improved the spirits of the people. In southern Alberta, from Calgary to the boundary, conditions were not so good, and in Saskatchewan no rain had fallen up to last week. He is of the opinion that there may be as good a crop as last year in Alberta, but in Saskatchewan the grain outlook was doubtful at the present time.

Col. Woods is vice-president and managing director of The Calgary Daily Herald and a director of the Southam Publishing Company Limited. He was formerly president of the Canadian Press Association and is himself a writer of wide experience.

Col. Woods and Mr. Clarke will visit Nanaimo to-morrow, where they will address the Nanaimo Board of Trade at a luncheon meeting. They will be accompanied by R. W. Mayhew, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, P. B. Fowler, P. M. McGregor and George I. Warren, managing secretary.

BAGLEY BEFORE COURT TO-DAY IN ROYAL CITY

Remanded For Week on Harrison Hot Springs Hotel Robbery Charge

B.C. Inspector Says Auto Tried to Follow Police and Bagley From Bellingham

New Westminster, June 16.—William Bagley, brought from Bellingham, Wash., yesterday, appeared in police court here this forenoon and was remanded for a week, charged with robbery with violence at the Harrison Hot Springs Hotel.

In the event of his being committed for trial, Bagley, who served time for the Nanaimo bank robbery of some years ago, will stand trial at the present New Westminster assizes.

The time limit for Bagley to appeal extradition expired yesterday. Provincial Police Inspector John Shirras was in charge of the escort party which brought Bagley from Bellingham to the Oakalla Jail.

Bagley recently made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the Bellingham jail and was slightly wounded by the jailer before he was overpowered.

Fearing an attempt by friends of Bagley to release their prisoner, British Columbia police yesterday left nothing to chance. Inspector Shirras, with Sergt. H. W. King of Chilliwack and an escort of seven armed men made the trip to Bellingham.

FOLLOWED BY CAR

After they had left Bellingham with Bagley, an auto fell in behind the police car, but could not keep up with the high-powered auto used by the B.C. police. Before the police car reached the border it had left the other car far behind. At the border arrangements had been made to permit the police car to pass through without stopping.

"We know Bagley's friends were determined he should not face trial in British Columbia, and we took no chances," said Inspector Shirras.

"A car followed us after leaving Bellingham, but we left it far in the rear long before we reached the line."

Prairie Premiers At Conference In Ottawa Soon

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16.—Wheat and other matters will be the subject of a conference here June 24 between Premier Bennett and representatives of the governments of the three prairie provinces. Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan and Premier John Bracken of Manitoba are expected to attend the meeting.

While in eastern Canada at the end of the month, as already forecast, the plains' premiers will confer with bankers on the question of the guarantee given to the banks of the provinces against any losses on advances made to the Wheat Pool in the handling of the 1929 wheat crop.

Certain losses have occurred, and it is understood an adjustment may be made by the provinces by way of bonds.

four years, were aboard the vessel when it left Nantes Sunday for a picnic at Noirmoutier Island in the Bay of Biscay. Forty-three passengers declined to make the return trip on account of stormy weather and eight were rescued after the vessel had gone down.

Thus, the number of dead unofficially was placed at least at 423. It was estimated fifty youngsters who had paid no fares were aboard and were lost.

The city of Nantes alone lost 368 citizens from the industrial class. One family of mother, father, four daughters and two sons was completely wiped out. Dozens of families of four, five and six members perished together.

GOVERNMENT AID

The Minister of Marine arrived to assure bereaved families the government would assume responsibility for needy cases among them.

J. Tallendeau, editor of La Populaire, said the causes of the disaster had been established in the buffeting of the ship by a wind of hurricane force and the action of the passengers in stampeding to the leeward side. He revealed that Capt. Olivie had made the return trip only at the insistence of the picnickers, anxious to get back to their jobs.

Bennett would relish a change in Canada whereby the office of Minister of Finance would be changed to Chancellor of the Exchequer. This would be in keeping with the traditions of Great Britain. Mr. King, personally, would have no objections to such a change.

It was necessary for the Liberal leader to go back to the year 1880 to find a precedent for a Prime Minister presenting a budget as Minister of Finance. Rt. Hon. William Ewart Gladstone at that time held the dual office in Great Britain. This was a "noble example" for him (Mr. Bennett) to follow, "but I wish he had presented a budget more along the lines of Mr. Gladstone's."

FRENCH DEBATE DUTY AGAINST CANADA APPLES

Paris, June 16.—Deputies Alexander Duval and Goinlambert today introduced in the Chamber a bill which would raise the tariff on Canadian apples to protect owners of orchards, notably those of Normandy, France, from the effects of large importations of apples from Canada.

The tariff would also be made applicable to apples from the United States, according to the bill.

SHELLY SAYS P.G.E. SHOULD BE EXTENDED

Vancouver, June 16.—Hon. W. C. Shelly, President of the Council in the provincial government, to-day stated here he was more convinced than ever that the best emergency method of dealing with unemployment was to build the Pacific Great Eastern Railway from the coast into the Peace River country. While doing this, he advocated the clearing of tracts of land adjacent to the railway for settlement purposes.

Mr. Shelly has just returned from an airplane trip to northern British Columbia, during which he spent some time in looking over the territory served by the Pacific Great Eastern.

RECORDS PRESENTED

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, submitted a number of records for the periods in question, 1918-19, which, he said, showed the government of the day had not in any way influenced the board to fix a price at all inconsistent with fair figures. The Canadian Council of Agriculture at the time had requested a flat price of $1.70 a bushel and the price had been fixed at $2.21 a bushel.

There was no way of determining, said Mr. Stevens, whether the British authorities had made money on the transaction. He submitted a report of the auditor-general of Great Britain for the seven-year period ended in 1924 when wheat was under government control there. This report showed a loss of $690,000,000, a part of which was accounted for by allowances to keep down the cost of bread.

Mayor Taylor continued that the minister had promised to consider the various proposals and discuss the whole subject with his government. He did not favor a western Canada conference, however, at present.

"He's not sympathetic at all," complained the mayor. "Since he will not join the plan for a western meeting I have communicated with Mayor Webb of Winnipeg to proceed with our plans for a meeting at Regina.

MIND IS MADE UP

"Senator Robertson seems to have made up his mind that conditions in the west are not as bad as outlined to him. He said he had thought, from reports he heard, that everyone was starving. I told him that if he thought conditions were not bad, then some one was misrepresenting facts to him.

"Then the senator was asked about the unexpended portion of the $20,000,000 federal relief fund. Reeve Pritchard of Burnaby asked him if the government is prepared to match a fund available in his municipality. The senator replied that this could not be done, as the fund has been entirely allocated.

"At the close of the conference," said the mayor, "I heard many expressions of discontent. It seems that the minister has not grasped the situation, and after all he does not come into direct contact with the problem as the mayors and reeves do. My own opinion, from discussions with the minister in Ottawa recently and at present, is that he really thinks things are righting themselves. We told him that we wanted the unemployment situation discussed before Parliament rises and we want every member placed on record on the subject."

THROW UP THEIR HANDS

Vancouver, June 16.—Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labor, is fully aware that it is unjust to expect municipalities, such as Vancouver, to look after transient unemployed who come by thousands, but he is not impressed by municipal authorities who "throw up their hands" and will not look after their own people under the federal offer of one-third of the cost, he intimated here to-day.

In this connection the representations made by City Solicitor J. B. Williams of Vancouver at the conference in Victoria yesterday "impressed him least of all."

"The federal government has offered to pay one-third of direct relief, with the co-operation of provincial governments and the municipalities," declared Senator Robertson today.

"There is a balance of about half the original $4,000,000 set aside for this purpose. I quite appreciate the desire to provide work, but when a municipality simply throws up its hands and says it will not look after the distress of its own people—not the transients—I am not impressed.

"And I may add that at the conference yesterday in Victoria the attitude of City Solicitor Williams impressed me least of all.

HAVE PLAN IN SIGHT

"In the transient problem I admit you have a real argument. There is no reason why Vancouver, because it happens to be at the end of the line, should be burdened with thousands who are not properly her citizens. We have been considering this phase and have under consideration a plan which may solve, certainly relieve, the situation in this respect."

Senator Robertson rebuked employers who take advantage of the present situation to reduce wages and break agreements.

"It is obvious that some employers have taken advantage of the present depression to squeeze down wages and repudiate agreements," he said.

As against the attitude of some municipalities, Senator Robertson contrasted the statements of those who agreed to take their one-third share in the responsibility of looking after the distress of their own people.

POLICE BOARD RULING SOON BY B.C. COURT

Judge to State If H. Burgess Member of the Vancouver Commission

Canadian Press

Vancouver, June 16.—Whether Henry Burgess, longshoreman, Belmont Avenue, has the right to sit as a member of Vancouver police commission will be tried out in a civil action, according to an order made in the British Columbia Supreme Court at the suit of the city by Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald.

The judge made the order yesterday afternoon without deciding whether sufficient proof had been adduced against Burgess of a conviction for theft of lumber four years ago by Magistrate George R. McQueen in Point Grey police court.

Preliminary objections, taken on behalf of Mr. Burgess by Hamilton Read, were overruled by the judge, who then held a prima facie case had been made out by Oscar Orr, counsel for Charles Jones, city clerk, in whose name the proceedings had been instituted.

TO FILE INFORMATION

Mr. Burgess had been required to show cause yesterday before Mr. Justice Macdonald to an application by the city attacking the police commissioner's qualifications for office in quo warranto proceedings. When he failed to show cause, an order was made by the judge which authorized the city to file an information, in the quo warranto proceedings, against him.

The information, something akin to a statement of claim in an ordinary action, questions Mr. Burgess's right to sit as a member of the police commission. When the information has been filed, Mr. Burgess can deliver a defence. The case then will go to trial.

Mr. Justice Macdonald commented the matter should be disposed of as speedily as possible. An attempt will be made to have it heard before the end of June.

"Can not the board function without him?" inquired the judge of Mr. Orr.

"They do not know whether he is a member," explained Mr. Orr.

"He does not claim to be a member?" observed the judge.

"He has never attempted to," interposed Mr. Read.

"At the present time the police should be administered by a strong——" commenced Mr. Orr.

VAVANCY EXISTS

"Why do they not appoint somebody in the place of the one who resigned?" interpolated the judge.

"I do not know," said Mr. Orr.

He referred to negotiations with the Liberal leaders during the last week, and said they had redrafted the amendment in a form which the government could accept, subject to examination, and that therefore a crisis had been averted.

The amendment deals with methods of assessing land under the land values tax proposed in connection with provisions of the income tax.

STATEMENT AWAITED

It had been generally expected some way out of the difficulty would be found, but until Mr. MacDonald made his announcement there had been no official word the difficulty had been straightened out.

Political observers thought something of the kind was in the wind, however, when it became known three Ministers attending the International Labor Conference at Geneva had been informed their presence in the Commons for this evening's debate on the amendment would not be necessary.

PERIOD OF DOUBT

Ever since last Friday the position of the government had apparently been in doubt, for voting was set for this evening on the Liberal amendment to the government's land tax resolution. Even this morning the situation was fairly termed a crisis. The original Liberal amendment was replaced by a modified one which, it was said, Labor found as unacceptable as the first, but Premier MacDonald told the Parliamentary Labor party at 1 meeting to-day the cabinet ha accepted the new Liberal amendmen subject to consideration of certain de tails. Once more the Labor minori government had compromised with th party holding the balance of power t assure its continuance in office.

BUILDINGS ARE FACTOR

The Liberals originally wanted t amend the land tax proposal so tha land already levied on through the in come tax would not be doubly levie on. The new amendment apparentl will exempt all real estate on whic buildings are worth more than fou times the value of the property the occupy. To keep this amendmen within the finance bill—otherwise would be subject to the will of th Conservative majority in the House o Lords—the amendment provides for nominal tax of a quarter of a cent i $5 on the property otherwise exempt.

If this is the proposal which th government has accepted it representa substantial change in the government proposal, for in large cities and othe towns the average value of buildings believed to be ten times the value o the sites.

their emoluments had been increase shortly before their retirement.

"Many people think the Canadia National Railways is a fertile field fo graft," exclaimed Dr. McGibbon. Th air should be cleared and the Cana dian people should not be left to be lieve the road was being operated un der a cloud," he said.

NONE ARE RICH

Officers of the road had only on form of capital—their reputation a railway officials, said Sir Henry Thorn ton. None were rich men and the onl things they had to sell were their repu tation, skill and intelligence and th maintenance of their professional repu tations. The question of salaries wa a matter purely for the board of di rectors, he added.

REGRETS TERM USED

Regretting the use of the phrase, "fertile field for graft," as used by Dr McGibbon, Hon. W. D. Euler, forme Liberal Minister of National Revenue suggested it be withdrawn. The mem ber for North Waterloo, Ont., ha never heard it used by anyone, addin he disbelieved it expressed the genera belief of the country. If it were un true, it would injure the Canadian National and would destroy public faith in the enterprise.

"I am only repeating what everyone is saying, but I am willing to withdraw the phrase," said Dr. McGibbon.

MANION'S VIEW

Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals entered the controversy at this point. The committee itself should decide whether it deemed it wise to publish the amounts, he said.

"My feeling is," he proceeded, "a long as the government of Canada mus put up or guarantee vast sums o money—and remember that money amounts to more than the whole cos of the war—it seems to me to be a legitimate question to deal with the salaries paid the higher officials. People have come to me and said Sir Henry was getting as much as $300,000 a year. I admit that was false and I have heard other people make other statements that were false."

EULER'S OPINION

"I question the wisdom of publishing this salary," Mr. Euler said. "The little bit of information you will receive will not be worth the harm you will do."

As far as salaries were concerned, his own position was not important, declared Sir Henry Thornton. He did not care much what happened to him, but when the salaries of efficient men were made known, it often happened they were immediately approached by other companies and efforts made to get them away from the railway.

In the last few months one of the best men of the C.N.R. had been offered a position with another organization, but happily he had decided to remain. A year or two ago another officer was induced to leave the railway by another company.

Answering A. A. Heaps, Labor, Winnipeg North, Sir Henry said the salaries of all officers of the system were in keeping with what was paid elsewhere.

Mr. Heaps then made the motion that a small sub-committee be appointed to secure the information respecting salaries.

FARMERS FIND NEW BENNETT TAXES HEAVY

Miss MacPhail Tells Commons Why She Will Vote Against the Budget

Burns, Manitoba Conservative, Suggests Inquiry Into Prices of Farm Machinery

Ottawa, June 16.—All the Bennett budget did for her constituents was to increase their taxes, Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressive, southeast Grey, Ont., told the Commons, during the budget debate yesterday evening. Increased customs duties, including magazines and coal, the increased sales tax, the new exise tax and the extra postage fell on them. If any farmers would receive benefit from the five-cent-a-bushel bounty on export wheat—and she was dubious as to that—the farmers in her constituency did not raise any wheat that would be affected.

Miss MacPhail said she had six reasons for voting against the budget.

The increase in the tax on corporation from eight to ten per cent was satisfactory, and also the increase in income taxes "as far as it went," said Miss MacPhail. However, she could go no farther in approval. The present position of the country was not due to overproduction, but to a faulty monetary system.

Miss MacPhail said she must condemn a budget which made no reference to the need of a change from the "outworn system" of the gold basis.

UNEMPLOYMENT QUESTION

A second reason for criticizing the budget was its lack of reference to unemployment relief. Last year a special session of parliament had been called to deal with it. Now the situation was more serious than ever, and nothing was being done.

More bitterness was being caused in the country over the reduction in the income tax on large incomes than anything else in the budget, said Miss MacPhail. Premier Bennett had been guilty of an "error in judgment." He had made a mistake in trying to balance the budget.

Premier Bennett intervened at this point and smilingly said it probably would not balance at the end of the year in any event.

Speaking of agriculture generally, all the producers would receive, said Miss MacPhail, would be the burden of an increase from one to four per cent in the sales tax, an exise tax of one per cent on all imports, an increase in the tariff on coal coming into Canada for consumption, a duty on prohibited magazines if farmers desired to read them and extra postage on their letters. It would seem to have been better, she added, if the newspapers paid their own postage and farmers would not have to pay the additional one-cent taxe on each letter.

AUTO FIELD

All the farmers were able to buy these days were used autos, Miss MacPhail continued, but the entry of used cars from the United States was prohibited in the budget.

There were 200 tariff items increased in the budget, including raisins, tea and oranges. Farmers would have to pay the tariff, the increasd sales tax and the one-per-cent exise tax on these goods, said Miss MacPhail.

PRICE OF IMPLEMENTS

A government investigation into the prices of farm machinery was suggested by William H. Burns, Conservative, Portage-la Prairie.

"In common with many people in western Canada," said Mr. Burns, "I have a feeling prices of farm implements are still too high. I would like to see this government take action for an investigation into the prices charged the farmers."

If the manufacturers were asked to give evidence as to the cost of production, he said, and an inquiry made into all other factors, the air would be cleared. It might be prices were not too high, but if this were the case no harm would be done the manufacturers. But if prices were too high the government owed it to the farmers to take action.

WHEAT AND FRUIT

J. L. Ilsley, Liberal, Hants-Kings, N.S., questioned the selection of export wheat for a five-cent-a-bushel absorption of freight charges, Nova Scotia apple growers had had four or five poor years. What justice was there in picking out exportable wheat and paying a five-cent bonus on it unless the same thing was done with other agricultural products?

The five-cent bonus might bring "reprisals" against this country. Maritime feeders wanted Indian corn, yet the government had placed a duty against that commodity coming from Argentina. Canada had a favorable balance of trade with Argentina and corn was the chief import. This country was on the "highroad" to destroying trade with Argentina and the duty proposed of twenty cents a pound would cost Nova Scotia from $150,000 to $175,000 annually, Mr. Ilsley said.

FREIGHT RATES

Col. H. A. Mullins, Conservative, Marquette, Man., said tariff protection was necessary to the well-being of any country.

Lower railway freight rates must be secured for western Canada, Col. Mullins declared. He thought it was a "slanderous, diabolical misstatement" to charge Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Conservative Party with having sought to abrogate the Crow's Nest Pass rates. He appealed to Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, to lend his assistance.

ROBERTSON'S TOUR NOT NEEDED

When he spoke in Quebec during the election campaign Mr. Bennett had promised higher tariffs and higher taxes, said E. C. St. Pere, Liberal, Hochelaga, and the public should not be surprised to see the extent to which these promises were being carried out. The cost of living would be raised in every way.

Communism would not enter Canada, Mr. St. Pere stated, through furs or pulpwood, entry of which had been banned by order-in-council. If communism came into this country it would be due to pauperism, unemployment and high tariffs.

There was no necessity for the Minister of Labor (Senator Robertson) going about the country to make a survey of unemployment conditions, Mr. St. Pere stated. These conditions were known.

COAL DUTY

Dr. L. W. Johnstone, Conservative, Cape Breton North-Victoria, said that every time higher duties had been placed on imported fuel, production in Maritime province coal mines had increased. He looked for a similar reaction to the present budget increases. At the very least, those opposed to the government should wait until the results were known before attacking the policy.

LOAN LOSS

Maxime Raymond, Liberal, Beauharnois, the government had "lost" $18,000,000 on the Conversion Loan.

"The speech from the throne makes promises," he stated, "what does it bring? Only taxation."

COKE QUESTION

Continuance of the drawback of ninety-nine per cent. of the duty on imported coal used for coking or in the iron and steel industry, was "a most unfair provision in our tariff," said Col. Thomas Cantley, Conservative, Pictou, N.S. Apart from this, Col. Cantley believes the changes in the tariff affecting coal were all in the right direction.

The large coking plant at Montreal, Col. Cantley went on, was able to import United States coal under the drawback provision of the tariff and sell its coke in competition with Nova Scotia coal, which had to bear the cost of the long freight haul.

WHAT PRICE COMMODITIES?

They Say It Costs Dollar Bushel to Raise Wheat, But—

Futures Deals Urged to Curb Farmers' Loss; Wages Are Factor

New York, June 16—A great many methods, ideas, theories and schemes have been advanced in connection with finding some satisfactory solution for the overproduction crisis in commodities. Wall Street has become quite accustomed to seeing nearly all the products of nature selling for less than it costs to produce them. It is said that it costs about 2 cents a pound to produce sugar, 14 cents a pound to produce rubber, 12 cents to grow cotton and about $1 a bushel to grow wheat. Why, then, should the farmer do any planting at all when he can buy cotton, sugar, rubber, etc., for less than it costs him to grow them? George Carmichael, commodity expert of Munds & Winslow, offers in this interview a new key to fit the riddle.

"When the world is upset all business men are thinking of the ways and means to get us back to normal," declared Mr. Carmichael. "There is naturally a great interest in the price at which commodities sell. The price at which a commodity sells represents the wages of the producer. There is a great deal of discussion at the present time about the advisability of reducing the wages of industry, and the argument is frequently made that we must maintain the present standard of living.

COMMODITY SPECULATION

"Few people seem to realize that the wages of the producer of cotton, wheat, sugar, cocoa, rubber and numerous other commodities have been cut from 50 to 75 per cent. Any increase in the price of commodities means greater purchasing power to the producer and with it the ability to absorb the products of industry.

"There has been considerable criticism of commodity speculation, but fortunately this is diminishing. A great deal of this criticism has been due to the lack of understanding of the function of the commodity exchanges and the failure to recognize that the prices which are made on commodity exchanges are not controlled by a few individuals, but reflect the judgment of both producers and consumers throughout the whole world.

"The commodity exchanges have been of great benefit for many years. The merchant who buys 10,000 bales of cotton or a million bushels of wheat from the producer is able to protect himself by selling futures as a hedge against his purchases. The manufacturer who makes forward sales of the finished product is able to protect himself through the purchase of future contracts.

POSITION OF SPECULATOR

"The much criticised speculator plays a very important part in the operation of commodity exchanges. He is willing to buy the contracts of the merchant who wishes to hedge, or sell to the manufacturer who wishes to anticipate his forward requirements, as he is willing to assume the risk in the hope of profit.

"The fact that the merchant is able to protect his purchases by a hedge enables him to operate on a very close margin of profit, and this is beneficial to the producer.

"The exchanges have been used to a moderate extent by the producer, but as farming is largely an individualistic operation and usually undertaken in small units, the farmer has not used the futures market as much as he should.

NEW USE FOR EXCHANGES

"With practically all commodities below the cost of production, and with the world surfeited with too much of practically everything, the commodity exchanges should be put to a new use for the benefit of the producer. Why should the producer of a commodity continue to grow a new crop at a loss when some one else is willing to sell him that commodity at one-half of its cost of production? How long would Henry Ford produce automobiles if the General Motors Corporation would sell them to him at one-half their cost? It is obvious that General Motors would soon be in bankruptcy if such an unwise operation were attempted.

"The production of sugar and rubber is largely in the hands of large corporations, many of which are controlled by banking interests who know that producing goods far below the price at which they can be sold leads only to bankruptcy. Yet there has been no evidence of closing down any of these plantations, although the purchase of a year's production could be made in the futures market at practically half the cost of producing it."

SPOKANE SCENE OF $50,000 FIRE

Spokane, Wash., June 16.—Fire believed to have been started by lightning destroyed the Armstrong Ice Machinery Company's plant here early today. Don Kiser, president, estimated the loss at between $50,000 and $75,000.

Fighters were hampered by frequent explosions of ammonia and other chemicals. Ten fire companies confined their efforts to prevent spread of the flames to oil tanks and business buildings within fifty feet of the plant.

CHURCHES URGED TO AID CURE OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Montreal, June 16.—Both the cause and the cure of the unemployment lie in the realm of religion and ethics, and the Christian church is making the biggest mistake in its history by not putting unemployment in the forefront of its campaign, said Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon of Winnipeg (Ralph Connor) in an address here yesterday.

A council of all Christian churches should be called to consider this question, said Dr. Gordon, who blamed the stock market crash, the wheat situation and unemployment on imperfect ethics and religion. Canada deserved no sympathy for its difficulties with wheat, he said, as these were due directly to the fact that Canadians had broken the commands of Christ.

"Religion would have saved us from them," he added.

Three Autoists Are Rescued From Canal

Canadian Press

St. Johns, Que., June 16.—Quick action by Arthur Benaud of Le Luc saved his father, his mother and his wife from drowning when their automobile plunged from a bridge into the canal at Ile Ste. Therese.

When the automobile landed in the canal with the rear completely under water and the front nearly submerged, he opened the rear door and pulled his wife out and placed her on the top of the car. He then released his mother in the front seat and put her beside his wife. After swimming around to the other side of the automobile, he found his father pinned at the steering wheel with the water up to his ears. He managed to bring him to the surface semi-conscious and then took all of them to the shore.

A SUCCESSFUL CONCILIATOR

IN THE RETIREMENT ON SUPERANnuation of Mr. James D. McNiven, for thirteen years provincial Deputy Minister of Labor, the public service of the province has lost an able and highly-esteemed official. It would be difficult to find in Canada anyone possessed of a more intimate understanding of labor conditions and the relations between the two great divisions of our economic and social structure than the Deputy Minister who severed his connection with official life a few days ago, and who yesterday received a farewell tribute from his colleagues in the government service.

Mr. McNiven's active connection with government labor legislation began twenty-four years ago when he went from Victoria to Ottawa to become fair-wage officer in the Department of Labor, which at that time was under the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, then Postmaster-General, with Mr. Mackenzie King as Deputy Minister. In the following year the Labor Department was made a separate branch of the federal service, and Mr. Mackenzie King, who obtained a seat in Parliament for Waterloo, Ontario, became its first minister under the new arrangement.

Mr. McNiven's special duty while stationed at Ottawa was to establish wage schedules on government works and his territory extended from the capital to the Pacific Coast. He also acted for the government in securing the settlement of the various labor disputes which developed from time to time, especially in the coal mining industry in southern British Columbia, many of which were amicably disposed of by conciliation and arbitration through the agency of the Industrial Disputes legislation, known as the Lemieux Act. The fact that during his federal service Mr. McNiven enjoyed in equal measure the confidence of both Mr. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor in a Liberal government, and Mr. Crothers, head of the department in the succeeding Conservative government, furnishes its own commentary on the conscientious manner in which he discharged his duties during that period.

Thirteen years ago the position of Deputy Minister of Labor in the provincial service was created, and Mr. McNiven was appointed to the post. The ability and zeal with which he has filled that office is common knowledge. Just as at Ottawa he possessed the confidence of both Liberal and Conservative administrations, so at Victoria he has had the appreciation of both Liberal and Conservative ministers. Beyond this, however, he has had the confidence of the general public, and that important qualification has enabled him to settle many disputes which have arisen in the province between employers and employees. His wide understanding of human nature, his intimate knowledge of labor conditions, his scrupulous fairness and amiable personality made him an ideal conciliator.

It is unfortunate in a sense that his public service should terminate at this time when economic conditions are unsettled and when the qualities Mr. McNiven has exhibited so successfully would be needed for the settlement of difficulties which might develop in the industrial field. In any case, however, he may look back with satisfaction upon a record of useful achievement in the public interest, and carries into his retirement the best wishes of a host of admirers.

DUTY ON MAGAZINES

IN SOME QUARTERS THERE SEEMS TO be an impression that customs tariff provision affecting imported periodical publications, recently announced by Mr. Bennett, applies only to magazines from the United States. This impression is incorrect; the duty of fifteen cents a pound is to be levied against publications "in the English and French language" without regard to the country they come from. Hence, magazines from other parts of the empire will be subject to the duty in the same way that publications from the United States or any other foreign country will be.

There is a reservation in the provision, however, which permits the Governor-in-Council from time to time to exempt from the payment of the duty periodical publications which are of religious, educational or scientific character. This reservation appears simple enough on paper, but its actual enforcement will be full of difficulty. Who is to decide whether a magazine is religious, educational or scientific, and how will the decision be reached? Will the arbiters be the collectors of customs at the various ports of entry? If so, they will require some official definition to guide them or there will be innumerable divergent interpretations according to the personal views of the respective officers.

Nor would it be any easier for the department to draw up definitions for the guidance of the customs officers. What is a religious periodical? There are hundreds of religions. There are periodicals which contain both religious matter and current fiction. What is an educational periodical? Most of the better class of imported magazines are educational in some sense or other. And how would the department define a scientific publication? How broad or narrow would it define the term "science"?

Tariff changes often involve no end of trouble, but we prophesy that if the government tries to put into operation on July 1 this provision of the new tariff legislation, it will land itself into a veritable morass of difficulty, unless it shall give the widest latitude to the exemptions it proposes, and limits the application of the tax to publications generally regarded as trashy.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE

THE FIRST SUGGESTIONS THAT BUSIness is beginning to take the upgrade are being heard, just as they lighted up the gloom in 1922 and 1923. They were to be expected; a business recession eventually reaches bottom and the tide turns. Here, for example, are the reasons why Mr. Charles F. Abbott, managing director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, says his country is soon to enter upon the biggest period of industrial development in its history:

The electrical industry is on the verge of revolutionizing the whole process of manufacturing and distributing electricity.

The natural-gas industry, with all of its vast pipe lines, is bringing natural gas into the remote eastern cities and towns.

The chemical industry by applied research is bringing into being many new industries as new processes are developed.

The coal industry is making preparations to utilize waste materials by converting them into electrical energy at the mines.

Railroad systems are engaged in electrification programmes.

The aviation industry is in its infancy. It may, and probably will, accelerate the whole system of transportation.

The proposed irrigation projects, including dams, will call for greater quantities of steel, cement, and other building materials.

Advertising men and women are the prophets and the educators of the new idea and the new attitude. They are leading the people to greater wealth and prosperity by increasing consumption. They will be the first to lead us out of this economic dilemma.

As conditions improve in the neighboring country, of course, they will improve on this side of the international border.

THE CHURCH SPEAKS

THE MAY NUMBER OF THE UNITED States publication, The World To-morrow, contains the report of a questionnaire sent out by its editor to 53,000 ministers—about one-half of the Protestant clergy of the country—asking if they would stand up and say they would never sanction another war. No fewer than 10,427 replied that they absolutely reject war and would refuse personally to take part in any future war as combatants. The entire clergy of eleven denominations received the questionnaire, and 19,372 ministers replied, 12,076 declaring their conviction that "the Church should now go on record as refusing to sanction or support any future war." Incidentally, 17,700, or ninety-one per cent, of those who replied expressed a willingness to have their replies made public.

Commenting on the result of this appeal for the views of the clergy, The Christian Century says if it had been asked how many Protestant ministers in the United States "will stand up and say that they will never support or sanction another war, we would have answered: Perhaps 1,500, or 2,000 at the outside." This journal, therefore, is delighted with the result and declares that "the aspect of this exhibit which first impresses anyone who is at all sensitive to the personal circumstances of ministers is the almost unbelievable courage which lies behind these replies." The Century points out that only brave men could take this stand; that "no question can be put to any public leader—in business, in politics, in education, in religion—which is so heavily-loaded with danger to his practical interests and professional success as these questions upon which more than 12,000 ministers have made their unequivocal declaration."

Wisdom after the event is not a very valuable commodity. It means little to say that if the Church leaders of the world had forgotten their nationalism during the critical days of the summer of 1914, if they had attempted to look a little into the future, the Great War might have been avoided and humanity saved from its horrors and aftermath. But it will have to be admitted that effective spiritual leadership was lacking. Since then, however, the Church seems to have realized that it was found wanting at the most vital period in its history, and the response to the questionnaire may be taken as symptomatic of its new attitude toward war.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

RUSSIAN SLAVERY

The Chicago Tribune

The Russians exchanged one form of vassalage for another. In proceeding from Czarism to Communism they did not lose any political slavery and they did have imposed on them an economic autocracy. The Russian people do less on their own initiative and by their own free will under Stalin than they did under Nicholas. As a result they cannot even trust themselves to raise pigs. It is not to be expected that they would know how to make tractors, but they cannot be relied upon to learn to operate them. Unaided they not only cannot build but they cannot run a railroad system which will distribute properly the natural wealth of a very rich country. They cannot move manufactured goods and they cannot move crops.

HEREDITY IN THE POLITICS OF CANADA

The Toronto Mail and Empire

They have a habit in the Maritime Provinces as well as in Quebec of seeing to it that family names continue in political life. Two notable instances in Quebec are found in the Taschereau and Sauve families. Robert Taschereau, son of the provincial Premier, and Paul Sauve, son of the Postmaster-General, have followed their fathers in adopting public careers. In New Brunswick there is the very notable instances of Hon. L. P. D. Tilley, son of the great Sir Leonard, and growing more like his father every year, and now Prince Edward Island affords us another illustration of heredity in politics. Walter Fitzalan Stewart, recently elected Speaker of the Legislature, belongs to a family long active in Island politics. He has the unique distinction of sitting beneath a painting of his great-great-grandfather, who was Speaker of the Council nearly a century ago. On his mother's side also he has political blood, for his uncle was Hon. A. B. Warburton, Premier of the province, 1897-98, M.P. for Queen's, 1908-11, and the historian of "the" Island. Incidentally, Speaker Stewart is a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College. He is both a successful farmer and a coming politician.

A THOUGHT

I said in mine heart, Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure: and, behold, this also is vanity.—Ecclesiastes ii 1.

Vanity is the foundation of the most ridiculous and contemptible vices—the vices of affectation and common lying.—Adam Smith.

By H. B. W.

I REPROBATE (that is a hard word indeed when used as a verb) the removal of helmets from the city police. It is not the dismal, downcast, outward aspect of the police in their new uniforms which grieve me. I can endure that. Nor does the advertising value of the old-time helmet, its attraction to tourists as something uniquely British, concern me much. I hold, indeed, that this community should scorn to use the sacred machinery of the law for the base and mundane purpose of attracting American visitors. We should be above commercializing our public institutions in this fashion. No, the loss is not a mere helmet nor a valued advertising stunt. It is something much more intangible and much more important, a loss of the spirit. It is an admission that we are adopting peaked caps on our police because we are just like other places. No doubt we have been just like other places for a long time, but we have never admitted it before. We have always believed in our hearts that we were different, even peculiar, perhaps, but in some subtle fashion a good deal better. Such beliefs, even if they aren't true, are ever the very stuff of greatness. The belief of Nordic superiority has been the secret of the success of our race. The belief in Victorian superiority has made us superior. To remove any recognized token of this superiority, like the police helmet, is bad enough; but far worse is the complacence of the public at this sacrilege, showing that the old legend of vigorous Victorianism is dying and, perhaps, is dead already. No wonder the police look dejected; we have removed the pressure on their brains, but we have bowed down their spirits with a heavy load of grief, for instead of being the guardians of a sacred shrine they have become the coppers of an ordinary city.

I HAVE JUST been reading the melancholy details of the recent world wheat conference in London, which proved such a total loss. What intrigued me was the almost unanimous view of the countries represented there that the only way to reduce the wheat surplus in the world is to grow less wheat. The purpose of this reduction—which is only a pious hope, since farmers are busy planting more than ever—is to keep wheat prices up. Among all the Christian nations gathered in London, with the certainty that wheat production would not decline, no one seems to have suggested that if the production cost of wheat could be reduced then it might be possible to dispose of the surplus to the wheat-hungry millions of the world. On the contrary, as the Christian nations are busy erecting tariffs, and increasing every farmer's cost of production, the price at which the farmer can sell his wheat without loss is bound to go up. And conversely, by the same interesting process, the higher the Christian nations' tariff goes, the less the wheat-hungry nations will be able to sell the wheat-producers, and the less wheat they will be able to buy from them.

AS A RESULT of this remarkable theory of economics, not only did the wheat conference fail to divert any wheat to the backward peoples of the world, who cannot afford to pay high prices, but it also failed in the opposite direction to prevent a surplus and keep the price up. The people who need the wheat won't get it, the farmer won't get a good price, and North America will end this year, it is estimated, with a surplus of a mere 1,000,000,000 bushels. Thus we have improved on the ancient theories of economics to such an extent that we have reversed them altogether. For instead of a food surplus being caused by a shortage of mouths as in olden times, we find a surplus of food and a surplus of mouths—6,000,000 in the United States alone—side by side. It is an achievement which no other civilization has ever approached.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART gushes with enthusiasm in The Ladies' Home Journal because, she says, manners have gone up as skirts have gone down. The new tailing, whispy affairs, Mrs. Rinehart discovers, have produced a return of those good manners which disappeared when skirts were above the knee. This is very interesting and probably quite untrue. The truth probably is that we haven't improved our manners, because now a days we have no real manners to improve; no real manners, at least, towards women. For manners towards women, of course, are an outward and visible sign of an inward attitude towards women. So long as women were on a pedestal, in the home, and could be worshipped, refined manners towards them came to us naturally—they expressed our attitude; but since women have foolishly claimed equality, descended from the pedestal and come forth into the market places, the manners have gone along with the old attitude. They get about the same respect as men, and that has never amounted to much. The outward appearance of manners has come back with the long skirt, but we who have seen the era of knees, when even grandmothers were flappers, have been too bitterly disillusioned to regain our old feelings of worship. The younger generation may imagine that long skirts mean a return to womanliness, but we who have seen what we have seen know that there is no security about life any more, that skirts may go up, and manners disappear again with them next week.

A BRITISH COLUMBIA statesman, to whom I have occasionally referred in this column, told me to-day he felt that his credit in politics was somewhat damaged by such references; that is to say, by references not to his politics, but to the other side of his life, to his habit of working in his own garden, cutting his lawn and hoeing his cabbages. He thinks that such homely revelations may tend to undermine his reputation for sagacity and knowledge. I repudiate any such motive and I disagree entirely with his fears. Nothing, to my way of thinking, could be a greater virtue in a statesman than that he should keep his feet in the soil. A government of gardeners, of men who pulled weeds and cultivated cabbages every morning before they started to govern the country, would be the most successful government on record. A government of real gardeners would be incapable of sham and pretence; it would not be swept off its feet by every passing public fancy, for it would know that you eventually reap what you sow and nothing else; and it would have a wisdom and a sanity which come only from simple things. The great trouble with our governments is that, once installed in shiny offices, they get too far away from the soil and acquire foolish notions about themselves. They forget that, like other men, they are only two-forked radishes, curiously carved, and imagine that they are some kind of exotic growth, far removed from the common or garden electors.

The water problem is still under serious consideration. Since carrying the Highland district scheme as far as possible and making provision for obtaining full information as to its practicability, the City Council has taken up an alternative project. This has for its object the providing of Victoria with Sooke Lake water.

UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor:—As a very great help towards solving some at least of the unemployment, I would suggest in common justice that the wives of men now in employment be compelled to vacate their positions in favor of hundreds of our young girls who are seeking work. It is a cruel injustice that these people should be employed who have husbands earning large salaries, while our girls who need it, are left to tramp the streets.

I hear this question being discussed every day, and I think the time has arrived for the employers of labor to take this matter seriously in hand and enclose a blue slip in these monopolists' next pay envelopes.

REFORM

To the Editor:—The air is full of talk of government reform movements. Well, let them all come, as the song says. If for no other reason I would give them my support with the full knowledge that nothing could be worse than what we in British Columbia have suffered the last twenty-five years. That the present aggregation is the worst yet, and that "a new broom sweeps clean." If we had ever had a decent government in British Columbia it would have exercised some control over the various swindles that have been planted on the public. There should be a department to investigate the merits of every company before stock is allowed to be sold. Blue sky laws is the term, I believe.

Some months ago I received a circular of a syndicate to develop a promising gold mine. I am still awaiting a reply to my question: "How much of my money will reach the mine for development purposes?" Try this question with some of the sharks who want to make you rich. It is a most embarrassing question, you will find.

NOT WOMEN'S FAULT

To the Editor:—Would you kindly give space for the following. "Unemployment Women's Fault." So J. B. Munro, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, is reported in an address to the Local Council of Women a few days ago. I don't know how that body of women took that statement, but it has ever been thus since Adam's time—"blame the women"—and no one knows better than do government officials that the responsibility for the present unfortunate situation we are facing lies principally with our various governments. They have been setting the pace for extravagance and unnecessary expenditure. May I draw Mr. Munro's attention to the fact that its men who control and dictate the policies of our governing bodies. Now, Mr. Editor, had Mr. Munroe addressed our merchants, telling them where and what to buy, our shops "perhaps" would then have nothing but Canadian products for sale, thus simplifying matters, and the unemployment situation would be solved—that is, if Mr. Munroe diagnosis is correct.

May I quote here what Sir George Paish, British economist, said when recently addressing the Welfare Council of New York? He claims the credit system is the cause of unemployment, as most every one is in debt as a consequence of this credit system. This, I think, is a nearer guess, and indeed no matter what is the cause, the women are not going to take the blame for this world-wide unemployment.

RE "RED RAIN"

To the Editor:—In a letter to your paper of last Friday, the 12th inst., Mr. James Moyes presumes that it was a plague of insects in Egypt, in the days of Moses which colored all standing water like blood.

I should like to say that the Bible when taken literally is its own interpreter and vindicates itself when attacked. When, therefore, the Almighty Creator in His infallible Word calls a burning bush a burning bush and blood, blood we can rest assured that He means what He says, and it behooves puny man to refrain from criticizing that inerrant Word!

Why should mankind ever try to minimize the acts of our "Great God of Wonders," and why should there ever be an attempt made to put limitations to His omnipotence? Is it not proof positive that man's natural state is still that of rebellion against His Maker? The admonition of our Saviour to His disciples applies also to our own day and generation: "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken . . . then opened He their understanding, that they might understand the Scriptures." Science and philosophy if not based on the wisdom of God is, at best, "science falsely so-called, vain deceit and vain babblings" of worldly-wise man "ever learning and never coming to the knowledge of the truth." "Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the disputer of this world? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world, which wisdom will come to nought; the foolishness of God being wiser than man, only "the fool says in his heart, there is no God," and opposes Satan's subtile lie: "Yea, hath God said," to the indisputable Word of God: "Thus saith the Lord."

The world-wide ills of to-day are the result of man's departure from faith in the Word of an Holy God, and only by a return to Him through the One, who hath said: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life, no man cometh unto the Father but by me" can humanity's ailments be healed, yea, through faith only in Jesus Christ the Lord, crucified, crowned and soon coming again!

END OF THE WORLD

To the Editor:—Your editorial in Saturday's issue entitled "An Old Pastime" referring to predictions that the end of the world will come in 1934 or 1936 would have been more interesting if slightly more space had been given to the predictions criticized. However, I think one would be safe in supposing that these predictions were not that the world would end its career as you put it, in 1934 or 1936, but that we are very near the end of an age in the world's history and that in the opinion of those you refer to this end will come in 1934 or 1936. It is a well-known fact that in the Authorized Version of the Bible the word "world" is often used when the meaning is really age or period and there is undoubtedly a growing feeling in many minds that mankind is approaching a crisis. The history of the race might be divided into three ages, the first ending in the universal judgment of the Flood, the second ending with the First Advent and Crucifixion of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the third, in which we are now living, which is predicted to end with the Second Advent, the personal return of the Lord Jesus to the earth to bring order out of the chaos now existing. This Second Advent, or some stage of it, is no doubt the basis of the predictions you criticize, and while, as the Bible sets no dates for these happenings, it is not wise for men to do so, yet the Bible has much to say concerning the Jews, the Gentiles or nations of the world, and the church, that indicates in a general way our nearness to that great event. But it is highly incorrect to think of this probably very near event as the "end" of the world, for the Bible contains many other predictions of a millenial age, and of other events still further in the future.

Those who believe the Bible and believe that the Bible teaches that mankind as a race has failed and will continue to fail, and that the only hope for the world is the personal return of the Dord Jesus Christ to set up a reign of righteousness in the earth, bring on themselves the cry of "Pessimists." But which is the wiser, so-called optimism which builds itself on its own hopes and wishes and sees man reconstructing this badly battered old world, or so-called pessimism which looks at present-day facts as a confirmation and fulfilment of Bible statements and looks beyond them to the Golden Age to be introduced by the Son of God Himself.

The quoted opinions of some eminent men are interesting as showing that it is not only so-called religious cranks that think the present times to be grave ones.

Sir Auckland Geddes: "In Europe we know that an age is dying."

Francis Gribble in the Nineteenth Century: "The historian of the future will write that some time in the early part of the Twentieth Century the last and most highly organized of the world's civilizations deliberately committed suicide."

Dean Inge: "We are witnessing the suicide of a social order."

H. G. Wells: "Destruction is not threatening civilization: it is happening to civilization before our eyes. The ship of civilization is not going to sink in five years time nor in fifty years. It is sinking now."

Sir Philip Gibbs: "All of us will be engulfed. The stage is set for the greatest melodrama, entitled the "Downfall of Europe."

Anyone who will follow the Old Country reviews such as the National, English, Contemporary, Nineteenth Century, etc., and other papers such as The Living Age, The New Republic, articles by Frank H. Simonds recently appearing in The Saturday Evening Post and other comment on international affairs must realize that a very grave view is being taken of current events by those who should be in a position to know.

DO NOT COVET

To the Editor:—It is one of the peculiarities of the age that so many people, in almost total ignorance of the subjects on which they write, have the audacity to offer their advice publicly, through the medium of the press. They don't stop timidly at minor suggestions, but come out boldly with the most inane, nay almost insane, ideas. Ideas, which if it were possible to put them into effect as their originators would like to see them, instead of accruing to their special benefit, as is their obvious wish, would bring nothing but ruination and devastation in their wake. The sponsors of the ideas would be by no means the least of those hurt by the effects of the proposals so ardently championed by them.

One wonders, at times, if there is not something wrong with our much-lauded schooling system in that children are taught to read and w (especially write) and are tau nothing about which to write. ignorance of apparently educated p ple so often proves to be of the m appalling magnitude when put to test.

From many others of a sim nature, which have appeared in b local papers during recent months am directing my efforts against epistle published in the Saturd June 13, issue of your paper over name of J. O. Stinson. Mr. Stinso letter is very readable and obviou by a man who has learned to "r and write." Since attaining these complishments it seems probable t

REQUIREMENTS OF DIPLOMATS TOLD CLUBMEN

Truth, Reserve, and Decision Not to Score "Diplomatic Victories" Needed

Sir Francis Lindley, Envoy to Japan, Gives Canadian Club Insight Into Work

A good diplomatist should be able to answer an impertinent question without telling a lie. A truthful man, dealing with one who is suspicious, can frequently deceive the latter by simply telling the truth.

This was one of the maxims laid down by Rt. Hon. Sir Francis Lindley, P.C., G.C.M.G., C.B., C.B.E., recently appointed Ambassador to Japan in his address on "Diplomacy" before the Canadian Club at its dinner in the Empress Hotel yesterday evening. During his remarks he illustrated the activities of the diplomatic service by reminding his audience of the immigration agreement made between Canada and Japan in 1907, during the Laurier regime.

As secretary of the British Embassy in Tokio he had been able to introduce Sir Rodolphe Lemieux and Sir Joseph Pope, Canadian envoys, to those people with whom they could carry on their negotiations successfully. He considered the early mission decidedly satisfactory, since on the basis of that agreement had been drawn up the recent one between the two nations.

Going into his conceptions of a good diplomatist, the well-known speaker outlined further characteristics they required.

SHOULD NOT BE MYSTERIOUS

They should not preserve an air of mystery, since by doing so they shut off valuable sources of information. They should be able to handle their own government as well as that to which they were accredited. Never should they score a definite diplomatic victory, but should acquire their information while permitting their rivals to think they had gained the triumph.

And they should adopt a modified form of text laid down by Sir William White, eminent leader in the field some years ago "Never carry out your instructions." Rather, they should modify the messages sent them by their home governments, giving the latter the benefit of their local knowledge.

IN SERVICE THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

Opening his address, Sir Francis told the club he had chosen "Diplomacy" for his subject, not only because he had been in the service for the last thirty-five years but also for the interest taken in that field at the present time. Everyone was a diplomatist—some in business and all in the home—he stated. Referring to secret diplomacy, Sir Francis said if that term meant the establishment of treaties behind the backs of the people the envoys represented, which might lead them into pursuing courses none had desired, then such a practice was very reprehensible. As far as the British Empire was concerned, no such agreements had been entered into since the Great War.

On the other hand, he considered keeping certain confidential matter away from the general public quite ethical. Such a practice was similar to agreements between husband and wife, he pointed out.

COMPARATIVELY NEW

Professional diplomacy was comparatively new, having been generally built up after the Napoleonic wars. In old times, special envoys were frequently sent from one country to another to settle certain difficulties and to return to their homes when this work was completed. Frequently this was fraught with danger, he continued, reminding his hearers of the fates of some historic figures who had suffered on such missions.

Precedence was a bone of contention in the early days, as was evidenced by the rivalry between the Ambassadors of France and Spain in the courts of Queen Elizabeth. Under present arrangements, precedence was decided by the date on which credentials were placed by the ambassadors before the authorities of the countries to which he was accredited.

COMMERCE SUPPLANTS POLITICS

Starting purely as a political system, diplomacy gradually came to embrace the realms of commerce, and with the growth of trade found the latter department taking a more important part than the former. This development also made it necessary for envoys to cease their activities as roving characters and become permanent departments.

The phenomenal growth of the United States diplomatic service was due in a large measure to this, Sir Francis stated. In 1898, when he first entered the field in the British Legation at Vienna, trade and commerce were not factors in the work of the corps. The change in interest from political to commercial had brought about an alteration in the legations. The old ones, consisting largely of men who could secure data on matters political, were being replaced by new ones in which an understanding of trade was of greater import. In this work he paid high tribute to the Prince of Wales.

LEAGUE ADDS TO WORK

The League of Nations, at first considered as a weapon which would abolish the diplomatic service, had by no means made it unnecessary, but had rather intensified its work. Under it the diplomat not only had to keep his finger on the pulse of his own land and that of the country to which he was sent, but also had to follow the sentiment and activities of the league.

Treating specifically British diplomacy, the speaker stated that the service represented all Dominions as well as the parent government. Empire questions in no way gave precedence to those of the British Isles, he declared. In the case of a Dominion sending special envoys to a certain country, it was the work of the established British corps to facilitate their negotiations, such as they had in the Japanese immigration agreement.

In this connection Sir Francis voiced his desire to see Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Japan. The Canadian Legation, he told his hearers, had given him the use of its headquarters until the embassy was ready to be occupied.

NOT LYING FOR COUNTRY

He took exception to the saying of the wit who had described a diplomatist as a "bright fellow sent abroad to lie for the good of his country," saying to his knowledge Lord Cromer, the maker of modern Egypt, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, and Sir Claude Macdonald, three of the most outstanding men who ever worked in the British service, had never told a lie.

He then proceeded with his enunciation of some of the cardinal necessities of a good diplomatist, stressing the fact that such men avoided being credited with scoring diplomatic victories. To do so, Sir Francis contended, left a spirit of rancor among one's rivals and eventually resulted in their working against the best interests of the victor's country.

TRIBUTE TO SPEAKER

Tribute to the work of Sir Francis was paid by W. H. M. Haldane, president of the club, who spoke of the speaker's record in various missions and to the fact that he was closely connected with Victoria through Lindley and Arthur Crease, his cousins. Stirring times had been seen by Sir Francis, Mr. Haldane stated, reminding his audience the guest had been in the British corps at Petrograd during the war and at the time of the Russian revolution, and had also been in Athens when Greece abolished its monarchy.

In thanking the speaker, John Cochrane, chairman of the speakers' committee, paid tribute to Sir Francis as a diplomatist and spoke of the opportunities in his chosen work. When Sir Francis reached Japan, Mr. Cochrane stated, Canada would have two ambassadors there. In closing he wished the visitor every success in his new post.

Minister of Lands Says Extensive Trade Campaign Necessary For B.C.

The opening for British Columbia lumber on the English market was outlined by Hon. N. S. Lougheed, Minister of Lands, in an address yesterday evening to the Women's Conservative Association.

In the Old Country, said the minister, there was a growing sentiment against the convict-made lumber of Russia and in favor of trade within the Empire. Now was the time to place before the British consumer the merits of B.C. and Canadian timber through an extensive trade campaign. Although Russia was a serious competitor of B.C. at the present time, there was every indication that the five-year plan was breaking down and when it did, her big lumber orders would go elsewhere.

Mr. Lougheed dealt with the extent of B.C.'s lumber resources, pointing out that the stock of Douglas fir, if cutting continued at the present rate, would last only twenty years before cutting of second growth must start. In Europe, he said, this situation would be met by reduction in the size of the annual cut, but in B.C. this would throw men out of employment and cause shutting down of some mills. The alternative was to create a greater market for the other species of timber in the province, such as cedar and hemlock. This would necessitate an aggressive campaign of trade extension carried on over a number of years to break down prejudices in the chief lumber markets.

An optimistic note in connection with the new Australian treaty was sounded by the minister. Under this agreement Canadian lumber would enjoy a preferential tariff and B.C. would get nearly 100 per cent of the box trade, giving hemlock a chance. He pointed out that in recent years the B.C. lumber trade with Australia had increased by about 4,000,000,000 feet per year, which meant employment of an extra 1,000 men per year.

Mr. Lougheed sounded an optimistic note during his address.

"I believe in the future of this country; I am not pessimistic, but confident that there will be good times in British Columbia yet," he said, after concluding his review.

He made passing reference to the present deliberations by the government on unemployment, mentioning the big part the lumber industry could play in this regard.

Princes of Wales Form Subject of New Book By Mrs. Thornton Cook

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

London, June 16.—Half-forgotten figures of history flit across the entertaining pages of Mrs. E. Thornton Cook's "Kings in the Making," published here by John Murray. "Kings in the Making" is the story of the twenty Princes of Wales from the first Edward of Carnarvon to the eldest son of George V. But in the latest addition to her series of historical romances Mrs. Thornton Cook does more than present princes to act in a swelling scene. They live and move in their foibles as in their strength. They cross the stage, eagerly human.

TO "DANSE AND SYNGE"

So, at the age of six, Edward the Black Prince is taught to "sitte at mete seemly in all nurture." At ten, he is expected to "danse and synge and speke of gentlenesse." At fourteen, he should "go hunt and dere to match and hardynesse. And everid dkiehis armous and essale in fete of armes." In 1346 the Black Prince leads an English army as it pours across the Somme. In the Great War history repeats itself. British troops are again on the Somme, although as allies of France. A Prince of Wales is with them.

London noisily celebrates the accession of Richard Plantagenet, who became Richard II. Leading citizens press into the great hall to play dice with "London's Prince." Dice are flung on the table all "so obligingly contrived." That Richard always "won whether he cast at them or they at him." The people groan under his exactions. Richard surrounds parliament with 4,000 archers. Bolingbroke appears with a mere handful of followers in three borrowed ships yet skilled in the art of propaganda. Richard resigns. Parliament chooses Bolingbrooke in his stead.

SMALL FEE FOR "WISE WOMEN"

When Henry of Monmouth (Henry V) was born, so Mrs. Thornton Cook tells us, his chance of being either prince or kink was so small that a fee of only £2 was considered sufficient for the "wise woman" who officiated at his arrival.

At the age of three Henry is carried in state to open Parliament, where he "shirked and cryed." At nine, he is taken to see the trial of Joan of Arc. But an outraged nature had her way. Henry's mind is unhinged. He was a "prince of no doubt of excellent parts in their kind, though not of parts kindly for a prince."

The son of Edward IV is born in sanctuary, christened and baptised with "small pomp like a poor man's child."

"He is so ugly that I am ashamed of him," says Queen Henrietta of her baby son, who became Charles II. "But," she added, "his size and fatness supply his lack of beauty." At ten, Prince Charles takes his seat in the House of Lords. From the shelter of a hedge he watches his ill-fated father raise the Royalist standard at Edgehill. In exile, Commonwealth agents report of him as being "forced to eat his dinner in a tavern, not having the commodity of dining at home." Sir Edward Hyde even has to pay the postage on his letters.

And in a later chapter one learns how small events loom large in history. When a daughter was born to the Duke of Kent, there was dispute over her name. As the Czar of Russia was a sponsor, tact decreed that the little princess should have Alexandrina as her first name with Georgina coming second. But the prince regent (afterward George IV) was obdurate. Georgina should come second to none.

So, "in debault of a better name," the child was christened Victoria.

WIN DAMAGES FROM PRODUCER

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK

Los Angeles, June 16.—Mme Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famous opera singer, and her son Ferdinand, were awarded judgments in superior court yesterday in their breach of contract suits against Edwin Carewe, motion picture producer. The diva got judgment for the $75,000 she asked. Her son was awarded $500 of the $11,000 he sought.

The suits grew out of a plan to produce a motion picture in German and English which was to feature the singer and her son. They said they went to work and were not paid for waiting. She testified she lost a full season of concert engagements because of the unfilled contract made with Carewe October 2, 1929.

Carewe's defence was that production of the picture depended entirely on the ability of a British company to finance the undertaking.

SMART WEDDING AT CEDAR HILL CHURCH TO-DAY

Honeymoon at Banff; Will Reside at "Westways," Uplands

A smart wedding of widespread interest was solemnized at St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, at 11.30 o'clock this morning, when Marjorie Kathleen, eldest daughter of Rev. Septimus Ryall, rector of St. Luke's, and Mrs. Ryall, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Colonel Herbert T. Goodland, C.B., D.S.O., of "Westways," Uplands, by Venerable E. P. Laycock, Archdeacon of Columbia, assisted by the bride's father. Col. Goodland had a distinguished war record and after the war served for a number of years as Deputy Controller to the Imperial War Graves Commission in France.

For the ceremony the little church was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, the arrangement of foxgloves, roses and spires on the altar and chancel rails, and the clusters of pink and white sweet peas, tied with tulle, which marked the guest pews, representing the handiwork of the members of the choir.

A BEAUTIFUL BRIDE

Given in marriage by her brother, Dr. D. B. Ryall, the bride was beautiful in her wedding gown of white panne velvet, fashioned with simplicity. The long-sleeved bodice was made with a V-shaped neck and adorned at the point with a spray of white velvet leaves. In front it merged into the skirt with no perceptible waistline and at the back a bloused effect imparted a novel note of union with the skirt, which fell in very full soft folds to the floor. A court train of silk net fell from the shoulders and bore on its hem a large true lover's knot in orange blossoms. An exquisite old Limerick three-cornered lace shawl, an heirloom in the bride's family, was worn as the wedding veil, which was held in cap-fashion to her head with a strand of orange blossoms at the back with clusters of the blossoms at each ear. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, swansonia and white sweet peas.

The Misses Grace and Miriam Ryall, sisters of the bride, were the only attendants, and were dressed in frocks of organdie, fashioned alike, Miss Grace Ryall wearing pale yellow organdie and Miss Miriam Ryall pale green. The frocks were artistic in design, made with sleeveless, short-waisted bodices, with square necklines and cape collars, while the long skirts had peplums at the hiplines. Crushed girdles of taffeta ribbon to match the gowns encircled the waists and large bows with long streamers of the ribbon were caught at the right side of each gown. Each wore a hat made of organdie to match their frocks, made with low crowns, flaring brims hemstitched at the edges, with crushed bows of ribbon placed beneath the raised brims. They carried bouquets of mauve sweet peas and Laddie carnations.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. E. Goodland, and the ushers were Messrs. Philip Vaucher, Peter and Paul Phillips and Hugh Aylmer.

The organist of St. Luke's, Mr. W. H. Barcham, played the wedding music. Two hymns were sung, the processional, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us," and, during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love."

RECEPTION AT PARISH HALL

Following the ceremony at the church, a reception was held in St. Luke's Parish Hall, where a large number of guests assembled to offer their hearty felicitations. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving their guests by Mrs. Ryall, mother of the bride, in a smart frock of navy and white eyelet linen batiste and navy blue Baku hat, trimmed with linen motif, and by Mrs. S. R. Stevens, cousin of the groom, wearing a gown of flowered crepe de Chine in colorings of black and green, and black hat.

In honor of the occasion, the parish hall had been transformed into a bower of flowers, artistically arranged by Mrs. E. H. Bird, whose handiwork combined a profusion of summer flowers with delphiniums, foxgloves, roses, Canterbury bells predominating. The table from which the wedding breakfast was served extended the full length of the hall and was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, surrounded by mauve tulle, dusted with silver confetti, while yellow tapers in silver candelabra and rosebuds and carnations in silver vases, lent a further artistic touch to the table appointments.

Colonel and Mrs. Goodland left on the afternoon boat for Vancouver en route to Banff, where the honeymoon will be spent. For traveling the bride wore a New York model ensemble of patterned silk in black and white colorings, with coral red blouse and red sash, and a close-fitting hat of straw crochet. A costume necklace of small silver medallions inset with coral and black enamel, and earrings to match, completed the traveling attire.

On their return to Victoria, Colonel and Mrs. Goodland will reside at "Westways," Uplands.

Among the many out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Dr. and Mrs. F. Buller of Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Donald, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Anketell-Jones, Mrs. M. Bowes-Scott, all of Chemainus; Captain and Mrs. Douglas Groves of Westholme, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dunn of Crofton, Miss Kitchen of Nanaimo, Miss Jean Drynan of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. G. Forbes of Parksville, Mr. Oswald Ryall of Vancouver, brother of the bride, and Mrs. and Miss Owen of Vancouver.

BUSINESS CLUB HEARS REPORTS

Federation Matters Discussed at Meeting Yesterday Evening

Matters of particular interest to business women which are to be discussed at the forthcoming national convention in Montreal in July were considered at the monthly meeting of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club held in the headquarters yesterday evening. Mrs. E. G. Maynard, the president, in the chair. Miss Clay, who will represent the local club at the Canadian Federation meeting brought a number of suggestions to the attention of the club, and was instructed as to how to vote on the various matters under discussion. Announcement was made that the Nanaimo Club had made application to join the federation, this being received with much applause.

REPORTS PRESENTED

Very gratifying reports were presented of the recent May 24 banquet, at which 115 sat down, and all those who assisted in its success were cordially thanked, a special word of praise being accorded to Miss Lacey, Mrs. Margaret Stewart and Mrs. Sweeny for their indefatigable work in connection with the Sunday reception. A report was also given of the recent "bean supper." Mrs. Maynard, Miss Thornley, Miss Shaw and Miss Pogson were warmly thanked for their contribution to its success, and the secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to P. B. Schmeelk for his kindly assistance.

Miss McLaren reported for the Service Clubs Council, and the meeting unanimously decided to endorse the proposal to bring the Seattle Symphony Orchestra for a return visit next fall. Mrs. Hall and Miss Shaw were appointed to the special committee to discuss the proposed visit of the Irish Players. Miss Van Becker reported on the proposed miniature golf tournament, and members desirous of playing on the teams are asked to communicate with Miss Van Becker or Miss Shaw.

TO SHOW TRAVEL FILMS

Miss Elsie Richardson told of the successful garden party held at the Children's Aid Home. Much correspondence was read by Miss Paul. An appeal was made for wool to be made by Mrs. McCrea into an afghan for the clubrooms.

Tentative arrangements were also made for the showing of travel films on June 29, Mrs. Lamport being appointed convener of the committee in charge of this matter. Mrs. Maynard reported on her attendance at the Social Service Workers' Conference at Sunshine Camp, also at the Rotary Club installation and the Aeronautical Club's luncheon. Mrs. H. J. Schramli was ballotted into membership.

J. D. M'NIVEN IS HONORED

A purse of gold and a handsome smoking set with a case of pipes, together with an illuminated address in eulogistic terms, were presented to James D. McNiven, Deputy Minister of Labor, at a pleasing little ceremony in the Parliament Buildings yesterday, on the eve of his retirement after long service under the Dominion and Provincial Governments. The presentation, made by Miss Mabel Cameron of the Department of Labor, was the joint gift of the united staffs under Mr. McNiven's direction and a few well-wishers, and Senator Gideon E. Robertson and Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Labor, were present at the ceremony, and added their congratulations to Mr. McNiven and commended his long and faithful service.

Adam Bell, former member of the Minimum Wage Board, who will succeed Mr. McNiven as Deputy Minister, spoke of his pleasant associations with Mr. McNiven, and testified to his popularity with all with whom he had been brought in contact.

Officials of the Employment Service of Canada, including Ottawa, Vancouver and Victoria officers, were present at the ceremony, and added their personal congratulations to Mr. McNiven.

Esquimalt Silver Tea.—Under the auspices of the Esquimalt subdivision of the Catholic Women's League, a silver and membership tea will be held on Friday from 3 till 6 o'clock at the hall of Our Lady Queen of Peace. Mrs. M. Fagan, president, will be general convener, assisted by Mrs. C. Deausy.

YOUR BABY and MINE

by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

CHILDREN SHOULD DECIDE UNIMPORTANT QUESTIONS

If the mother must always have her way, a child, to live at all, must learn to give. In the case of such domination two things are likely to result: The mother, who finds how easy it is to boss, will take unfair advantage of the child and become a petty tyrant; and the child so dominated will never develop sufficient courage to decide any question alone.

Let us suppose that a child has always been dominated by such a mother. What happens when that child has children? She may in turn become a tyrant, or she may let the children tyrannize her. There seems to be no placid middle-stream of behavior.

CANNOT MANAGE CHILDREN

A Helpless Mother outlines that situation. She writes: "Will mothers ever be educated not to dominate their children? I have a friend who bosses every move her child makes. I, for one, think it a crime.

"My mother dominated me until, at the age of twenty-five and the mother of a strong-willed girl of five and a boy of seven, I am unable to make my children mind. I do not know how. I do not want to beat them when I say 'mind,' and I cannot hold out against their determination to have their own way and always end up by saying 'Yes.' I don't know how to say 'No' and stick to it.

"Mother wasn't cruel—a better mother never lived—but she was brought up that way, too. At no time am I able to carry on in the face of opposition, though I am positive I am correct. Please do not think me foolish, but I wanted you to know how a dominated individual feels.

"My children are not spoiled, so they tell me, though I am so wishy-washy. I try to reason with them and let them express their side of the question. Thanks for letting a foolish mother trouble you."

LET CHILDREN MAKE DECISIONS

Your own emotions, your indecision, and your inability to hold to your opinion trouble you, not the results of them. If you are correct, the results so far have been excellent.

There is no disadvantage in letting children think things out and decide for themselves. There is danger, however, in not being able to stop them if their decisions are harmful or undesirable. You should have "spunk" enough for that. You yourself have never had the experience of deciding how a thing should be done and then seeing the results of that decision. Your mother did that for you, thus really depriving you of one of life's most valuable experiences.

Your problem is to know when it is all right to let the children think for themselves, and when you, as their guide and director and superior in knowledge, have a right to step in and say, "It had better be done this way," or "It cannot be done." If you can separate these really vital situations from those in which the children can think and act upon their own decisions, you have won the battle.

To-morrow: "Importance of Prenatal Care Cannot Be Over-emphasized."

She Rose to Fame Quickly, But Actually After Long, Hard Struggle

New York, June 16.—Tin Pan Alley's latest "find" is a mere youngster from Louisiana.

Her name is Dana Suess, and she is just about eighteen years old. Yet she already has to her credit three of the year's outstanding song hits, which is considerably more than most of the old-timers of the music industry can boast. "Whistling in the Dark," for instance is among the four or five best sellers of the moment. And after that came "Ho-Hum," a summer number that arrived appropriately for the yawning season. A number of the most popular bands immediately snapped it up for radio and dance presentation. Prior to that, the youngest and newest of Tin Pan Alley's struggling army had stepped out with "What Has Become of That Moon?" To say nothing of a dozen now reported ready for the music presses, and several more being considered by music show producers.

Like most of Manhattan's "discoveries," it all appears to have happened overnight. As a matter of fact, the usual long, slow discouraging climb had to be made.

She arrived in New York from Shreveport and way points as a "child prodigy" of the piano. With her mother, who was both a companion and manager, she settled down to crash the stubborn gates of the big city. Her first engagements were at women's clubs, dinners and private gatherings. This was four or five years ago. Already she had composed a dozen numbers of a classical nature, attracting first attention with "Syncopated Love Song," written for symphonic orchestration.

It has only been within the past year or so that the youngster turned her hand to the composing of more topical tunes.

Speaking of newcomers, the year's crop has been slightly under normal—but then, the number of new Broadway productions has been particularly slim.

The case of Lyda Roberti is one of those spectacular theatrical sensations not likely to occur more than once in a year. From a wandering circus performer in Europe, traveling with her father's troupe, she reached New York after a career in the "small time" circuits. She came to Brooklyn with one of the Fanchon and Marco groups made up in Hollywood for the film theatre chains.

There she was discovered by Lou Holtz and given a comedy part in "You Said It." On the opening night she "stopped the show." Since then she has been officially adopted as one of Broadway's pets.

More recently there has arrived a certain Miss Margaret Sullavan and a charming southern dialect and every prospect of a successful future. She had been cast in a road show production of "Strictly Dishonorable," but Broadway knew little about her until the tour ended and she got a chance in "A Modern Virgin." The raves of the critics will ring in her ears for many a day to come.

And Jimmy Cagney, one of our Broadway lads, seems to be just about as good a bet as Hollywood has cashed in on this season. He was by no means in the stellar circles when he entertained for the movie capital some months ago, just a bit timid as to what he would do out there. Then he appeared suddenly as the tough gang kid in "Public Enemy," as neat a performance as any newcomers has delivered.

ARRANGE I.O.D.E. DANCE AT UPLANDS

MISS RHODA CLARK

The Major John Hebden Gillespie Chapter I.O.D.E. will hold one of its popular flannel dances on Friday evening at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, the arrangements being in charge of Miss Sheret, second vice-regent, and Miss Clark, secretary. The dance is an annual event and the proceeds are devoted to charity. Tickets may be obtained from Justa McKenna, Beth Grimison, Bea Hicks, Rowena Horsey, Janet Pearce, Margaret Moxam, Margaret Mackie, Doris and Pat Rines, Elaine Galliher, Gwen Wood and Florence Whitney.

Garden Party—Mrs. G. W. Carr of Tyndal Avenue, Gordon Head, offered her beautiful home and garden for the use of the St. Aidan's Ladies' Guild last Wednesday, an ideal place for such an event. There was a large attendance of friends of the church, as well as neighbors and personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Carr. Tea was served on the lawn and in the dining-room, during which a splendid programme was given. Those taking part were Mrs. W. Crowther, readings; Miss Marjorie Watson, vocal solos; Mrs. J. B. Hudson and class, dance numbers; Mrs. J. C. Williams and Miss Winnie Boorman, vocal solos, with Mrs. C. F. Dawson, accompanist. The financial results were most satisfactory, and the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Carr was much appreciated.

FETE AT HATLEY PARK POSTPONED

Owing to the uncertain weather, the annual garden party of the Florence Nightingale Chapter I.O.D.E., which was to have been held at Hatley Park to-morrow, has been postponed until a later date.

JUNIOR W.A. OF ST. JOSEPH'S HAD SPLENDID YEAR

At the annual meeting of the Junior Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital held in the auditorium of the Nurses' Home recently, the new officers elected were as follows: President, Miss Betty O'Brien; vice-president, Miss Justa McKenna; secretary, Miss Gwen Dorman; treasurer, Miss Florence Oates; councillors, Miss Claire Moody, Miss Una Robertson and Miss Rhoda Goward.

Miss Sehl gave a report regarding the excursion on June 3 to Seattle, which was sponsored by the Junior Auxiliary, and which had proved so successful. The reports of the treasurer and secretary covering the work of the year were read, and Miss Sehl, retiring president, gave a complete resume of the activities of the Junior Auxiliary for the year 1930-1. At the close of her address Miss Sehl handed over the reins of office to her successor, Miss Betty O'Brien, with every good wish for her success.

ENTERTAINED BY SISTERS

Preceding the annual meeting the Junior Auxiliary members were the guests of the Sisters of St. Ann at a delightful little supper party. The tables, arranged in horseshoe form, were dainty and artistic with decorations of pastel shaded sweet peas, with the soft glow of blue and yellow tapers in silver sconces. At the head of the table was seated the Sister Superior as guest of honor, with Miss Betty O'Brien, president-elect, on her right and Miss Marguerite Sehl and Miss Margaret Adam, retiring president, and vice-president, respectively, on her left.

Miss Sehl was presented by Miss Adam with a lovely corsage bouquet of cream roses, and in a happy little speech, Miss Adam thanked her for her untiring efforts during her two years of office. Regret was also expressed at the coming loss to the Junior Auxiliary of their past president and devoted member. Miss Sehl, in responding, assured her fellow members of the auxiliary that her interest in the work would remain always the same and wished them long continued success in all their activities.

Sister Superior spoke a few words of congratulation and appreciation and encouragement. The progress made by the Junior Auxiliary during the first two years of its existence was very marked, and on behalf of herself and the hospital staff she thanked them for their gift of the electric refrigerator, which the Junior Auxiliary has now been able to present to the children's ward of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Later in the evening and following the annual business meeting, the members were invited by the newly-elected president to attend a small bridge party at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lloyd Morgan. Five tables were in play and the prizes, presented by Miss Marguerite Sehl, were won by Miss Margaret Adam and Miss Mary Hunter. The bridge party was voted a delightful first meeting of what promises to be a very successful year.

Goforth Mission Band Entertains

The Golden Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their closing meeting for the summer on Saturday afternoon and entertained members of the W.M.S. and other friends with a well-conducted business meeting and an interesting programme. A missionary playlet was presented by a group of girls who formed a pretty picture in their costumes representing their sisters in foreign lands and at home. Little Dorothy Fuller sang sweetly and Marian Wingate pleased with a piano solo.

A wonderful display of work, garments, scrapbooks, dolls and toys covered a table. These are destined to convey comfort and joy to a mission field in India. In appreciation of being asked to this meeting, the W.M.S. served ice cream, cake and tea, and everybody enjoyed a pleasant social hour, and were glad to welcome as a guest Mrs. Dill of Toronto, Mission Band secretary for the W.M.S., who had spoken to the children at the close of their programme.

When the veteran missionaries, Dr. and Mrs. Goforth, passed through Victoria on their return to their field in Manchuria, they gave warm greeting to the name sake band who assembled at the wharf when the Empress of Canada came in from Vancouver.

EX-PROFESSOR NOW JUVENILE COURT REFEREE

Dr. Eleanor R. Wembridge Works in "Best Class Room of All"

Says Sympathetic Understanding Essential to Help Prodigals

Cleveland, June 16.—A juvenile court, where human problems more real and vital than any between the covers of textbooks present themselves, has become a class room now to Dr. Eleanor Rowland Wembridge, former college professor.

As referee of the Juvenile Court of Cuyahoga County here, she has had an opportunity to apply—with outstanding success—the principles of psychology which she once dispensed in halls of learning.

HUMAN UNDERSTANDING

And when morons and neurotics and youthful delinquents come before her, she is able to give them a human understanding coupled with scientific knowledge.

She has written four books which prove that she is much more interested in the boys and girls as people than as problems, and she has shown that she is wise to their weaknesses, as they sit in front of her desk and talk.

Dr. Wembridge believes that it takes common sense, symphty, a sense of humor, and a genuine desire to help if you are going to inspire a prodigal to reach a little higher.

A HOUSEWIFE, TOO

And her books as well as her results prove that she has them.

Incidentally, she manages a charming home along Lake Erie, tells stories to her own small daughter, swims and golfs and attends the theatre with her husband, and bakes her own bread, just because she likes the crusted loaves!

She is proof that a woman can have a career, even one made up of the human equation, enjoy a family, and get a kick out of life every minute of it.

Most people have an idea, Dr. Wembridge has discovered, that a person must be either of normal intelligence or an utter imbecile. That isn't true, she will tell you. There are all sorts of stages of intelligence. If the mentality of a boy or girl is too meagre for the demands life makes on him or her, and if they can't get properly organized, they simply can't meet the test. And so we have morons, neurotics, and all the rest. In fact, she says that we brush arms with them much more often than we realize.

NEED FOR SYMPATHY

"The great number of boys and girls who come to the juvenile court are below the intelligence of children of early school age," she explains. "They need personal understanding and sympathy. All cases are handled through personal contact. The people sit across from me and I attempt to form an opinion of the boy or girl and the problem so we can help."

No boy or girl goes before Dr. Wembridge until a physical examination and another one to test mentality have been given.

IS PSYCHOLOGIST

Dr. Wembridge is a graduate of Radcliffe College, where she majored in psychology. She received her doctor's degree from the same institution. Then she taught at Mt. Holyoke and at Read College. She has also served as psychologist for a girls' bureau.

"I was married the year the World War broke out," she relates. "My husband went into the army. I served in the Surgeon General's office during the war, organizing hospitals and doing educational promotion work.

"When we moved to Cleveland I missed my work. I heard that the Juvenile Court of Cleveland needed a referee, so I applied. That was in 1921 At that time not very many people were holding such positions."

ANSWERED OPPORTUNITY'S CALL

If you keep your interest in life, and your profession, refuse to get into a rut even when you aren't following the old routine of a full-time job, you will have ample opportunity to use whatever you know, she has found. Opportunity will come knocking. It did for her, and gave her the position she has now.

"This particular position required someone whose time was flexible, as it is necessary to be in court two days a week. It really was just an accident that I happened to get into this work. I never had thought of it before. I had an opporunity to manage my home and do the work in which I was interested."

Sitting in as a referee on domestic mishaps and mistakes instead of teaching the college students what it is all about is just another way of applying psychology, Dr. Wembridge has found.

"Wildcat" Pete Issues Challenge to Ernie Arthur for Mat Match

WHEN the horse races were called off at the Colwood track yesterday it was the first time in the history of racing in British Columbia, as far as the writer has been able to learn, that a day's card has been canceled through the activities of Jupiter Pluvius. Of course, yesterday's rainfall was something out of the ordinary—the heaviest for sixty years. One of the main advertising features of the races has been the phrase "Seven races daily; rain or shine." This was one time the officials had to back down on their statement, but the circumstances were exceptional. It would have been impossible to stage the card yesterday. The track was an overgrown duck pond. It was full of holes and the gumbo was a foot thick. It would have been suicidal to have sent horses out to run, and the officials did the best thing possible in calling off the programme.

The rain played havoc with all the week-end sport events. Saturday's cricket was called off, while the six matches scheduled Saturday and Sunday in the Vancouver Island Tennis League were rained out.

In the midst of another great winning streak, Washington's Senators stepped out last week to show the other major league baseball teams just how it is done. The Senators won seven straight games only to find the champion Philadelphia Athletics still ahead of them in the standings and right on their heels for weekly honors. The A's turned in six victories and one defeat. New York and Boston each won three games and lost one to complete the domination of the eastern clubs of the American League over the West.

In the National League a far closer race developed, three clubs tying for the week's record. Cincinnati, New York Giants and Chicago each won five games and lost two. The Boston Braves won four games and lost three to complete the first division of the week. Down at the bottom of the scale, the Chicago White Sox and Detroit each lost five straight games in the American, while the Phillies and Pittsburgh gained only one victory apiece in five games in the National circuit.

Washington not only won more games than any other club in either league, but also scored more runs, sending sixty-one counters across the plate, were second in total hits with eighty-two and did some of the week's best fielding and defensive work. The Athletics hit safely eighty-five times and led both leagues in home runs, clouting seven. However, they also made the greatest number of errors of any team, eleven.

Cincinnati and New York not only were tied for the National League lead in games won and lost, but they also divided two more first places by scoring forty-two runs each on eighty-one hits. The Reds got a trifle the better of the argument by allowing their opponents only nine runs in four games. Washington's opponents scored eighteen times in seven contests. The Detroit Tigers were the week's low scoring team, tallying only ten runs, while the Chicago White Sox showed the greatest defensive weakness, allowing their rivals fifty-seven counters.

Earl Sande, the most popular of all jockeys in the United States, has opened another of his many comeback campaigns. The famous rider has made his reappearance at the present Belmont Park meeting. At the conclusion of the 1930 racing season, which was very successful, financially and otherwise, for Sande, he announced that he was through, that reducing to riding weight was too severe, and he took up voice culture, later going into the movies. Sande's success with Gallant Fox when the Woodward thoroughbred won nine of his ten races, was the big feature of the year's racing. Sande netted over $30,000 by getting ten per cent of the colt's winnings, which totaled $308,275. $308,275.

The Sports Editor is in receipt of a letter from "Wildcat" Pete, well-known junior middleweight wrestler of Eugene, Oregon, in which he issues a direct challenge to Ernie Arthur, well-known Canadian mat star. Pete, whose real name is George Andres Pertula, accuses Arthur of evading a match with him. The correspondence has been turned over to Fred Richardson, local promoter. Maybe Fred will arrange a match between the pair, and then we'll just see how good Pete is.

Critics Figure Winnipeg Boy Robbed of Decision in Ten-round Bout With "Slapsey Maxie" at Toronto Yesterday Evening; Promoter Corcoran Making Arrangements for Championship Bout Between Pair; Judges Give Maxie Unanimous Decision; Majority of Fans and Ringside Critics Give Belanger Edge

Canadian Press

Toronto, June 16—Following his splendid showing against Maxie Rosenbloom, world light heavyweight champion of New York, in the Queensbury Athletic Club's headline attraction here yesterday evening, Charlie Belanger, Canadian titleholder, will be given an opportunity to meet Rosenbloom in a championship match.

Will Get Chance At World Title

of Winnipeg, and holder of the Canadian light heavyweight championship, who is in line for a title with Maxie Rosenbloom, world champion, following his fine showing against the latter at Toronto yesterday evening.

Negotiations between Rosenbloom and Promoter Jack Corcoran are proceeding to-day. Belanger is anxious to meet "Slapsey Maxie" again following yesterday's hectic tussle which Rosenbloom won by the unanimous decision of the judges. The majority of the 6,000 fans and most of the ringside critics, however, were of the opinion Belanger outpointed the world titleholder in at least five of the ten rounds; in two frames he appeared to hold his own, while in the other three, the first two and the last, Rosenbloom's frequent slaps gave him a slight margin.

The bout like the balance of the programme, was one of the best seen here in years. Belanger, a notoriously slow starter, landed enough solid blows to Rosenbloom's head and body to offset the flashy attack of the New Yorker in the first two rounds.

BELANGER RALLIES

Rosenbloom tore into Belanger in Earnest during the third and fourth rounds, and while he outpointed the hard-hitting Winnipeg boxer and staggered him once with a hard right to the jaw in the third, the Canadian rallied cleverly at the end of each round to almost square matters.

Starting the fifth round there was never any doubt as to who was the better man. Belanger rocked the champion with a vicious attack to the head and body and won the next four rounds by convincing margins. He eased up in the tenth and Rosenbloom, under the anxious urging of his handlers, loosed another volley of cuffs and slaps to Belanger's head to probably influence the judges in their unpopular decision.

As the bout was an overweight affair the Canadian champion was forced to enter the ring several pounds over his best fighting weight. He scaled 179 and Rosenbloom 177¼.

George Sidders of Montreal, former welterweight champion of Canada made an impressive start on his comeback campaign by knocking out Ronnie Headley, clever Ottawa leather pusher, forty seconds after the start of the third round of their six-round semi-final engagement.

Famous Canadian Sculler May Challenge Ted Phelps For World Title

Putney, Eng., June 16.—"Will Bob turn professional?" That is the question now agitating followers of sculling with regard to Bob Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., and formerly of Australia, who is now training for the Diamond Sculls, emblematic of the world's amateur sculling championship, and Putney is agog with conjectures.

English oarsmen think Pearce is not so good as he was when he won the British Empire championship at Hamilton last year, and knowing watersiders are cherishing hopes of a sensation in the Diamonds by watching Bobby, the overwhelming favorite, go down to defeat. He went to Marlow to-day for the Mile Sculls on Saturday, and after that, if Pearce did turn professional, the world would see some great tussles between Phelps and Bobby. At Hamilton, the latter simply walked away with the singles events, pulling up at the finish.

Phelps is an outstanding sculler. He won the championship by defeating Bert Barry in 1930, winning by thirty-six lengths in a four-and-a-half-mile race. Later, he again defeated Barry.

Some even say Pearce only came here to drain the sweet cup of success as an amateur by winning the Diamonds before challenging Ted Phelps, the world's professional championship. Bob

Royals Lucky To Gain Draw With Capilano

Vancouver, June 16.—New Westminster Royals, Dominion soccer football champions, nearly lost their hold on the title when yesterday evening they were held to a two-goal draw by Capilano, Vancouver and District League Second Division team. In a second-round game in this year's Dominion playdowns. At that, the Royals were lucky to escape defeat, Capilano missing what would have been the winning goal just before time by a matter of inches.

The Capilano youngsters were allowed the Canadian titleholders to get settled down and were on top of the ball throughout. Royals led 1 to 0 at half time, but within five minutes after the start of the second half Capilano had taken a 2 to 1 lead. Twenty minutes later Royals tied it up at two apiece.

Ascot, Eng., June 16.—F. H. W. Cundell's Noble Star to-day won the Ascot Stakes.

Montague Evans's Bluevision was second, and M. E. De Starlay's Bonny Boy was third. Twenty-one horses ran.

Noble Star, by Hapsburg from Hesper, won by three-quarters of a length. There was half a length between the second and third horses. The winner took the $10,000 stakes with no extras, over the two-mile course.

The betting was 10 to 1, 20 to 1, and 100 to 7.

The Aga Khan's Pomme Dapi, one of the disappointments of the derby, led a classy field home in the Gold Vase.

Pomme Dapi, a son of Zionist out of Pomare, finished four lengths in front of Captain Cohn's Amfotas, which was a like distance ahead of D. Grossman's Whincover. Amfortas was the 3 to 1 favorite, but the Aga Khan's color bearer paid 4 to 1, while Whincover closed at 10 to 1. The race over the two miles was worth £1,000 sterling with the vase valued at £250 sterling.

William Woodward's Sir Audrey won the Prince of Wales stake.

Canadian Stars Are Defeated In Lacrosse Series

Baltimore, Md., June 16.—The Canadian All-stars defeated St. John's, Annapolis, United States representatives yesterday evening in a lacrosse game, 1 to 0, but lost the international series 5 to 3. Aggregate goals decided the match and St. John's took the first game Saturday, 5 to 2.

The announcement of the formation of an international lacrosse league in the east between New York, Montreal and Toronto, has all the earmarks of being something big in the lacrosse line. Not only has the constitution of the league been built on the same basis as that of the National League, but, it is said, that many hockey men are behind the scheme. It was announced recently that Dunc Monro would be the manager of the new Maroon Lacrosse Club as well as the Maroon Hockey Club. Dunc was captain of the 1924 Canadian Olympic champion hockey team and knows lacrosse from the ground up. Paddy Brennam will quite likely be the coach and manager of the box-lacrosse club. On the directorate along with Munro is Gordon Cushing and Thomas Arnold.

Battalino In Fine Comeback

Hartford, Conn., June 16.—Floored in the second round for a count of nine and saved from a probable knockout by the bell, Bat Battalino, feather-weight champion of the world, came back to knock out Johnny Datto, Filipino fighter from Cleveland, Ohio, in the fifth round of a ten-round battle at the Hurley Stadium yesterday evening.

Battalino's title was not at stake as he weighed 133½ pounds, while Datto tipped the beam at 127.

Italian "Man Mountain" Scores Knockout Over Ponderous Irishman in First Round of Their Scheduled Ten-round Battle at Brooklyn; Twenty Thousand See Jimmy Johnston's Show; Sharkey Congratulates Winner; Ernie Schaaf Knocks Out Gagnon in First Round; Renault Badly Beaten

New York, June 16—Primo Carnera doesn't like the rain, it seems. Twenty thousand fight fans piled into Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, yesterday evening to see Primo battle Pat Redmond, a giant Irishman, almost as big as Primo himself. It was raining a bit and a real shower seemed imminent.

So Primo went to work. Two minutes and twenty-four seconds after the first round started the big Venetian was on his way to the dressing rooms. Over in Redmond's corner, the Irishman's handlers were trying to revive him. They succeeded.

Redmond never had a chance. Primo's first punch, a right, put the six feet four inch Irishman down for eight. Another right to the jaw finished proceedings.

Carnera weighed 275 pounds, Redmond 246.

Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, who looms to have developed a punch all at once, knocked out his fellow townsman, Jack Gagnon, in forty-six seconds of the first round in the chief preliminary. Schaaf weighed 202½. Gagnon 203.

This bout, put on after the main go, was over none too soon, for it was raining steadily by the time the referee had completed his count on the prostrate Gagnon.

Carnera, whose weight was announced at 275 pounds, pushed the fighting from the bell, getting around with amazing ease for his size. He came out throwing punches, and the result was never in doubt after he connected with his first blow. Redmond's weight was announced as 246 pounds.

SHARKEY PRESENT

Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, who originally was scheduled to meet Carnera on to-night's programme, climbed into the ring to congratulate the winner as Redmond's seconds worked frantically to revive their man.

Ted Sandwina, Sioux City heavyweight, gained an eight-round decision over Tom Kirby, of Boston, in the opening preliminary.

It was a slow, grueling match that failed to excite the crowd. There were no knockdowns and neither was ever in danger of a knockout. Sandwina weighed 194½ and Kirby 191½.

CANADIAN BEATEN

Harold Mays of Bayonne, N.J., gave the veteran Jack Renault of Canada a beating in six rounds. The bout, originally scheduled for eight rounds, was cut to six in order that the main event might go on. Mays had Renault bleeding from the ears and generally cuffed him about, but could not put him on the floor. Renault scaled 210½. Mays 192.

BRIX BEATS BUT ONLY TIES MARK

Los Angeles Shot-putter Exceeds World Record But Can Only Claim a Tie

Los Angeles, June 16.—Herman Brix, Los Angeles Athletic Club shot-putter, yesterday stood in the position of having exceeded a world record, although officially he can only claim a tie

The former University of Washington star heaved the sixteen-pound shot fifty-two feet seven and one-half inches at the Taft, Cal., relays Saturday to tie the mark now credited by the National A.A.U. to Emil Hirschfeld of Germany.

Transposing fifty-two feet seven and one-half inches to the mertic system of measurement, it gives Brix a toss of 16.05 meters, while Hirchfeld actually threw the shot only 16.046 meters. Technically, Brix bettered Hirchfeld's mark by 4.100 of a meter, but he will get no metter than a tie when application is made for the National Amateur Athletic Union waived the difference between 16.046 meters and fifty-two feet seven and one-half inches when it recognized the German's figures.

New York, June 14.—Directors of the International Baseball League yesterday acted favorably on a proposal to bring the Pacific Coast League into the junior world series, now played between the winners of the International and American Association campaigns.

Washington Plays Championship Ball But Fails to Gain

Senators Have Won Thirteen of Their Fourteen Games Since June 1 But Still Remain Three Games Behind Philadelphia Athletics, American League Leaders; Washington Beat St. Louis 4 to 3 Yesterday; A's Trounced Cleveland 4 to 1; Boston Wins Only National League Clash From Chicago

Though winning ball games at a .929 clip, Washington has been unable to gain any measureable ground.

Since June 1, the Senators have accounted for thirteen of their fourteen games, winning the last ten, but they trail the Philadelphia Athletics by three full games. While the Senators have been setting a burning pace against the western clubs, the champions also have been playing ball, winning eleven of their last fourteen games.

The Senators chalked up their tenth straight yesterday at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, winning 4 to 3, after Fred Marberry had staged one of his famous relief acts. The big right-hander went into the game in the seventh with the score tied, two men on base and one out. He not only retired the Browns without allowing a run, but held them hitless for the remainder of the game, while his team mates put across the winning tally in the eighth.

A'S BEAT CLEVELAND

Keeping pace with the Johnson crew, the Athletics defeated the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 1, as they celebrated the raising of their 1930 world's championship pennant. Rube Walberg was on the mound for his tenth victory, as against two defeats. Willis Hudlin started for the Indians, but was relieved by Pete Donohue, recently released by the New York Giants, and making his debut in an American League uniform. He was hit for a home run by Todt.

The New York Yankees dropped a little deeper into third place, falling before the rejuvenated Detroit Tigers for the second straight game. The score was 8 to 5. Gehrig hit his eleventh home run and Chapman also connected with a circuit drive.

The Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox battled eleven innings before Boston gained a 3 to 2 decision. Bob Kline and Vic Frasier, a pair of rookies, went the route.

Only one game was played in the National League, but the Boston Braves edge a little closer to third place, taking their second consecutive game from the Chicago Cubs. With the Cubs unable to connect with Willie Sherdel's slow ball, the Braves won, 9 to 3. Wally Berger hit a home run to lead the attack against Bob Smith, Blake and Teachout. Cuyler got three of the Cubs' eight hits, connecting with a homer and two doubles.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington, June 16.—The Senators extended their winning streak to ten games yesterday by defeating St. Louis, 4 to 3. The Browns rallied in the seventh to score three runs and even the count, but Washington went ahead in the eighth with the deciding run.

The Canadian displayed a brilliant assortment of strokes yesterday in romping over his first round opponent, James Madden of Chicago, 6-1, 6-1.

Babe Hunt Beaten

Boston, June 16.—Paul Swiderski, Syracuse heavyweight, gave Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okla., a terrific battering to gain the decision in the Argonne A.A.'s ten-round feature bout here yesterday evening at Braves Field. Swiderski weighed 187½ and Hunt scaled 192.

SONS DEFEAT EAGLES IN A TAME AFFAIR

Second Place Team in Senior Baseball League Score 11 to 0 Victory

Cann Allows Eagles Two Scattered Hits; Bill Holman Poles Out Home Run

In a mediocre exhibition the Sons of Canada defeated the Eagles, 11 to 0, in their Senior Amateur Baseball League game at the Royal Athletic Park yesterday evening. The Sons by their victory kept on the heels of the fast-stepping Elks, league leaders.

Starting the game with only eight men, the Sons were forced to play through two innings with one fielder missing. Ray Parfitt then arrived and went to right field, Down going to second base. In the two opening innings the Sons played minus one infielder, Craig alternating between shortstop and second base, according to the style of the hitter.

The Sons scored two runs in the first inning and added six more in the second. In the latter inning Bill Holman lifted the ball out of the lot with one on the bases. The Sons ended their scoring by adding three more in the fifth.

CANN PITCHES WELL

Lloyd Cann, on the mound for the Sons, allowed the Eagles only two scattered hits. He struck out eight and walked a pair. Brousseau, who worked for the Eagles, was nicked for ten hits, struck out nine and walked five.

Cliff Hilton, the Sons' third baseman, led the hitters with three out of four.

Several Surprises In Selection of "Rep" Football Eleven

Veteran Shrimpton Lands Important Position In Goal

Wednesday League Netminder Gets Call in Preference to Louis De Costa and Tommy Bridges for Team to Oppose Touring Englishmen on June 24; Team Is Combination of Youngsters and Veterans; Peers Gets Centre-forward Berth; Officials Appointed

Officials of the Lower Island Football Association got their heads together yesterday evening at a meeting at the Y.M.C.A. and picked the "rep" team which will oppose the touring English Football Association players here on June 24. The selection is not exactly like the one the majority of fans expected, several familiar faces in former all-star elevens, being numbered among the missing. However, the club looks like a strong one and should do credit to Victoria against the tourists.

The match will be played at the Royal Athletic Park, commencing at 5.30 o'clock, with D. McMillan handling the whistle.

Right Fullback—Joe Crowe (Saanich Thistles).

Right Half—Tommy Smith (Victoria City).

Outside Right—Eddie Viggers (Saanich Thistles).

Inside Right—William Milligan (Victoria West).

Referee—D. McMillan; linesman, Joe Watt; head usher, P. C. Payne.

BIG SURPRISE

The biggest surprise was occasioned over the selection of the veteran Percy Shrimpton for goal. Shrimpton is one of the finest goalies that ever played here, but it was expected that Louis De Costa, brilliant youngster with the Esquimalt eleven, would be the choice for this important position. Shrimpton has had a great amount of experience and will no doubt fill the post in a creditable manner. He has played [illegible] Old Country [illegible] and proved a sensation.

Joe Crowe and George Leggett will make a formidable back division. Both are young and able to stand a fast pace. They are sure kickers and can use either foot in clearing. The halfback line is composed of reliable players who feed their forwards well. Smith, Gibbons and Boyd all played good soccer last season and deserve their positions.

YOUTH AND EXPERIENCE

On the forward line youth has been combined with experience. Pat Mulcahy at outside left and William Milligan at inside right are the veterans of the line. Both have played on previous "rep" teams and should have a steadying effect on the younger members. Mike Wagland, at inside left, has proven himself one of the best forwards ever developed here. He packs a terrific shot and is a fine ball handler. Peers should give a good account of himself at centre-forward in view of his fine play all season. He is tricky, can shoot and is not selfish. The fifth member of the forward line, Eddie Viggers at outside right, is another youngster who should handle himself well. He is fast and can centre the ball well. He should work well with Milligan.

Malcolmn McCaig of the Jokers was selected as manager of the team. The choice of all the players and other officials was voted on and every decision was unanimous.

The team will hold its first work-out on Saturday afternoon against an eleven playing under the colors of the Jokers. The time and grounds will be announced later.

RETURN TRACK MEET PLANNED

"Y" Team Will Seek Revenge Against Navy at High School Ground on Saturday

Out to avenge themselves for the defeat they suffered at the hands of the Navy track and field teams two weeks ago, Y.M.C.A. runners and jumpers will clash with the fast-moving bluejackets in a return meet at the High School grounds on Saturday.

In their first encounter the sailors took the "Y" boys by surprise and romped off with a 30 to 25 win, with Patterson starring in the junior division and Hibbert and McDonald carrying off some of the major honors in the senior class.

In the meet Saturday two more events will be added to the programme. They will be a half-mile junior in which "Muzz" Patrick, Bud Winslow and Bill Naysmith will carry the association's colors and the mile senior in which George Aldous, outstanding island runner over that distance, will perform.

GOOD MEN LINED UP

In addition to these men the "Y" will have young Joe Addison out for the century and probably the furlong, along with "Chuck" Copeland, Lynn Patrick and possibly Bill Crothall.

"In the longer races the Aldous brothers, "Chuck" Cunningham and one or two other lads will compete for the Y.M.C.A. in the senior division.

Among the juniors, Coach McKinnon is expected to pick Lorne McGregor, Ken Fleming, Ben Vesey, Ed Harmston, Bill Naysmith and "Muzz" Patrick.

There is also a possibility that Pete Burgoose, who showed up exceptionally well in winning the broad jump, but hurt his knee in the event, may be in shape for the return clash. Art Chapman may also be called in to compete in the high jump.

NAVY DARK HORSES

The Navy boys, as usual, are expected to be dark horses. Their strength can only be judged from what they did to the Y.M.C.A. early in the month. If they can spring another victory on Saturday, their power in the track and field circles of Victoria will be boosted sky high.

Under Petty Officer McDonald, who has starred both on local and eastern tracks, the bluejackets have been coming along in fine style and should give the association a good run for its money.

LEADER OF B.C. LIBERALS HEARD AT ABBOTSFORD

Canadian Press

Abbotsford, B.C., June 16.—Cries of "That's right," greeted T. D. Pattullo, British Columbia Liberal leader, when he declared at a crowded public meeting in the Masonic Temple here yesterday evening that the Tolmie administration had sold Sumas lands for one-half their real value.

"Some day there will be a monument erected to my friend, E. D. Barrow, for making this magnificent development possible," he stated.

Mr. Pattullo was severely critical of the Tolmie government's "extravagance," which he said had made necessary excessive and unfair taxation.

The Liberals had governed with a cabinet of seven. Dr. Tolmie had eleven.

"Seven come eleven," said Mr. Pattullo.

BARROW SPEAKS

E. D. Barrow, former Minister of Agriculture, introduced Mr. Pattullo as "the best posted man on public matters in the province."

He stressed the value of co-operation in farm marketing.

J. A. Morrison of Mount Lehman, president of the Abbotsford and District Liberal Association, presided.

Montreal Pool Brings $1,419 For $2 Ticket

Montreal, June 16—Only one person bought a ticket in the "double pool" yesterday on Nipigon, winner of the third race, and Airs and Graces, winner of the fifth race at the second day of the Blue-Bonnets spring meet. The lucky purchaser collared the whole pool, amounting to $1,419.25, princely return for a $2 investment.

Reggie Cooper, smart young Vancouver rider, booted Airs and Graces home in the mud in the fifth race to score a win for the stable of R. W Ely.

ENGLAND MAKES A CLEAN SWEEP AGAINST JAPAN

Eastbourne, Eng., June 16—England made a clean sweep of its series with Japan in the European zone of Davis Cup play, winning the final two singles matches yesterday.

Fred Perry beat Jiro Satoh 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin defeated Kawatchi 6-1, 0-6, 8-6, 6-2.

England will meet the winner of the Czechoslovakia-Denmark series in the European zone final for the right to meet the United States in inter-zone play.

BOOKS SENT FOR TRIAL

Toronto, June 16.—Books of the Solloway-Mills brokerage firm were seized yesterday in the Solloway offices here by provincial and city police on information sent here from the Attorney-General of British Columbia, and will be taken to British Columbia by Hall Chane, barrister, who is here representing British Columbia. They are to be used in the British Columbia prosecution of I. W. C. Solloway and Harvey Mills.

Anderson and Reed Battle to Finish

Arthur and Ray in Semi-wind-up; "Strangler" Lewis Beats Beth

Middleweight wrestlers will again be featured in Saturday night's card to be presented at the Tillicum gymnasium. Promoter Fred Richardson announced today he had signed Des Anderson, classy Seattle grappler, and Robin Reed, Portland star, in a bout to the finish. This pair are two of the cleverest matmen to feature local cards and their bout to a decision will no doubt prove popular with the fans. In the five-round semi-windup Ernie Arthur will meet Tom Ray, Omaha. Local preliminaries will round out the show.

Last week Promoter Richardson put on a card of middleweights who put on one of the best shows seen here in months. They had the fans on their toes the whole way and following the card the cash customers were enthusiastic in their praise.

Anderson and Reed have met three or four times before and to date neither has succeeded in scoring a victory. They drew in two bouts in Seattle and in another meeting here. Seattle sport writers described the battles as two of the finest they had ever seen. Last week in the bouts here Anderson defeated Joe Gardiner and Reed drew with Jack McLaughlin.

Tom Ray will be making his second appearance here when he steps into the ring against Arthur. In his debut the Omaha grappler defeated "Rocky" Brooks.

The first bout will commence at 8.45 o'clock.

Stockton, Cal., June 16 — Ed. (Strangler) Lewis, claimant of the world heavyweight wrestling championship, defeated Bill Beth, Michigan, in fifty-six minutes here yesterday evening. Lewis took the only fall made with a flying mare. Beth was unable to return to continue the match after the ten-minute rest. Both weighed 235.

Nick Paires, Reno, 210 pounds, threw Frankie Schroll, Omaha, 195, in two straight falls. The first was a double toe hold in twenty-six minutes and the second a body slam in ten minutes.

Buffalo, N.Y., June 16—Ed. Don George, North Java, and Henri G. de Glane, Montreal, wrestled a split fall battle to a draw here yesterday evening, de Glane winning the first fall in 13.39 and George taking the second in 16.3 1-5. The men wrestled to the 11 o'clock limit without further result.

Boston, June 16—Jim Londos, 215, Greek heavyweight wrestling title claimant, overcame Tiny Roebuck, 255, former Haskel Indian football player, with a series of body slams after thirty minutes of slam-bang grappling here yesterday evening in the feature match at the Boston Garden.

Seattle, June 16—Referee Harry Listman stopped a wrestling exhibition between Omar Yousoff, 207, Turk, and Joe Devito, 210, New York, in the sixth round yesterday evening. He called it a no-contest because the grapplers were not trying.

Yousoff punished Devito during the first three rounds but the match slowed up in the fourth and little action was seen in the next two. There were no falls.

Dan Koloff, 240, New York, and John Evko, 222, Chicago, went five ten-minute rounds to a draw in the semi-final, each gaining a fall.

Manchester, N.H., June 16—Gus Sonnenberg defeated Bill Demetral of Chicago, two falls out of three in a wrestling match here yesterday evening. Demetral took the first fall with a back fall in fifteen minutes. Sonnenberg put over his flying tackle for the second in nineteen minutes and took the third in four minutes with a body scissors.

FINAL CRICKET GAMES CARDED

Two Wednesday League Matches To-morrow; League Meeting on Thursday

Wednesday League cricket teams will engage in the final matches of the season to-morrow afternoon. At the Beacon Hill grounds the Five C's and Saanich will meet, while the Hudson's Bay and Brentwood College will clash at Brentwood. Both matches will commence at 2.30 o'clock.

At the present time the Five C's and Hudson's Bay are tied for the leadership with Brentwood and Saanich only two points behind. Should the second place teams win to-morrow a four-cornered tie will result in the race for the Payne Cup.

On Thursday evening, a meeting of the league will be held at 9 o'clock at the Tillicum Club. All teams are requested to have delegates present as the team to play in Vancouver on July 1 will be selected.

Terminals Approve Consolidated Deal

New Westminster, June 16.—At a meeting of Pacific Coast Terminals Limited, held here Monday, with J. G Turgeon, vice-president, in the chair, approval was given to the recommendation of the directors to sell 50,000 no-par value treasury shares to the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company.

Disposal has already been made of 25,000 shares, so that with the sale of the remaining 50,000 the entire authorized issue will be out.

BUTTER EXPORTS EASE

Canadian Press

Montreal, June 16.—Exports of butter from Montreal to England were lower last week, being 4,477 boxes, compared with 14,391 boxes last week. Shipments to date total 29,372 boxes, against none at the corresponding period last year. Cheese exports were 9,894 boxes, compared with 4,338 boxes last week.

Expect to Bring Helene Madison Here Next Month

United Commercial Travelers Negotiating With Seattle Mermaid for Swimming Exhibition at Water Frolic to Be Held at Crystal Garden on July 17 and 18; Local Talent to Appear and Many Features Are Planned

Helene Madison, world's first-ranking woman swimmer and holder of innumerable records, will be seen in action in the Crystal Garden on July 18, if plans now being worked out by the United Commercial Travelers for a two-day gala are carried through.

Helene appeared here in a gala sponsored by the Rotary Club last summer with the crack New York Women's Swimming Association and Georgia Coleman, Los Angeles diver. She swam a beautiful exhibition and just failed to crack the world record by about one-fifth of a second for the 400 yards. If she comes over next month, it is expected she will make another try at the mark.

EXPECT REPLY SOON

A letter asking what arrangements would be necessary for her has already been sent and a reply is expected shortly.

Crack swimmers and divers of Victoria will also perform in the meets and plans are being made for a water polo game between the Y.M.C.A. and the V.A.S.C. for Saturday evening.

On Friday evening, in addition to the proposed exhibition by the Seattle flash, the travelers will be down to watch local school relay teams compete for the U.C.T. cup in a fixture that should be of more than ordinary interest.

Following the gala a series of comic swimming stunts are planned.

While the latter are going on, dancing will be enjoyed at both ballrooms.

POLO GAME FEATURED

On Saturday evening, from 7 to 9 o'clock, another aquatic programme will be the feature of interest, with the polo game billed as the outstanding attraction.

Dancing will conclude the evening.

Arrangements are now being made to make special provision for children during the mornings, from 9 o'clock to noon, on both days. It is the hope of the committee in charge to stage races for the youngsters during these hours.

A bathing beauty contest is also scheduled to take place on Saturday evening.

Pending word from the managers of Helene Madison, the committee is going ahead with the local arrangements for the gala, drawing up races for the Victoria swimmers.

PEGGED WHEAT SUGGESTIONS ARE REPORTED

Communication From Prairie Premiers Last November Tabled in Commons

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16.—Suggestions respecting the pegging of wheat or grain prices made by Premier John Braken of Manitoba, Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan and Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta under date of November 13 last were made public in the Commons yesterday afternoon by Premier Bennett. The letter in question, addressed to the Acting Prime Minister, was signed by the three plains premiers, and the information was given by Premier Bennett in answer to question asked by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Liberal, Melville, Sask.

The suggestions read:

"1 That, without in any way interfering with the free movement or sale of wheat by grain companies and exporting agencies, the producers of wheat be assured of a domestic price of not less than 70 cents, Port William. This suggestion is based on the fact that producers of wheat to-day are passing through world conditions not of their own making and that they should not be singled out as one industry that must work through these conditions unassisted by the state.

GUARANTEE PLAN

"2 Failing this, that the Dominion Government, by guarantee or otherwise, assure the banks against loss in carrying on the Wheat Pool in an orderly way under such direction as they care to arrange to satisfy themselves marketing is being properly carried out.

"This suggestion is based on the conviction that uncertainty as to the pool's financial position may be the most disturbing factor to-day. We also point out the present initial payment was arranged with all the accumulated knowledge in Canada at the time as to world conditions and in the belief it was a safe payment.

"3 Failing either of these, that the government establish a stabilization board with financial support to purchase wheat whenever the market falls below certain minimum levels. It is respectfully submitted that at present levels this action would involve a minimum or no loss, and would not be accompanied by any of the dangers which surrounded the American Wheat Board when it first began operation with wheat at more than double the present prices.

INQUIRY SUGGESTED

"4 Aside from the above, we suggest your government might consider the advisability of instructing the Board of Grain Commissioners to inquire into short selling on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with a view to proper action against offenders."

Approximately 1,050 representations in all from farmer organizations, pool selling agencies, individual units thereof, boards of trade and individuals had been received on the subject of wheat pegging, Premier Bennett stated in further reply.

HALCYON WINS HANDICAP RACE

C. V. Whitney's Thoroughbred Sets Fast Pace in Feature at Aqueduct

New York, June 16.—Setting the pace from the rise of the barrier, C. V. Whitney's Halcyon showed the way home to a classy field of milers in the Queen's County Handicap, feature race at the opening of Aqueduct yesterday.

Heretofore the three-year-old son of Broomstick was considered a bad post actor, but yesterday Rose got him away on his toes and he made every post a winning one to collect the $7,500 purse by a short head.

The Greentree stable's St. Brideaux was second by a length over Joseph E. Widener's Mr. Sponge.

Halcyon, quoted at 6 to 1, was sent into a lead of a length as the field of eight got away, but he found Mr. Sponge a mighty hard horse to lose, the Widener colt never being more than a length back. The pair swung into the stretch, taking stride for stride, and raced head and head until St. Brideaux closed with a belated rush on the outside to nearly nip the Whitney color bearer at the wire.

SASKATCHEWAN LIBERALS HEAR KING'S MESSAGE

Federal Party Leader Says Prairie Convention Leads to Success at Next Election

Canadian Press

Moose Jaw, Sask., June 16. — More than 1,000 delegates to the convention of the Saskatchewan Liberal Association here yesterday evening heard a message read from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in which the Federal Liberal leader said:

"Will you please convey to the delegates attending the Saskatchewan Liberal Convention my very cordial good wishes for a successful conference and my sincere regret that the budget debate, in which I am to take part this week, has made it impossible for me to be with you all to-day? Already the defeat of the Liberal administration last July is regretted in all parts of Canada and the policies on which the party appealed to the electorate have been abundantly justified. What is most needed now is consolidation of all our forces and a renewal of preparation for the contest that may come at any time. It is a source of special satisfaction and encouragement that the women's Liberal organizations throughout the province are to co-operate actively toward that end. It is my confident belief that the decisions reached by the provincial Liberal convention in Moose Jaw will mark a long step forward on a path which will lead ere long to the restoration of Liberal administration at Regina and at Ottawa

JOKERS SECURE SOFTBALL LEAD

Take Odd Run Decision From, Times to Go to Top of Heap

Jokers wrested a one-point lead in the Westholme Softball League yesterday evening from The Times when they took 10-9 decision at Victoria West Park. Meanwhile the Moose took the Aztecs into camp, 9-7, and entered a tie for second place with The Times. The Todds-Colwood game at Hampton Road was washed out and will be played this evening, weather permitting.

Wet fields made perfect play impossible at Victoria West but a nip and tuck struggle was witnessed. The Times took the lead early in the game but lost a comfortable margin through errors and a few solid clouts gave the Jokers an edge which they held to the end.

Moose and Aztecs also had a close game but the lodgemen hit in the pinches to take the decision.

In a City League game Olympic Recreations beat the Hillcrest, 8 to 6.

Rain Slows Up Vancouver Net Championships

Vancouver, June 16—Heavy rains over the week-end and yesterday slowed up the city tennis championships at the Point Grey Tennis Club yesterday. Owing to the damp state of the courts, officials were unable to start play until 4.30 p.m., and only about half of the scheduled matches for the day were run off.

Favorites got through such first-round matches as were played, fairly well. Perhaps the most startling feature of the day was the elimination of Chuck Rollins, Jericho ace, in the men's singles. Rollins lost to Peel 7-5, 6-2.

Ossie Ryall, first ranking British Columbia player, won from DeMille in straight sets in the singles 6-0, 6-3, and paired with Dunc Williams, took a doubles match from Johnson and Clendenning 6-2, 6-2.

Cokie Shields defeated Quinn 6-1, 6-1, and Eddie McIlwaine won from A. Bawden 6-1, 6-2. Jack Muir downed H. Brown 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, in a hard-fought match.

Muriel Munro and Marie McNab, outstanding women players, got through their first-round matches unscathed. Miss Munro had a tussle with Mrs. A. S. Milne, winning 6-3, 7-5, while Miss McNab defeated Irene O'Shea 6-4, 6-4.

A. CAMPBELL TO LEAD TEACHERS

Full Slate of Officers Named Yesterday Evening; J. Ross New Secretary

Officers for the year were elected at the annual meeting of the Victoria and District Teachers' Association was held in the tea rooms of Spencers Limited yesterday afternoon.

Allison Campbell, principal of the South Park School, was elected president in place of the retiring president, A. T. Hunkin, who has held the chair for the last two years. W. H. Wilson, principal of the Sir James Douglas School, was voted first vice-president. The position of secretary went to J. Ross, of South Park School, who will take over the duties held for the last few years by Miss Sanson.

The following members of the Victoria and district teaching staff were elected to the executive: The Misses Fletcher, Heritage and Johnston, Messrs. Green, Muncy, Brand and Wheadon.

Priror to the election of officers, minutes of the last meeing were read and adopted. The retiring secretary, Miss Sanson, presented each member with a financial statement, which showed the association to be in a healthy condition. Before giving over the chair to the new president, Mr. Hunkin spoke briefly on the work accomplished by the association during the year. He stated, that at the present time, the association was stronger than it had ever been before, both in the matter of finances and number of members enrolled. Mention was also made of the teachers' convention held in Victoria during the Easter holidays, and which proved to be such an outstanding success.

In closing, Mr. Hunkin congratulated the incoming officers and executive, and wished them the greatest of success during the coming year. The new officers then took charge of the meeting. However, due to the late hour, it was deemed advisable to adjourn, so that all new business has been held over until a later meeting which, in all probability, will be held next week, when it is hoped a still larger representation will be on hand to voice their opinions. Word of this meeting will be forwarded to the school representatives as soon as the new executive have had a meeting to decide upon a suitable date.

During the course of the afternoon, a delightful tea was served to the teachers, which was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by all.

WALKATHON AT PLAYHOUSE SOON

Test of Endurance Will Soon Be Staged in Victoria

"The popularity of walkathon-marathon contests which has flooded the country almost overnight is based on something stronger than the average craze," says the promoter of a walkathon to be held at the Playhouse.

"Endurance has always been something that people admire," he says. "On land, on water and in the air, endurance tests have drawn the interest of the whole world. There is an achievement in a man, or woman, boy or girl, doing something longer than anyone else has ever done the same thing.

"There is also another aspect to the case which is an important one," says the promoter. "In these days of unemployment any industry that employs any number of men and women is welcome. A walkathon contest properly staged and engineered by the right kind of people will employ between fifty and sixty people of all grades of life, including doctors, nurses, stage hands, musicians, clerks and laborers.

"In these contests a majority of the contestants usually gain in weight and in health and enjoy themselves despite the gruelling walk for hundreds and hundreds of miles.

"One of these said recently: 'I have never felt better in my life and I shall certainly enter whenever I can. I am seven pounds heavier and feel as fit as a fiddle. It is hard work; it calls for great will power and sleep seems the greatest thing in the world at times, but the whole marathon was beneficial to me.'"

Victoria is to witness the first walkathon-marathon at the Playhouse, arrangements for which are now well advanced.

WEEK'S BRIGHT SPOT

In April, 1929, Canada produced 9 per cent of the gold produced in the world in that month. In April, 1930, Canada produced 10 per cent. In April, 1931, Canada produced 12 per cent. In April, 1929 and 1930, Canada was third among the world's gold producers. In April, 1931, Canada was second.

Canada's gold production is now worth $4,000,000 a month, it is estimated by The Financial Post, Toronto.

ON THE SCREEN

Capitol—Mary Pickford in "Kiki."
Columbia—Charlie Chaplin in "City Lights."
Dominion—"Charlie Chan Carries On," with Warner Oland.
Coliseum — "Dude Ranch," with Jack Oakie.
Playhouse—"Once a Sinner," with Dorothy Mackail.
Crystal Garden—Swimming, Dancing and Miniature Golf.

CAPITOL

In this sophisticated age genuine laughter is at a premium. This is the objective of the delightful, roguish love story replete with comedy starring Mary Pickford in "Kiki" at the Capitol Theatre to-day and Wednesday.

Here, if one may be paradoxical, is bright screen entertainment that children may safely take their parents to see. Miss Pickford, under the skilful guidance of Sam Taylor, producer-director for United Artists, has foresworn all other "Kiki's" and given us her own. It is modern, fast, funny and exhilarating from start to finish. Miss Pickford has an innocent, wild abandon, a hoydenish quality, recklessness and impulsiveness and madcap charm. She falls in love with Reginald Denny. He has been divorced from one, Margaret Livingston, and she is using all her feminine power to lure him back, meanwhile carrying on something of an affair with a tenor.

DOMINION

The new comedy team of Warren Hymer and Marjorie White, who scored their first joint success in "Oh, for a Man" after many individual triumphs in recent Fox offerings, are paired again in "Charlie Chan Carries On," current Fox screen attraction at the Dominion Theatre. This time they enact the roles of the Chicago racketeer and his wife, supplying most of the comedy moments of the film.

Warner Oland casts aside his customary villainy to play the leading role of the brilliant Chinese detective who finally solves the mystery, while Marguerite Churchill and John Garrick have the romantic leads.

PLAYHOUSE

Guthrie McClintic, director of "Once a Sinner," the Fox Movietone production now proving so highly entertaining to capacity houses at the Playhouse Theatre, was formerly a leading producer and director for the New York stage. Among his successes were "The Dover Road," "The Green Hat," "The Shalghai Gesture." Dorothy Mackaill is at her dramatic best in the role of "Diana Barry," in this daring drama of domesticity written by George Middleton.

COLISEUM

A novel comedy idea is revealed in the plot of "Dude Ranch," the Paramount picture now showing at the Coliseum Theatre. The story is based on the humorous novel, "The Lone Rider of the Mojave," by Milton Krims, ex-newspaper reporter and actor.

It deals with the happenings at a big ritzy hotel in the Rockies when a group of actors are hired by the proprietor to furnish his unsuspecting guests with scenes of real western bravado, daring and sharp-shooting.

COLUMBIA

In his picture "City Lights" which is showing at the Columbia Theatre today, Charlie Chaplin applies the rules of the young man who made good to his hobo hero. This time the forlorn, dog-eared little tramp tries to lift himself up by the boot-straps first as a white wing, then a prize fighter and finally a man about town. It is acclaimed as his best yet.

Insurance Companies Need Not Unload

If important corporations on this continent whose shares are held by Canadian insurance companies, are forced to pass dividends either now or in the future, there will be no dumping of insurance holdings of such shares on the market by companies in this country, says The Financial Post.

This question is an important one in view of the fact that many savings banks in the United States are forced by law to sell holdings of shares which cease to become legal investments.

Such forced sales have had an adverse effect on the stock market in recent months, it is said.

Under Canadian law, life insurance companies may invest their funds in the purchase of preferred shares of any company which has paid regular dividends on such shares or on its common shares for not less than five years preceding the purchase of such preferred stocks, and of common shares which have paid regular dividends of at least four per cent or $4 per share (no par value shares) for seven years preceding the purchase of such stocks.

But there is no provision requiring the shares to be sold if dividends are passed.

HOOVER MAKES CLEAR POLICIES OF HIS PARTY

Indianapolis, Ind., June 16.—President Hoover, discussing the current business depression before the Indiana Republican Editorial Association here yesterday evening, declared unequivocally for individualism, against "a dole from the Federal treasury," against government ownership of public utilities, for protective tariffs, against government interference in business and against ramification of government control in the lives of citizens.

"The exacting duty of the government in these times," he said, "is by use of its agencies and its influence to strengthen our economic institutions; by inspiring co-operation in the community to sustain good will and keep our country free of disorder and conflict; by co-operation with the people to assure the deserving shall not suffer, and by the conduct of government to strengthen the foundations of a better and stronger national life. These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with this, the greatest crisis the world has ever known. I shall adhere to them.

BEAUHARNOIS INQUIRY

Ottawa, June 16. — Authorization was given by the Commons yesterday evening to the special committee investigating the Beauharnois power project to enable it to secure legal counsel. A subcommittee was named yesterday forenoon to choose counsel. The committee was also given power to sit while the House is in session and to print its report.

SPEAK AGAINST MONEY BY-LAWS

Ratepayers' Association Holds Meeting at Sir James Douglas School

Alderman R. T. Williams, speaking before a meeting under the auspices of the Victoria Ratepayers' Association at Sir James Douglas School yesterday evening, made "excessive cost" his keynote in speaking against the civic money by-laws.

The cost of the airport property, he said, was at least $200 an acre too high. He had opposed the airport measure in council meetings as well as the other by-laws, but his efforts had been unavailing, he said.

Condemning the street paving schemes he criticized an estimate of $8,500 for paving Yates Street, between Douglas and Blanshard Streets, as excessive.

W. C. Warner, vice-president of the association, said people had been told the airport development would relieve unemployment, but it was a case of spending nearly $400,000 to get $60,000 relief.

Cost of bad government was the main theme of Frank Higgins, K.C., the chief speaker, who said the council was trying to burden the taxpayers further with an expenditure of $314,000.

Frank LeRoy, chairman and president, discussed the upward trend in taxation and urged those attending the meeting to join the association.

IRON HORSES NOW SHOD WITH RUBBER TIRES

Washington, June 16—The Iron Horse is being shod with rubber tires.

The railroads are realizing that one way to meet the competition of motor trucks and buses is to enter these fields themselves.

$40,000,000 INVESTMENTS

Investigations by the Interstate Commerce Commission disclose that American railroads have invested more than $40,000,000 in motor buses and are now actively participating in this form of transportation.

A compilation by the commission showed that on June 30, 1930, Class 1 railroads had invested $40,048,007 in motor buses. In the east the Pennsylvania had $6,643,970 in motor bus investment, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford $6,450,185. The Southern Pacific led all Western lines with $10,407,704.

The railroad-owned bus lines carried 34,113,361 passengers in the first six months of last year, of whom 5,090,561 were interstate passengers. Passenger revenues from the buses totaled $14,614,011.

The Pennsylvania operates 430 buses the New Haven 638 and the Southern Pacific 648. In the Southwest the Missouri Pacific has an investment of $1,727,573 in 192 buses.

Railroads will always dominate trucks in the long-haul field. If a distributor has goods to ship from New York to San Francisco overland, he will undoutedly choose the steam carriers rather than the trucks. But in short hauls the motor carriers are bidding for dominance.

TRUCKS FAST ON SHORT HAULS

For instance, freight trucks will take goods from a warehouse in Washington to-morrow morning, and deliver them to a New York warehouse to-morrow night—in about twelve hours. It might take as long as three or four days for a railroad to accomplish the same thing, and if this railroad had not adopted the "store-door" delivery system, the goods would be out on a siding in a freight car, rather than in a warehouse.

Progressive railroad men have understood the advantages of utilizing trucks and buses as complements and feeders of their freight and passenger lines.

"A survey reveals," according to Arthur Y. Milam, an attorney for motor carriers, "that many of the railroad systems have adopted motor bus and truck carriage as incidental to services performed by it and necessary in rendering a full measure of transportation service to the public.

"Each of the carrier systems, the railroad, the water carrier, the highway carrier and the airplane, has its particular sphere of usefulness. The services rendered by each are subject to co-ordination. The elimination of neither is desirable.

"If the railroads are unwilling to recognize these fundamental principles and make highway transportation a part of their services to the public, either by direct operation or by co-ordination with these carriers, then they must make the best of the continued and increased competition sure to follow."

CANDIDATES LINE UP FOR BY-ELECTION

Hamilton, June 16.—The East Hamilton federal by-election, polling in which was announced at Ottawa today for August 10, will be contested by the Liberals. The candidate has not yet been nominated.

Humphrey S. Mitchell, active for years in the labor movement, has been nominated in the interests of Labor.

Five men are mentioned as possible Conservative candidates. The seat was made vacant by the death of Col. G. S. Rennie, Conservative. The Conservatives now mentioned are M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, local newspaperman, who was chairman of the British Empire Games Committee; A. F. Hatch, school trustee; George Armstrong, H. F. Robertson and Herbert Slack.

In the general election of 1930, Col. Rennie polled 12,893 votes; F. F. Treleaven, Liberal, 8,142; and Saul Cohen, Communist, 343.

WINNIPEG HEARING

Winnipeg, June 16. — Preliminary hearing of William Martin Jr., head of the defunct Clark, Martin and Company, brokerage firm, on charges of theft, was adjourned for a week after a brief court session yesterday. It is expected the case of the prosecution against Martin will be completed early next week. G. T. Chisholm, of the firm of Osler, Hammond and Nanton, Toronto, occupied the stand yesterday.

USES FOR MUSTARD

Prepared mustard has many more interesting possibilities than its ordinary use as an accompaniment to ham and frankfurters. The next time you make a white sauce for a vegetable or meat, add a little prepared mustard and see if it doesn't pep up the combination. Use it with cheese. Include it in the seasonings for meat loaves and croquettes. Add to all scalloped dishes. Spread it lightly on meat and fish before cooking. Use it sparingly, of course, in most instances, but don't hesitate to try it.

Find Even Normal Eye Is Partially Defective

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Although the human eye is one of the finest instruments of which mankind has any knowledge, even a nomal eye has some defective qualities.

An eye that is abnormal may be nearsighted, farsighted, have a severe degree of astigmatism, be color blind, or in other ways fail to function perfectly.

However, even a normal eye may have difficulty in adjusting itself to various colors and in focusing according to changes in color. If an object is in focus when viewed by red light, the focus may be changed if the same object is viewed by violet light; hence in scientific work it is sometimes necessary to wear lenses to take care of the wavelengths of various colors or lights.

The visual field of the human being is not nearly so great as that of many other species in proportion to the size of the body. The visual image is inverted on the retina or sensitive nerve tissue at the back of the eye. A machine isued by experts in diseases of the eye for measuring the field of vision and charting it.

The distinctness of vision varies with different parts of the retina. The condition of the retina changes after one has been a long time in light and is then exposed suddenly to darkness. As one passes from daylight into a dark room, vision at first is very bad, but after some minutes rapidly improves.

The famous prisoner, Caspar Hauser, was supposed to be able to see stars in the daytime because he had lived so many years in a black dungeon that his eyes had changed in the visual ability.

The retina has the power to adapt itself to correspond with variations in the intensity of illumination. Various parts of the retina vary in their ability. It is sometimes possible to see a very faint star in the twilight when looked at from one point of view and to fail to see it entirely when looking at it from another angle so that the image falls on a different part of the retina.

Because all of these processes of adaptation of tissue to changing conditions tend to produce wear and tear, much is made of having proper illumination for all working conditions. Constraint and fatigue uses up the tissues of the body and brings about loss of effectiveness.

There are all sorts of visual disturbances which do not represent actual defects of the eye, but are the result of its construction. If one looks up at the blue sky he will notice a number of minute specks that move in front of the eye in definite parts. These specks are the blood corpuscles moving in the very tiny blood vessels of the retina. If the heart beat is increased so that the corpuscles move faster, the specks will be noted to move faster.

Sometimes bright lights seen at night, as for example street lamps, appear to be surrounded by colored rings, blue inside and red on the outside. These colors are due to fibres of the lens and to the cells of the cornea, representing visualization of structures which would not ordinarily be seen.

he has never used the first to better purpose than to read the comic strips and would be better advised to use the second on the same subject or to give advice to the lovelorn than on how to manage the affairs of the business world.

It would probably be enlightening to Mr. Stinson to know that hotels and street railways, department stores and electric power systems, railways and steamship lines and so on down to the home a man lives in even to the clothes he wears on his back are all spoken of in terms of dollars and cents when reckoning a man's wealth.

It is quite possible for a man to be reckoned a millionaire and still not have the price of a package of cigarettes in cash.

Mr. Stinson would not know what to do with a tugboat or locomotive if he were to receive one. He could not eat it nor could he wear it. Yet if Victoria's millionaires had their "millions" extracted from them for the purposes advocated by your correspondent he would in all probability receive some such article as payment for his services, presupposing, of course, that he worked on the road he mentions.

Aside from this, the wealth of Victoria's millionaires is this minute providing the means of employment for countless hundreds of people, who are absolutely dependent for their living upon the enterprises which in turn are themselves absolutely dependent upon the wealth of these seventy-two men.

Squander this wealth on the desire of the moment and all these men, including those dependent upon their wealth will almost at once become destitute, objects of charity, charges upon the community.

Carry this procedure to its logical conclusion and so on there would be no one capable of giving charity. Then the human race would be obliged to return to its old habit of climbing trees. Mr. Stinson's proposal is so childish as to be hardly worthy of that well-known animal which wears a tail.

Mr. Stinson uses the scriptures to lend force to his arguments. True, a man can not take his wealth with him into the Kingdom of Heaven, but neither can he take it with him on the alternative route. His use of the scriptures is most ill-advised as in them we are told ten things that we must not do, one of them being, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors'" millions. Mr. Stinson has overlooked this command and has cultivated a very covetous eye toward his neighbors' goods.

Mr. Stinson is apparently one of the unemployed, and if so, he has my sincere sympathy, but as I am only a wage earner it is beyond my means to offer him other assistance than to point out the folly of his method for the improvement of conditions. I do not propose to offer any suggestions calculated to promote improvement, leaving that to greater minds than mine or Mr. Stinson's, but I will oppose any that will result in nothing but chaos.

MERELY A TRANSFER

"I suggest, sir, that this activity is merely the transferring of the burden of aid from British charitable organizations to similar Canadian groups," he said. Declaring the Vancouver office of the emigration society was located in the shipping office of the White Star Line, Col. Cooper presented testimony collected that morning showing the activity was continuing and that men without resources were still being brought in.

"We can still take care of our own people," he asserted, telling of 100 men living on the city dump in shacks built from rubbish." If we started to look after them we would be flooded out. I hope you will realize this is a federal matter, indeed."

HUGE SUM SPENT

Senator Robertson asked if Vancouver was at the end of its resources, and was told the city had appropriated $750,000 for relief, and had over-spent $34,000 at the end of May.

Alderman Atherton said Vancouver was caring for 865 families and 899 single men. The cost to the city was heavy because of the expense of material in addition to the share of relief work. The city had from 1,600 to 1,800 men on permanent payroll. Relief had cost $1,250,000, including subventions received.

Declaring taxpayers were unable to carry more burdens, the alderman doubted whether by-laws could win support at the polls when the voters were unable to pay their taxes. "We do not know what we are going to do in a few weeks. Camps should take in married as well as single men. As to Communism in the camps, Vancouver had no trouble last winter," Ald. Atherton declared.

"We cannot match more money, we have none to match. The $60,000 we received a few weeks ago was to balance the last we could raise," he said.

Senator Robertson said $1,400,000 was authorized for carrying on of public works in Vancouver, of which $250,100 was from the federal treasury. In addition, the federal government had paid $91,000 as its share of direct relief in Vancouver.

The direct relief appropriation of the federal government was $4,000,000, on a one-third basis, making $12,000,000 available for that purpose. To date only $1,310,000 had been called for.

Col. Cooper said Vancouver had not sufficient money to be able to take full advantage of federal and provincial aid, because of the fifty-fifty matching provision on the labor cost. Material, such as water pipe, cost 60 per cent of work provided. Vancouver had fed 4,000 men last winter.

Mayor E. H. Bridgman of North Vancouver said conditions were now worse than last fall. Many of the municipalities were experiencing heavy reversions of property. If the assessments were based on true worth most municipalities would to-day be unable to legally borrow a dollar. "If the banks will not advance money we must, of necessity, throw up our hands and come to Dr. Tolmie for aid. As far as North Vancouver is concerned, we will keep on signing cheques to prevent people from starving," he said, declaring few men abused the relief or wasted money received.

"As it is the municipalities cannot go further, we are bound by the Municipal Act. It all comes back to Ottawa, every member of the House of Commons should be made to take a stand on this problem of relief for unemployed. The way out of this situation should be based on ability to pay. Anyone willing to work should be enabled to keep his family, and those not willing to work can be the subject of municipal attention," he advised.

BURNABY HAS NOTHING

Reeve W. A. Pritchard of Burnaby said 1,125 unemployed men were registered voluntarily in his municipality last fall. The number now was 2,127, and within ten days there would be nothing provided for them. Senator Robertson said direct relief would still be available, and Reeve Pritchard retorted, "I could not square with my conscience, if I could with my intellect, the payment of unearned relief to able-bodied men." He urged the early holding of a western conference, and that the House of Commons ought not to prorogue until it had dealt practically with the problem of unemployment relief.

Reeve Pritchard said that, although the federal grant of $20,000,000 had compelled the provinces to put up a like sum and the municipalities to raise $40,000,000, the situation was worse than it was last fall. "What efforts are the custodians of large blocks of frozen capital making towards improving conditions? A small return on this money is better than none at all," he suggested, urging an expert investigation be held into the causes of the slowing up of industry, to recommend means of restoring activity. He knew young people who had never done any work, although old enough to raise families. Burnaby was still willing to provide funds by by-law for matching government assistance.

Mayor Taylor explained that Vancouver and other cities had not claimed to be broke, but they could not continue matching dollars. "We put this problem up as a federal matter," he told Senator Robertson.

DISLIKE UNEARNED PAY

Mayor A. Wells Gray of New Westminster said 1,138 men were registered as unemployed, 241 being property owners, 271 householders and 625 others. Men were given two weeks work, followed by six weeks off the list. "The reason your federal direct relief is not used up is because we have no use for it. That is the last resort. The men feel that way, too. The unemployed are organized. I ask you to meet their leaders when you are in Vancouver," he said.

Mayor Gray said the vicious circle had worked round to farmers, who were getting the lowest returns in fifteen years for strawberries because the canneries were unable to sell last year's pack. Milk was selling at far below previously known prices and unless the government devised some means to aid industry resume he feared the direct relief fund would not last long.

Telling of the inefficiency of labor employed on relief projects, Mayor Gray said picked men on sewer work gave 60 per cent returns and the remainder were worth 35 per cent the cost. The municipality had broken even on the deal, but had been compelled to spend money for works not normally required for seven years or more.

VICTORIA'S CASE

Mayor Anscomb said the owner of a small home must have first claim to relief from the city. He objected to any scheme of registration of unemployed which would enable men from the east to flock to the Coast. He told of the proposed by-laws for airport and street betterment. "This is a federal matter. I favor national employment insurance, with all paying according to their income for assurance of work, not for unemployment insurance. Employment assurance can be coupled with sickness insurance and old-age pensions, but it must be done on a national basis," he concluded.

SUGGESTS POLICE ADVISE

J. B. Williams, city solicitor of Vancouver, suggested that Senator Robertson familiarize himself with police reports filed at Ottawa regarding recent disturbances in western Canada. While Vancouver had not yet reached conditions similar to certain cities, where troops had been called out, a serious condition was impending. Mr. Williams recommended the Senator interview the police chiefs. He asked how to deal with a situation wherein 25 per cent of those on civic relief were taxpayers, and declared the Canadian government had not seriously regarded the situation which, if it had not bankrupted western municipalities, had depleted their financial resources.

Urging prompt action, he asked what the cities were to do while awaiting a new policy.

STARVE NEAR PLENTY

"The responsible heads of the municipalities have come here to know what you intend to do. We do not ask what the federal government will do, but, desire to know your personal views," Mr. Williams announced. He considered that announcement of a constructive policy, not later than early in July, should be made by the federal government. "We are to-day in times the like of which history does not record, with men walking the streets lacking the wherewithal to provide their families with bare necessities of life. Yet the warehouses are bulging with those same necessities," he asserted.

RURAL PROBLEMS

Reeve Jos. Brown of Surrey presented the rural point of view. His municipality had only $18,000 at the end of January with which to provide for 420 married men and sixty-seven single men. Supplementary aid enabled the municipality to employ eighty-nine men on 500 miles of road.

In one area all workers agreed to labor an eight-hour day for six hours' pay, in order to give a good return for $5,000, of which the municipality provided one-half and the government the remainder. He feared large reversions of land would occur.

HAD TO BONUS MEN

Reeve D. Poppy of Langley supported Reeve Brown, his municipality, having expended on relief every dollar available. "We cannot continue along the same lines, even if the same aid is offered. It is unfair to ask the municipalities to put up one-half the cost of making work for unemployed. We were asked last year to bonus workers ten cents an hour, that is, we had to pay more than we ever had paid for that sort of work. More trust should be placed in the municipalities, merely giving a strict accounting," he protested.

CENT EACH FOR EGGS

Reeve A. D. Paterson of Delta said his productive district had been invaded by men from Vancouver. Farmers paying a tax rate of $4.75 were now selling their products below cost. How long they could continue was a problem. Eggs at a cent each and butterfat at twenty-eight cents were now effective. "In the Great War there had been conscription. If I ran the government I would conscript wealth. I would take the farmers' products, which he cannot sell, to feed men in public work camps and I would bill the government for the cost of production," he said.

HIGHWAYS AND RAILWAY

Mayor Taylor suggested building the transcontinental highway, with camps of 300 men each located eighten miles apart. He believed completion of the P.G.E. Railway would be a good undertaking as the road now, began and ended nowhere. Its resources would pay huge dividends. Mayor Taylor also supported construction of the Alaska highway as a practical relief work.

WAGE SCALE TOO HIGH

Councillor J. C. Hanna of Salmon Arm said his district could proceed no further. No more money could be provided at this time. He joined Reeve Poppy in denouncing the official wage scale, declaring the cost imposed had been far above that possible at the wages current in the district.

Reeve G. Cruickshanks of Matsqui said his rich district was receiving cheques "in the red" for milk and that the famous Clayburn brick works had closed last Saturday for the first time in twenty-three years. He protested against pointless complaint and criticism without remedy, announcing that his district would submit a concrete proposal to Senator Robertson at Vancouver.

Reeve R. M. Grauer of Richmond supported a system of aid based on one-third the cost being from the resources of municipalities.

Reeve McDonald of Coquitlam and Reeve S. Mussallem of Maple Ridge spoke briefly, the latter declaring transient "floaters" to be the chief problem of rural municipalities.

Reeve C. Crook of Pitt Meadows urged bonussing of industries to keep men employed. On behalf of the provincial command of the Canadian Legion he warned that returned soldiers did not want any situation to arise where they would have to protect their homes.

A ZONED TARIFF

Hon. C. F. Davie, M.P.P., Cowichan-Newcastle, urged imposition of a tax on fuel oil as a federal measure. "If the eastern areas do not want it, as an emergency matter it might be possible to make it a regional tax," he suggested, declaring such an impost would immediately end unemployment in all western coal districts.

DIVERGENCES NOTED

Senator Robertson said such divergent opinions existed that it would probably be necessary for some one man to step in and make a decision. Such action had been necessary last year. He had not heard any complaints of consequence as to the administration of the $70,000,000 which so became available. Touching upon the general complaint that municipalities could no longer contribute, he asked: "Have you given thought as to where the federal government is to get the money for this work you ask it to shoulder? The government cannot shovel up money like sand on the seashore! We should spend our time trying to find a solution of the problem, not trying to pass the burden from one to another," he admonished.

"I cannot give you the answer Mr. Williams asks. I am but one of a government of eighteen men. I have come here only to secure your views, collate them and submit them to my colleagues," he said. "The best reply I can give, born of some knowledge gained in twenty-five years, is assurance that every consideration will be given the problem. We have come seeking information, and to make any commitment cannot be expected of me."

Senator Robertson said no consideration could be given Reeve Poppy's plea for a free hand in spending grants being accorded municipalities. He cited instances where the eight-hour day had been ignored, where men had been paid twenty cents an hour, and where municipalities had deducted thirty cents on each dollar shown on payrolls sent to the government.

Premier Tolmie thanked Senator Robertson for his presence and the patient hearing given the speakers. He thanked the civic and municipal heads for moderate statements of their views.

Before dismissing the conference Dr. Tolmie expressed the hope that the major undertakings the provincial government proposed to suggest to the federal government would receive the support of Senator Robertson, remarking that the projects, while large, would be of permanent value to B.C and Canada as a whole.

Copies of resolutions concerning unemployment relief, submitted to the provincial government, will be supplied to Senator Robertson and also to the unemployment committee of the government, which consists of Hon. R. W. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works; Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Labor, and Hon. S. L. Howe, Provincial Secretary. The course was suggested to the conference by Premier Tolmie, chairman, who expressed the view that experiences collected during the year warranted expectation that a practical system of aid would be evolved by the British Columbia committee.

OTHER DELEGATES

In addition to the delegates who attended the morning session, mentioned in yesterday's Times, the following were present yesterday afternoon: From Vancouver, Mayor L. D. Taylor, City Solicitor J. B. Williams, Col. Cooper, relief officer, Alderman Atherton, chairman of the unemployment relief committee, and R. J. Cromie of The Vancouver Sun; Mayor H. Anscomb, Alderman J. Mara and J. L. Beckwith of Victoria; Mayor A. Wells Gray and Thos. Furness, road superintendent of New Westminster; Mayor E. H. Bridgman of North Vancouver; Reeve W. A. Pritchard and Collector R. Bolton of Burnaby; Reeve Joseph Brown of Surrey; Alderman Wells of Chilliwack; Reeve A. D. Paterson of Delta; Reeve D. Poppy of Langley; Reeve R. M. Grauer of Richmond; Reeve S. Mussallem of Maple Ridge; Reeve G. Cruickshanks of Matsqui; Reeve C. Cook of Pitt Meadows; Reeve J. Elrick of Esquimalt; Reeve McDonald of Coquitlam and Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General.

DIZZINESS

Caused By Blood Pressure

Doctor Ordered Kruschen

"Five years ago this month I had a serious attack of blood pressure, and my medical man ordered me to take Kruschen Salts daily. Evidently I am a stubborn subject, because I use every morning a small teaspoonful and a half in a glass of hot water, and this acts splendidly and keeps me head right. If I don't have the action mentioned, I feel cold, stupid and liable to fall from dizziness. Therefore I can't do without my Kruschen on any account. Some time ago I tried some other salts which were cheaper but they pained me so much that I had to stop them. There is no pain with Kruschen, I have told hundreds of my little wonder-working bottle."—(E. C. Ferguson.)

Dizziness is a symptom of a deeper seated disorder. It is one of Nature's danger signals—her urgent warning of an impure blood-stream which, if not attended to in time, may wreck the entire health with some dangerous, indeed lifelong disease. The six salts in Kruschen keep the blood-stream pure and vigorous by ensuring the complete elimination of poisonous waste matter from the system every day.

ST. LAWRENCE POWER SCHEME CONFERENCE

New York State Spokesmen to Meet Ontario Hydro Commission Next Week

Toronto, June 16.—"Important conferences with regard to the St. Lawrence power question will be held here, it is understood, during the week of June 22, between the Ontario Hydro-electric Power Commission and the trustees of the power authority of the State of New York," The Toronto Globe said this morning.

"The authorities are reported to be coming to Canada to ask a definite answer from the Dominion to certain questions about the St. Lawrence situation on which they claim to have received no satisfactory reply to date. The authorities will also consult Col. Hanford MacNider, United States Minister to Canada, and will conduct a ten-day inspection of the international rapids section of the river," the newspaper continued.

"The points on which the New York experts are said to be seeking answers are, in effect:

"1. Is Canada ready to co-operate with the State of New York in developing the St. Lawrence for power?

"2. Is Canada willing to enter on a plan intended primarily to develop power and only secondarily to develop the river for navigation?

QUESTION OF COST

"3. On what basis of cost allocation between the two governments will Canada agree to be a partner with New York?

"4. Is Canada prepared at this time to use from 800,000 to 1,000,000 additional horsepower?

"The New York State authority was appointed about a month ago by Governor Franklin Roosevelt. The forthcoming visit of the officials to Canada is said to be in the nature of a 'preliminary skirmish' to the international treaties that must be negotiated before the St. Lawrence power development is under way."

MINING USES NEW METHODS

Quicksilver and Gold Recovery From Refuse Ore Made Successfully

Washington, June 16 — Announcement of new mining processes and mineral treatment in three cases has been made by the Bureau of Mines of the Commerce Department.

One of the Mines Bureau circulars was relative to methods for recovering quicksilver from low grade ore. The new method was first tried at the Sulphur Bank Syndicate at Clearlake, Cal., where there is a large amount of refuse ore after the sulphur has been removed from the gangue. Six methods of recovery have been successfully used, obtaining an average of 9,100 pounds of quicksilver from approximately 1,300 tons of refuse ore each month.

The Mines Bureau has also experimented with small gold mining processes and announces a successfully operated small mine at Timmins, Ont., where the development of the mine has been carried on almost exclusively from the proceeds of a 25-ton pilot mill.

In addition to these two new methods now in use the government experts at the mining department have evolved a new method for the flotation of lead-zinc sulphides in a concentrator at Tybo, Nev. A complicated electrolytic process has been developed which, experts claim, can be profitably operated on partly oxidized ores.

Squeaky Shoes

If your shoes squeak, try boring a small hole in the sole up under the arch and pouring some oil into it. Let the shoes stand upside down as long as possible after filling the hole. This allows the oil to get into the space between the soles and is most efficacious in stopping the squeak.

OBITUARY

Many friends attended the funeral of Mrs. Lillian M. Juff, which took place yesterday afternoon from McCall Bros.' Funeral Home. Rev. Dr. Clem Davies conducted the service, during which the hymn "Abide With Me" was sung. The remains were forwarded yesterday evening to Seattle for cremation.

The funeral of Rev. Henry Hutchinson took place yesterday afternoon from St. Mark's Church, Rev. O. L. Jull officiting. During the service the hymns "When on My Day of Life" and "God of the Living" were sung. Interment was in Royal Oak Burial Park. The pallbearers were J. Greening, L. Matchman, M. Haywood and F. Humphries.

Funeral services were held this morning for Mrs. Hannah Cameron, widow of Archibald Cameron, who passed away in Vancouver on Saturday. The cortege left the Sands Funeral Chapel at 8.50 o'clock, proceeding to St. Andrew's Cathedral, where mass was celebrated by Rev. Father C. E. Evans. Interment was in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery. The pallbearers were E. A. Colbert, A. B. McNeill, J. Herman and C. Willows.

There passed away at an early hour this morning at the family residence, 3370 Burns Avenue, Saanich, Samuel Huston, aged fifty-seven years. Mr. Huston was born in Ireland and had resided in this district for thirty years. He is mourned by one son, Percy, with whom he resided; one sister, Mrs. McIlwaine, of Ocean Beach, Colwood, and one brother and one sister in Ireland. The remains are resting at McCall Brothers' Funeral Home, pending funeral arrangements.

The death occurred Sunday, after a lengthy illness, at the Jubilee Hospital, of Irwin Norman Belford, aged seventeen years, late of 2691 Cook Street. He was born in this city, and is survived by two sister, Mrs. N. Taylor, 202 Montreal Street, and Mrs. W. Thompson, Vancouver, and three brothers, George, Thomas and Robert Belford, of this city. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the S. J. Curry and Son Funeral Home. Rev. A. de B. Owen will officiate, and interment will be in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery.

The remains of Mrs. Lucy Couves were laid to rest in Ross Bay Cemetery yesterday afternoon, the funeral taking place from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. A. Ramsey officiated in the presence of sympathizing friends. The hymns sung were "On the Resurrection Morning" and "Abide With Me." Many beautiful floral offerings covered the casket and hearse. The pallbearers were: Stephen Jones, George Jones, Thomas Stevenson, W. H. M. May, E. P. Siddall and B. R. Lemon.

There passed away yesterday Helena Talbot, wife of James Talbot, 1737 Bank Street, at the age of fifty-eight years. She was born in Burnley, Lancashire, and was a well-known resident of Victoria for the last nineteen years. She is survived by the widower, one daughter, Barbara, and one son, John, all of Victoria. She was a member of the Carne Rebekah Lodge. The remains are at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, where the funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Guadalajara, Mexico, June 16.—Several persons were injured, including Ana Darniers, actress, when the audience and the actors engaged in a fight at the Teatro Principal here yesterday evening. The actors took exception to remarks made by spectators. Bottles and other missiles were thrown by the combatants, and the disturbance grew so great police had to intervene and suspend the show.

NEW POWER CONTRACT FOR NANAIMO CITY

Street Lighting System to Be Rebuilt; Radio Interference Removed

Canadian Press

Nanaimo, June 16.—The lighting committee last evening reported to the City Council the result of negotiations with the electric light company and as a result a five-year contract will be entered into.

Revised rates are calculated to save the consumers of the city $20,000, based on year's consumption, derived as follows: Domestic rates, $8,000; power rates, $5,000; commercial, $7,000.

Under the new contract, which necessitates the rebuilding of the street system, will cost $1,500, the present arc lamps will be abolished and additional lamps installed to absorb the surplus candle power realized in addition to 30 per cent increase in candle power.

Radio interferences will be removed by abolishing the present arc lights. New schedules of rates for domestic lighting and commercial power have been advertised and will become effective when the contract is signed by the city.

Resolutions from the Local Council of Women with regard to bread and milk prices, expectorating on streets and handling of foodstuffs in stores were referred to the legislative committee.

The fire wardens' committee recommended the purchase of hose and hydrants to the amount of $1,900.

PLAYS AGAINST ENGLAND

Dick Stobbart, formerly Nanaimo star and recently of Westminster Royals, will occupy the centre half position for Nanaimo against the English team.

Archibald, formerly North Shore man, will play centre forward.

Team: Aitken, Boyd, Edmunds, McGregor, Stobbart, Knight, R. Gray, Waugh, Archibald, G. Gray, Sandland.

Palmer of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce. W. B. Monteith of The Victoria Daily Times and Herb Macklin of "Wilton Place." Cobble Hill, announced as "an attractive spot on the Island Highway, thirty miles north of Victoria, Vancouver Island."

JOURNALISTS SEE KAMLOOPS

City in the Sun Host to Party Traveling in Special Cars Over C.N.R. Lines

Kamloops, that bustling little town in the interior of British Columbia, was genial host to nearly 100 members of the British Columbia Institute of Journalists Sunday. Members from Victoria, Vancouver, cities along the Fraser Valley, Vancouver Island and other places in the interior were represented at the outing, which was voted one of the most successful ever held by the institute. The party was the guest of the city of Kamloops, the Board of Trade and the Rotary Club.

Leaving Vancouver Saturday evening in two special coaches on the Continental Limited of the Canadian National Railways, the party arrived in Kamloops at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. A civic breakfast was held at the Plaza Hotel, at which the delegates were welcomed by Mayor W. J. Moffatt and J. J. Kerr of The Kamloops Sentinel, whose untiring energy made the trip such a success. Following breakfast the visitors were taken to Tranquille. Luncheon was served at delightful Echo Lodge, at Paul Lake about fifteen miles from Kamloops. After drives up over the famous Corkscrew Road, back to the city, the party enjoyed the hospitality of well-known residents of the city, who received the delegates in their homes for dinner before the special train left for the Coast in the evening.

Speakers during the day were C. O. Scott, president of the B.C. Institute, N. F. Pullen, secretary, and P. W. Luce, who gave the featured address at Paul Lake. Well-known singers of Kamloops and Beverley Fyfe of Victoria, who is teaching school at Tranquille gave a brief musical concert at the lake. Mr. Kerr was honored by the gathering, who presented him with a handsome silver tray, suitably engraved, in appreciation of all he had done to make the trip so enjoyable.

Representatives of the Victoria papers were Harold B. McDonald, president of the Victoria branch of the institute, and J. K. Nesbitt.

PALESTINE OF TO-DAY TOLD TO KIWANIS CLUB

Rev. Dr. W. J. Sipprell Tells of Antagonism Between Jews and Arabs

Work of Zionists Steadily Redeeming Desolated Countryside, Speaker Says

The troubles which are now afflicting Palestine, because of the enmity and jealousy between Jews and Arabs were explained to the Kiwanis Club this afternoon at the Empress Hotel by Rev. Dr. W. J. Sipprell. Although the Jews had been dispossessed for centuries all classes had hopes of returning to the promised land.

Jerusalem was regarded by Moslems as a holy place and much trouble had been caused because the British desired to prevent any outbreak which might start a holy war affecting all Mohammedan countries.

Zionism was traced from the rise of liberty which accompanied the French Revolution, said Dr. Sipprell. The scattered Jewish people had felt the need of an organization to draw them together and that need had been a factor in the development of Zionism.

The British government was sympathetic towards establishment of Palestine as a national home for the Jewish people. The Jew had peculiar traits, developed by circumstances, but in every land where he found a home, he had befome a patriotic citizen.

The only place where an acceptable national home could be provided was in Palestine, where the problems which confront Zionism included Arab nationalism, based on claims that they preceded the Jews in the land, coupled with fears that the newcomers were predatory invaders. Dr. Sipprell considered the intensity of feeling was only repressed by British occupation, which alone protected the Jewish immigrants from general massacre.

BRITISH POSITION

The Arabs considered they had aided the Allies to win the war and claimed the right of autonomy. They now regarded the British occupation with coolness and suspicion, having an eye on the British controlled oilfields of the north and the need to Britain of keeping an open road to the sea for the pipe line and to the Suez Canal.

The Jews also were not kindly towards Britain since the speed of settlement had been slowed down. Under British control great improvements had been attained and the roads were excellent. The denuded hillsides were being restored by terracing with stone walls and earth carried from the valleys in baskets, most of the work being manual labor by the newcomers.

The Zionists expect that culture of oranges, reclamation of minerals from the Dead Sea and the tourist traffic will combine to provide funds for reclamation. Great industries had been created and cattle breeding was being improved. Dr. Sipprell pointed out that the achievements were the more notable when the desolation prevailing under Turkish control was recalled.

The Zionists had done well in education, with universities, colleges, and school. Medical services were also being provided.

Jewish leaders of extreme type were pressing Britain to push the Arabs eastward across the Jordan; others were urging their co-religionists to take the middle way of co-operation. Dr. Sipprell supported the views of Dr Fosdick, an eminent investigator, that co-operation was the only road to success, but he doubted whether it could be attained.

The Zionist movement was by no means religious, many of the leaders being Marxian Socialists. "I could almost hope that Zionism might succeed, for the Jews can bring Palestine back, which the Arabs will never do," he concluded.

The vote of thanks was moved by W. M. Scott.

CONDOLENCE VOTE

The members instructed the secretary to send a letter of condolence to the family of the late Herbert Wilson, manager of the Empress Hotel, after D. McAdie, president, had commented upon the value of the services Mr. Wilson had given the club in the years the weekly dinner has been held at the Empress.

R. Mackenzie reported on the interclub golf competition at Colwood with Vancouver, won by Victoria Kiwanians last week. A handsome silver cup, given by Heath Nicholson, was entrusted to the president and prizes of golf balls were distributed.

J. Trotter outlined a new attendance contest which will be in effect until September 1.

ENGLISH TEAM AT VANCOUVER

Touring Footballers Arrive For Series of Matches in British Columbia

Vancouver, June 16.—"You are giving us a sample of our own weather," was the remark made by C. Wreford Brown, co-manager with H. J. Huband of the touring British football team which arrived in Vancouver this morning for a twelve-day stay in British Columbia. During that time they will play two games in Vancouver, one on Wednesday night and the other on Saturday, June 27, both at Athletic Park; Nanaimo next Saturday and Victoria on Wednesday, June 24.

With the exception of leg injuries to Campbell and Oliver, the players are in first-class shape, and enjoying their trip through the Dominion. Whether Campbell or Oliver will play left half to-morrow night against the Vancouver all-stars will not be decided on until the last minute, but otherwise the team to take the field will be as announced.

President John Russell of the D.F.A., President Charlie Jones of the B.C.F.S., Past-president Albert Whittaker of the L.M.F.A., and Acting-secretary J. E. Munro, together with several soccer enthusiasts, were on hand at the S.N.R. Depot to welcome the visitors.

The party was entertained to a civic banquet in the Stanley Park Pavilion at noon.

NEW PLAN FOR DISARMAMENT

Chesterfield, Eng., June 16.—Mayor J. H. Watson of Chesterfield yesterday proposed to Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, that battleships be built in future with funds secured by popular subscription, adding that in this way it would be "easy to achieve disarmament." The mayor's suggestion was made during ceremonies held at the opening of two new schools here.

BY-LAWS AGAIN BEFORE COUNCIL

Date of Voting on Money Measures Changed, Due to Technicality

Reintroduction of the three civic money by-laws in order to comply with a technicality in the Municipality Act is slated for the City Council meeting this afternoon. The date of balloting on the measures will be changed from June 25 to June 29.

The change has been necessitated because the lapse of time between the date the by-laws were passed by the council and the date set for voting was more than twenty-one days, the maximum under the act.

The by-laws were introduced and passed on June 2. The act provides that voting must be done not less than ten days and not more than twenty-one days after that date, so that June 25 was out of order.

By passing the measures again this afternoon the way will be open for voting on June 29.

The technicality was discovered by City Clerk M. F. Hunter yesterday afternoon:

Appreciate Efforts For Island Mines

Appreciation of Victoria's interest in supporting the Nanaimo Board of Trade in its efforts to secure a bonus of one dollar a ton on coal mined on Vancouver Island is expressed in a letter received from the Nanaimo board this morning by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

In a letter which says the consensus of opinion in Nanaimo is that the twent-five cents bonus provided in the Bennett budget is entirely inadequate, M. C. Ironside, secretary, says the friendly gesture of sympathy of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce is substantial evidence of the fine spirit of co-operation in efforts being put forward for coal mining communities of this Island to secure some appreciable measure of rehabilitation for the languishing coal mining industry.

HOOVER HEARD BY VICTORIANS

Radio Carries U.S. President's Address From Marion, Ohio, to This Coast

Associated Press

Marion, Ohio, June 16.—President Hoover to-day depicted Warren G. Harding as a kindly man whose death in 1923 was hastened by realization "he had been betrayed by a few of the men he had trusted."

Dedicating the memorial tomb of the Twenty-ninth President, Mr. Hoover paid tribute to the accomplishments of the Harding administration and to the memory of the man. He told of having accompanied Mr. Harding on the Alaska trip on which he died, and of the tragedy perceived.

Without direct mention of the scandals that led to changes in the cabinet of which he was a member, the President said companions on that fateful trip came to know Mr. Harding as "a man whose soul was being seared by a great disillusionment."

SAW WEAKENING

"We saw him gradually weaken not only from physical exhaustion, but from mental anxiety," he continued.

"Warren Harding had a dim realization he had been betrayed by a few of the men he had trusted, by men he had believed were his devoted friends.

"It was later proved in the courts of the land that these men had betrayed not only the friendship and the trust of the staunch and loyal friend, but they had betrayed their country.

"That was the tragedy of the life of Warren Harding."

Recalling the post-war difficulties of 1921, the President said Mr. Harding had brought with him to the presidency the needed long experience in public office. The mission to compose conflicts at home and to lessen threats of new wars was fulfilled, he added.

COOLIDGE SPEAKS

Former President Calvin Coolidge, accepting the Harding monument on behalf of the Harding Memorial Association, characterized the late President as "one pre-eminently fitted to serve the country in the disturbed and distraught period following the war.

"It would be difficult," Mr. Coolidge concluded, "to find any peace time period of a little over two years when so much that was beneficial was accomplished as during his administration."

By radio people of Victoria between noon and 1 p.m. to-day heard President Hoover and Mr. Coolidge.

Washington Wins Eastern Boat Race

Regatta Course, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., June 16.—A yearling crew from far away Seattle came to the Hudson River to-day to whip the freshmen boats of six old universities in the first race of the annual intercollegiate regatta, Washington winning by a length with Cornell second and Syracuse third.

Syracuse won the junior varsity race with California second and Cornell third.

ARGUMENT ON BANK LIABILITY IN STOCK SUIT

Recovery Action Resulting From B.C. Bond Crash Continuing

Judge Says Boorman Fooled Owner Into Endorsing Certificates For His Own Use

Continuation of Joseph Patrick's suit against the Royal Bank before Mr. Justice Gregory in the Supreme Court to-day developed into an argument as to the effect of the knowledge on the liability and responsibility of the bank in cases where the bank has cause to know there is something suspicious about the origin of securities, or the rights of a broker to the securities he puts up as collateral to the bank.

Mr. Patrick is suing for the recovery of 200 shares of Cities Service stock he left with H. E. Boorman as good faith in an independent non-margin stock deal, but which Boorman, as managing director of the B.C. Bond Corporation, now defunct, is alleged to have improperly converted to his use and put up to the bank in order to raise money for his corporation. The shares before the B.C. Bond crash were worth around $7,000, according to evidence given.

A. D. Crease, defence counsel for the bank, argued that there was no cause for suspicion about the plaintiff's shares to be raised in the mind of G. H. Stevens, manager of the bank, when Boorman brought the shares in and deposited them as if they were ordinary margin account shares like others he handed over.

BOORMAN DESPERATE

Mr. Justice Gregory said he thought the banker should be interested.

"Mr. Stevens knew Boorman was in desperate circumstances," the judge continued. "Mr. Stevens could not suggest that he had full confidence in Boorman."

"Mr. Stevens thought that as a matter of law he could take the securities which Boorman brought in," Mr. Crease said.

"Mr. Patrick had no idea that he was giving Boorman the right to use these shares," the judge said. "Boorman just fooled him into endorsing them."

HAD FAITH IN BOORMAN

Mr. Crease argued that "Mr. Patrick knew the effect of endorsing these shares, but he had implicit faith in Boorman."

"The object of the whole thing was to make possible the use of these securities and that Boorman could come into complete control of them," Mr. Crease went on. "These street certificates were negotiable and could pass from hand to hand."

EMPHASIZES INTENTION

Mr. Justice Gregory pointed out that decisions stressed the intention of the owner when he parted with the securities.

"The relation of the transferor and transferee are of essential importance," the judge quoted.

"Here wou are overlooking entirely the intent with which Mr. Patrick parted with these things."

Mr. Crease claimed the intention was of no consequence.

Mr. Patrick should have put these shares into escrow and the fault lies with him," Mr. Crease continued.

"Yes, he should have," the judge commented.

NOTHING TO CAUSE SUSPICION

Mr. Crease argued that when Mr. Stevens warned Boorman, when that broker was so excited, it was not with a view to these particular shares.

"There was nothing on September 24 why suspicion should attach to the plaintiff's shares to lead Mr. Stevens to make an inquiry over them," Mr. Crease went one. He declared it would have been a breach of confidence if the banker had gone about inquiring into the right of the parties to the shares. He also argued that the plaintiff's Cities Service shares could not in the instance be differentiated from the rest.

In reply to a question from the judge, Mr. Crease asserted the shares were not stolen from Mr. Patrick by Boorman, but it was a case of fraud.

FREELY PASSED AROUND

"Securities of this kind were being freely pledged, taken out of the bank and others brought in," Mr. Crease said. "It was unreasonable to expect special inquiry to be made with regard to these two securities. Certificates with the names of persons indorsed on them would not necessarily come from that person, as they may have passed through a number of hands since.

"If inquiry were made of the broker, the answer would be perfectly futile if the broker wanted to be fraudulent.

"There was nothing to show why any distinction should be drawn between Mr. Patrick's shares and any others brought into the bank as securities for the B.C. Bond account," said Mr. Crease.

HELD UP B.C. BOND CHEQUE

G. H. Stevens, manager of the main Victoria branch of the Royal Bank, went on the stand at the opening of court to-day, and presented the records of the bank, showing totals of the B.C Bond entries in the bank's sheets from September 23 to October 9, 1930, as asked for by the judge when he adjourned the trial last week.

Mr. Stevens testified that a B.C Bond cheque for $2,103 was presented on the morning of September 24, but the B.C. Bond collateral with the bank did not show sufficient margin, so the bank refused to cash the cheque. Later that same day the B.C. Bond brought in $2,000 of Buenos Aires bonds and 200 shares of Cities Service stock, and in consequence of this collateral the cheque was then paid.

Mr. Stevens went on to explain that at that time the B.C. Bond had a call from Logan and Bryan for more margin and Boorman was endeavoring to accumulate more money to remit to Logan and Bryan.

"Later, we wired $10,000 to our New York office to pay to Logan and Bryan for the account of the B.C. Bond Corporation," Mr. Stevens went on.

CANTON BREACH WITH NANKING IS WIDENING

Uprising More Serious Than Generally Believed, Says Rev. James Walsh

The uprising in Canton against the Nanking government appears to be more serious than indicated at the outset of the rebel move, according to Rev. James A. Walsh, M.Ap., superior general of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, with headquarters at Ossining, N.Y., who returned by the Ss. President Taft to-day after spending six months in China.

With the resumption of internecine fighting in the south of China the well-organized drive launched by Chinese forces against the communists will of necessity be abandoned, Rev. Mr. Walsh thinks. The country, in consequence, will receive a setback, from which it will take a long time to recover.

The attitude of Canton, he says, is reflected in the recent resignation of Ambassador Wu at Washington, D.C., who strongly voiced his objection to the export of United States arms and ammunition to China for the use of the Nationalist forces against the Cantonese rebels.

It is difficult to determine the exact situation in Canton, but the breach with Nanking exists and is steadily widening to the disadvantage of China as a whole, Rev. Mr. Walsh explained.

In the provinces of Kwangtung and Kwangsi the situation has greatly improved with no serious molestation of missions.

Rev. Mr. Walsh was met at the boat here by Father John C. Murett of Seattle.

LOGGER IS HURT AT BOWSER CAMP

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, June 16.—Fred Carlesso was hit with a booster at Thomsen and Clark's logging camp at Bowser this morning and received injuries to his spine, which necessitated his removal to Nanaimo Hospital by ambulance.

Bowser is forty-five miles of Nanaimo.

His Honor Judge Barker sustained conviction in the case of L. McGary, Victoria, charged with driving to common danger in Nanaimo, May 24. McGary appealed the case, but plea was dismissed. S. Cunliffe appeared for the plaintiff and V. B. Harrison for the crown.

An interesting presentation took place last week when the Young Ladies' Club of the St. Andrew's United Church presented Mrs. F. W. Anderson, who is leaving soon with her husband to take up their residence at Mission, with a beautiful siver flower basket. The president, Mrs. F. A. Busby, made the presentation, and the vice-president, Miss Lillian Carter, made special reference to the great assistance that Mrs. Anderson had rendered to the club.

Miss Elizabeth Dobeson, president of the Nanaimo Ladies' Musical Club, and a prominent worker in musical circles for the last thirty years, has been notified of her appointment as an "honorary local representative of the Associated Board of the R.A.M." Miss Dobeson was informed of her appointment by L. H. J. Minchin, resident secretary of British Columbia.

First New Crop Wheat Reaches Kansas City

Market experts were all agreed that the outlook is discouraging for a bull market in grains, and they warned their clients to unload their long holdings in preparation for a drop to new low levels. They declared the situation is now weaker than it has been before, because of the large carry-over and the size of the new crops coming on.

Kansas City, June 16.—Combines are expected to commence cutting and threshing within the next two or three weeks. Freight cars are being conditioned and ample motive power is ready for the wheat movement. As a result of good crops, a general business revival is looked for in the southwest by the middle of the summer.

Kansas City, June 16.—First consignment of new wheat of the season was received at Kansas City to-day. It came from Frederick, Okla., graded sample grade hard, testing 60 pounds, with 17.2 per cent moisture and 12 per cent protein. The car was sold at auction and brought 75½ cents, basis Kansas City.

To-day's weather report:

Manitoba, clear, no rain, 38 to 88.

Saskatchewan, clear to cloudy, 50 to 90, 30 minutes to one hour rain from St. Ranraer to Kerrobert, showers Saskatoon division.

Alberta, clear to cloudy, temperatures 47 to 90, showers at Clandonald, Staples and Lloydminster.

Washington, June 16,—Chairman Stone announced the Farm Board's stabilization wheat will be sold abroad so long as it does not disturb world markets. If a good foreign demand continues wheat will be offered in keeping with the board's policy of disposing of its huge surplus stock in a manner that will impose a minimum burden on other competitors, he said.

As for sales on the domestic market, the policy of careful handling was still in effect and he denied he had promised Kansas grain men a statement on whether the board would withhold 200,000,000 bushels from the markets for a year.

Canadian forecast:

Manitoba, fair and warm Wednesday, partly fair and warmer with local thunder showers.

Saskatchewan and Alberta, unsettled to-day and Wednesday, local thunderstorms to-day.

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, June 16—Wheat—The wheat market acted heavy to-day with prices on the extreme decline being 1¼ cents under the close last night and getting into the daily bids, which brought in a little local support and some recovery was shown in the late trade. There was considerable liquidation of July wheat going on both by outside interests and elevator companies. This caused the nearby month to lose ground on the more deferred months.

On the scale down there was some buying by export houses, but this was said to be largely against old business. The news was mostly of a bearish character to-day. Only a few loads of Manitobas were worked overnight and foreign interests appear to negligible. The statement that U.S. Farm Board would continue to sell its wheat abroad as long as it did not disturb the market was construed as bearish.

The Farm Board is holding between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 bushels and harvesting is starting on the new crop wheat. Present indications that the U.S. will have a surplus of about 600,000,000 bushels of wheat to dispose of unless serious damage takes place to the spring wheat crop.

There were some light showers in Alberta, but the forecast was for unsettled weather with rains promised Saskatchewan and Alberta, which will prove very beneficial outside of southern Saskatchewan, where irreparable damage has taken place. This situation, however, is being ignored aboard, and France and Italy have stated that they intend raising their import duties against foreign wheats.

Cash wheat market was slow. There was no change in the flour situation. The Canadian Government will issue a telegraph report on condition in Canada this afternoon and the pool is expected to issue a report on western Canada on Wednesday.

CHICAGO

(By Logan & Bryan)

Chicago, June 16. — Wheat: The market showed but little rallying power to-day during the fore part of the session, but there was some support around the bid prices and moderate rally in final trading. Weak cables caused considerable selling and bullish Canadian news had but little effect Some uncertainty abroad due to fear of farm board competition and to prospective heavy offerings of Russian wheat. Reports from Russia now indicate there has been a much larger spring wheat acreage put in than last year. Winter wheat reports are flattering, and on this account principally, the Canadian news falls flat. Rains were limited again in Canada and did not affect the main drought sections Our northwest was also dry with Pacific Coast report bullish. Trading market expected for time being.

Corn: Fairly steady with an absence of heavy pressure. Weakness in wheat caused little early selling. Weather conditions were generally favorable. Country offerings were not especially heavy and shipping demand was indifferent, abundance of cheap substitutes still offsetting the bullish statistical position of this grain. July appears to be easily congested on the soft spots.

Oats were rather heavy, more because of light buying than on any heavy selling. Receipts were eight cars estimated. Primary arrivals 222,000 bushels vs. 238,000 bushels year ago. Cash demanding fair, crop news favorable.

Rye was easy, affected by wheat to large extent. Shipping demand moderate.

BARRON'S SEES BUSINESS VEERING TOWARDS PROFITS

New York, June 16—Barron's Financial Weekly, in its issue to-day says:

"Contact with representative and conservative industrial leaders does not breed the intense pessimism that it did a year ago, when Wall Street was still chasing rainbows.

"Notwithstanding the continued subnormal level of activity, a good many business leaders are veering to the view that business, or rather the earning power of business, is headed in the right direction.

"The president of one of the biggest industrial companies in the country, whose speculative judgment is exceptionally keen, feels that industries have been under-producing for several months, that retail price shows that consumption is responding to lowered prices, and that the fall will bring a productive activity well above consumption in order to establish normal inventories."

CANADIAN BANKS RISE AS BABSON AIDS CONFIDENCE

Canadian Press

Montreal, June 16.—The main body of stocks was well up from the low of the day at the close, and many of the leaders held small fractional gains.

Montreal Power, Quebec Power, Steel of Canada, McColl-Frontenac and a few others showed actual price advances that ranged up to one point in the case of McColl. Southern Canada Power changed hands in odd lots at around 27, as compared with last night's close of 24½.

(By Logan & Bryan)

Montreal, June 16. — The Canadian stock markets worked through a dull and quite uninteresting session. In irregular fashion, a number of stocks on the list registered net gains and others losses, as compared with Monday's close. This gave the final price setup an irregular appearance, which, however, did not do more than partly cover up the basic steadiness of prices.

At times during the session, trading lagged and gave to the market an appearance of extreme dullness, which was not wholly borne out by sales volumes for either the morning or afternoon. The oil stocks were unchanged. The distillery issues were very dull and steady. National Breweries held its ground.

The bank stocks increased vitality, Montreal featuring with a nine-point net gain to 254, after quotations had strengthened several days between sales. Royal Bank was fractionally higher at 239. Much attention is being devoted at present to expressions of confidence coming from a number of business leaders in both Canada and the United States, these all tending to bear out pronouncements of Roger Babson, a popular American economist, to the effect that the return to prosperity is definitely under way, staking his reputation on the statement just as he did on another discussion not so long ago, when he anticipated in his public pronouncements the collapse of the bull market.

GERMANS LEAD BONDS UPWARD

Led by German loans the foreign group started an encouraging upward movement. German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of 1960 and the 5½s and 7s of the National Government jumped one point or more on steady trading, and other issues of that nation made good gains also, apparently because of returning confidence in the outlook for that country.

The New Treasury 3⅛s were the most active of the issues of the United States Government and they held close to the final prices of the initial day.

Sporadic activity developed among railroad issues which were generally lower. Chicago and Northwestern 4¾s. Missouri Pacific series F 5s, Canadian Pacific debenture 4s and St. Louis San San Francisco 4½s of 1978 dropped 1 point or more on steady selling. Fractional declines were common. The downward movement included both high grade and speculative bonds.

Industrial bonds dropped lower also, but the declines among them were principally fractional, and the volume usually was of moderate proportions. Goodyear 5s, International Match 5s and Shell Union Oil 5s were more active than most industrial issues. Public obligations resisted the downward trend.

C.P.R. SLIPS OFF TO ITS OLD LOW

Canadian Press

Toronto, June 16—Toronto Stock Exchange was at a standstill from midday until a few minutes before the close to-day. In the closing moments a half-hearted rally carried prices up from their lows but the range over all was narrow.

C.P.R., which at mid-day had declined to its old low of 25, closed at 25⅝. Ford of Canada reduced a fraction loss only to slip again and finish ½ point down at 16. Smelters at 89 was down 1, Service Stations at 11½ down 1 and Super Test down 1½ at 15¾. Dominion Stores, Noranda, B.A. Oil left off just under last night. Imperial steadied at 12 and International Petrolatum held at 10 or better. Nickel closed unchanged at 11⅞.

SUMMER HOMES

should have this FIRE PROTECTION

FAR from every hope of aid if a blaze takes hold, the inflammable construction of the average summer home makes it a source of danger and anxiety.

Minimize the fire hazard by lining inside walls and ceilings with inexpensive Gyproc Wallboard that does not burn.

This building material is made from gypsum rock into sheets 4 to 10 feet long, 4 feet wide and ⅜ of an inch thick. It nails and cuts as easily as lumber and with minimum waste.

Find out from your dealer how inexpensive Gyproc is; how easy to erect. Ask him for full information about its application or request a direction sheet from him.

Besides being fire-resistant, Gyproc has structural strength and insulation value. It is also draught and vermin-proof.

By panelling, you can save the expense of decoration, yet Gyproc is an excellent base for Alabastine, Gyptex or wallpaper.

GOLD HOARDS SEEN DELAYING TRADE REVIVAL

Drying Up of Loans Market Blamed By Bankers For Aiding Slump

The drying up of the international capital market is the most important reason for the collapse of prices and of world trade, according to J. Henry Schroeder & Co., London, in their Quarterly Review, issued to-day. It follows, they believe, that the restoration of the flow of foreign lending, if it can be achieved, will be a sound and effective method of curing the depression.

The review goes on to say:

"Obviously, the countries that are best able to set about this task are America and France, with their immense and unprofitable hoards of gold, that have drifted to them because their policy of high protection has prevented the settlement of their favorable balances by imports of goods and because they have been unwilling, for different reasons, to lend abroad.

POLITICS DETER RESTORATION

"This political unrest and uncertainty is a serious obstacles to any attempt at restoration of the capital market. All the business world can do is to make it clear that all borrowers who can show that they are doing their best to put their house in order and meet their obligations, will find a ready ear when they try to borrow. Another difficulty in the way is the mind of the general public, for unless the real investor will take foreign issues and give them a permanent home, the issuing houses and the banks and brokers and all the machinery of finance cannot do much toward placing them.

"There remains yet another difficulty, that of official or semi-official restrictions on foreign issues, dictated by political and other considerations. Such restrictions although ineffective, have been in force in France and in some other countries for many years.

WORLD BANK AN AID

"Embargoes on new issues merely mean that the centre in which they are applied has to forego the commissions attached to the business, as large investors, trust companies and insurance companies are always willing to purchase attractive issues in foreign markets, whether in dollars, francs, or other sound currencies. These embargoes cannot stop an outward flow of capital, if the country's citizens want to send it abroad.

"Something has been done and much more has been discussed toward securing the freer movement of capital. At the beginning of March a new international mortgage bank was founded in Basle. Its creation was welcomed on the ground that, apart from the requirements of agriculture, there is crying need for the diversion of a part of the existing plethora of short money into medium and long-term channels."

N. Y. Market Analysis

The Wall Street Journal to-day says:

"The market the last week has been able to ignore developments which would have had an unfavorable influence only two weeks earlier. This is a reflection of the change in sentiment which has been brought about by the operations of those who have been inclined to look for higher prices. This group, though small, has been able to attract floor traders to the long side in certain stocks. They are apparently working to get an outside following because a public demand would help materially in causing further upturns.

"Action of the rails is considered significant because these stocks have been the leaders in all important movements in past months. Many believe that if the market is to continue its advance there should be increased buying in industrials and public utilities shortly. Because of this view professionals who adopted a long position in industrials and utilities are inclined to hold on to the stocks. It will need advances in these departments to confirm the action of the rails. A number of the active traders are waiting for the market to break out of the trading range for industrials. If the bull group can carry these issues into new high ground for the movement it would be considered important.

"Should the low levels of the trading range be broken it would be viewed as a warning signal and bring increased profit taking. Technically, the market has acted as though support can be anticipated for industrials around their lows of the recent range. Long pull buyers are likely to come into the market when these prices are being approached and this will mean resistance for the sellers.

"The popular opinion is that the market will continue irregular within its recent trading range. Conservative observers favor scale buying on reactions with the protection of stops and are warning followers against adopting the short side around current levels."

Retail Trade Halts Downward Trend, Says Bradstreets

Retail trade appears to have halted at least temporarily its downward tendency, with some sections of the country reporting gains in the preceding week, says Bradstreet's to-day.

Pressure to move goods has helped large stores to exceed sales volumes of a year ago, says Dun's.

FOOD INDEX LOWER

Wholesale food prices which held steady last week, show a slightly lower trend last week. Bradstreet's Weekly Food Index stands at $2.14, and is at the lowest point since this index was started in 1916. The decrease from the previous week is four-tenths of one per cent, while the drop from a year ago is 22.5 per cent.

Weekly price changes in Bradstreet's list of eighty-seven commodities of all kinds make a better showing this week. There were eighteen advances this week, eighteen declines and fifty-one unchanged. A week ago the increases numbered ten, decreases twenty-four, with fifty-three remaining unchanged.

FOREIGN BOND PROSPECTS SEEN

By MAX WINKLER

New York, June 16—Recent events in the foreign securities markets were featured by reports to the effect that Sir Otto Niemeyer had recommended to Brazil a moratorium, and that Germany would also seek a postponement for two years o fthe so-called postponable part of reparations payments. As a result of these rumors both Brazilian and German issues declined rather sharply. The Brazilian government, however, as well as Brazil's bankers in London, definitely denied the earlier reports which had reached us and stated that Sir Otto's recomdations had not been made public.

Most of the Brazilian issues traded in on our markets would, at present prices, appear to have more than discounted even complete cessation of debt service, even though it is not impossible that Brazil might continue payment in new funding bonds, as was done twice before within the past generation.

With regard to Germany it is safe to state that, irrespective of whatever fate may befall her political obligations, the service on Germany's commerical loans is not likely to be interrupted. On the contrary, temporary interruption in or elimination of reparations payments should favorably affect the status of Germany's commercial obligtions; that is, all such bonds (including the Dawes and Young loans) as have been sold on behalf of the Reich, the states, the cities and corporations, and as have been distributed among the investors throughout the world.

AUSTRALIA

Australian loans, exclusive of short-term indebtedness, which are due for payment during the period 1931-1933, aggregate £185,600,000, of which £22,600,000 is due in London, the balance of £163,000,000, or 87.82 per cent of the total, being due in Australia. With the major portion of the indebtedness payable at home, one would seem justified in adopting a somewhat more optimistic attitude toward Australia and her capacity to fulfil her contractual obligations.

CHINA

Whereas only a short while ago Chinese nationalist pointed to the dangers incident upon foreign "exploitation" of the country's resources, the Nanking administration has sanctioned the establishment of a research association to study the advantages of utilizing foreign capital in China. What the opening up of a market comprising some 450,000,000 potential consumers would mean to the rest of the world can readily be conjectured.

GERMANY

A study made of the comparative debt burden of German states reveals that debt service for 1930 absorbs about $15.41 per capita in Bavaria, $13.62 in Baden, $5.30 in Prussia, and only 33 cents in Wuerttemberg. The average for all German states is given as 35.41 reichsmarks, equivalent at par exchange to $8.43 per capita.

ITALY

The Banca Commerciale Italiana, Italy's leading commercial bank and one of the foremost European financial institutions, has extended to Turkey a credit to the amount of £1,000,000. It is estimated that American capital has taken a small interest in the transaction.

POLAND

The Kreuger & Toll interests are negotiating with Poland in regard to the formation of a Polish Mortgage Bank. The Swedish group has already acquired the match monopoly and the telephone system in Poland.

The actual result of the current fiscal year (1930-1931) shows a deficit of 50,000,000 zloty, as compared with an estimated surplus of 100,000,000.

Firestone Business Shows Big Increase

Encouraging business news comes from the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, reporting their profits for the first six months of the current fiscal year are double the earnings of the entire year of 1930.

Following a meeting of the board of directors of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Harvey S. Firestone, president, made the following announcement: "Net profit of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and all subsidiaries for the first six months ending April 30, 1931, after deducting depreciation, interest, taxes, etc., was $2,908,553.20. This compares with a profit of $1,541,034 for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1930."

Commenting on the foregoing announcement, E. W. BeSaw, president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, stated: "I am happy to confirm this announcement as far as the Canadian organization is concerned. Our business has shown a substantial increase in every province of the Dominion, and we believe that the next six months will show a corresponding gain."

The showing of the Firestone Company is especially significant in that it represents, not what any one locality or group thinks about business, but rather the feeling of every nook and cranny of the country—big cities and small cities, villages and farms. The great tire companies sell their product everywhere and to every economic class. The wealthy owner of expensive cars, the owners of ancient flivvers, the owners of great bus and truck fleets—all unite to make the tire companies' business good or bad as these buyers themselves feel prosperous or the reverse.

Crow's Nest Coal Earnings Drop

Toronto, June 16.—A balance at the credit of profit and loss account of $2,984, as compared with $115,632 at the end of the previous business year is announced in the thirty-fourth annual financial report of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company.

The report of the directors covering the period to December 31 1930, states that a balance of $115,632 was carried forward from 1929. To this was added $166,881, the net profit for 1930, after deduction of income tax, making a total of $282,513. From this amount directors paid three dividends of one and a half per cent each, or four and a half per cent for the year, which totaled $279,529.

OPEN BETTING TO BE RESTORED

Old-time Bookies Called Back Into Action in Ring at Agua Caliente

Agua Caliente, Baja California, Mexico, June 16.—Confirming the rumor, officially, that the next Agua Caliente Jockey Club winter race meeting, scheduled to start a month earlier—Thanksgiving Day, instead of Christmas—will conduct an "open betting ring," in which all high class and responsible bookmakers will be invited to operate James N. Crofton, president of the racing plant, stated that immediately the news was flashed over the country by the various press organizations, he received a flood of telegrams of approval, also assurance from many prominent "bookies" that they will welcome this opportunity to winter in the California sunshine and at the same time be able to ply their vocation in a big manner.

Crofton, in making the announcement of the "open ring," made it plain that he and his associates have had this move in mind for a long time. He also dispelled any intimation that the Jockey Club want to retain a "percentage" interest in the books that will set up their stands, ready to meet "all comers." Those who operate will pay a stipulated sum per day for the privilege as is customary.

"When the Agua Caliente track was first planned," stated Crofton, "Mr. Bowman, then president of the racing plant, Mr. Long and other members of the executive board, talked of having an 'open ring' and decided to wait until the track was firmly established before making such a move. This insured getting the finest type of bookmakers to come here, men whose integrity is unquestioned. Also incidentally, whose bank rolls are of the size that are generally known to be used to try and "choke elephants" with.

"I am in hopes of seeing Tom Shaw 'on the block' here, also such well-known operators as Morty Lynch, Max Kalik, Col. Abe Hallow, Johnny Rogan, Bert Wells, Bill Beverly and even, possibly, Colcy Madden—who has retired from operating his big book in the clubhouse on the New York tracks—may decide to take a fling at the game."

When The Foods You Like Upset Your Stomach

Do This For Quick Relief

It's a fine thing to get up from a hearty meal, knowing that the food you have enjoyed will be easily digested, without pain or any stomach suffering. Yet, it's the easiest thing in the world to avoid indigestion or, if you are a habitual sufferer, to stop it, and keep the stomach in perfect health. Just a little "Bisurated" Magnesia, either powder or tablets, taken after eating, instantly neutralizes the excess acids which cause the trouble, prevents fermentation and gas formation, and soothes and strengthens the stomach lining. "Bisurated" Magnesia, which is sold by reliable druggists everywhere, is the treatment recommended by Doctors and by thousands of one-time sufferers, who have proved again and again that it is a prompt and certain reliever of acid-caused digestive troubles. The Handsome Man

"Did you bring the braw lad over to marry American dollars, aunty?" She asked it in her most honeyed tone. "And did you have me in your mind at the time?"

Slowly her aunt counted potatoes and began to wash them at the sink.

"I thought I was taking a risk bringing my bonnie lad over here, but I said to myself, at least Roberta would have her head screwed on, and would know enough to stand aside and give him a chance at some fine, rich girl. I gave you credit for the wit to see that though American dollars might be handy for Sandisbrae, almost any other girl would have a better chance than the daughter of Rob MacBeth. Your father was a joiner and builder on the estate, and his father before him."

Roberta looked at her speechless, so angry that she dared not open her mouth.

"Aye, the money might better come from pills or pork or groceries. The gentry would swallow it and a stranger in Sandisbrae easier than they would Rob's daughter."

"Leave me out of it," Roberta flamed. "Don't you think for a moment, I'll—"

"So far from it," her aunt declared vigorously, "that I'm just fair upset to see that you share the fatal weakness of the MacBeth family."

"What's that?" snapped Roberta, noting with surprise the professional manner in which Landy Sandison pared the potatoes.

"They're jist slaves to beauty, the whole clanjamfray of them," declared her aunt solemnly, "and you're as bad as the rest. Watch what you're doing, lass! You're haggling that loaf something awful."

"This isn't Scotland where there's hard scrabbling to get bread—and a man," Roberta told her with scorn. "Why there are heaps of good looking men over here. Your little beauty isn't in danger."

"So you say," said her aunt. "Time will tell. It's as well, Roberta, not to boast until you've tried out your strength."

"Fudge! I'm not reduced to poor Scots my father has to find jobs for." She disregarded the sudden warning look her aunt gave her, and continued, emphasizing her point with the bread knife. "He's good looking enough to make some girls lose their heads but I'm my father's daughter to this extent that the man who tries to make an impression on me will have to have something more than an angel face, big eyes, pretty hair and stand six feet—"

"Six feet three." From the doorway Sir George gravely corrected her. "Your sentiments are mine, Miss MacBeth. Let's stick to them."

CHAPTER IV

Her father had automatically cut off the greater part of Roberta's allowance, when her aunt became housekeeper. Roberta had had a stormy interview, in which her father had told her that as she was not willing to keep house she would not be paid for housekeeping. He had explained to her, in his business voice which was calm and devoid of any feeling whatever, that Lady Sandison had offered to do without payment, but that of course he would not permit.

"I recognize," he said, "that it is a job to run a big house. I recognized it when you tried it. That's why I increased your allowance, and that's why I reduce it now."

"Tried!" Roberta flashed out passionately. "I did it."

"After a fashion," he father told her, "but you didn't put your mind on it. You disliked it and you didn't do it very well. Witness your pulling out yesterday, and leaving a crippled man alone without a servant to attend to him, or to the unexpected guests who arrived."

"Guests should not come uninvited and unexpected all the way from bonnie Scotland," said Roberta flippantly. "Neither should relatives come without warning. Lady Sandison took that chance when she came here dragging little beauty with her."

"You don't like him, do you?" asked her father, ignoring the rest of her speech.

"I haven't bothered my head about him," Roberta told him angrily. "He's your guest, or employee, not mine."

"Just so. Well, he's not to be made to feel himself in the way."

Roberta opened his eyes.

"I mean what I say." Rob MacBeth went on, still using his business manner and voice. "He's valuable to me. I like him, and as he's a young man he's to be paid some attention by the younger member of my family. I mean by that you are to see that he is properly introduced to any young people who come, if I'm not here. I'm not asking you to sacrifice yourself or do anything that might bore you."

"I won't," Roberta promised him with vehemence.

Her father held back the things he would have liked to say to her, and went one step farther along in his campaign to bring Roberta to her senses.

"Since you don't care for housekeeping, Roberta, and I must pay a housekeeper, have you thought of anything you would care to study?"

Roberta gave him a prolonged stare before she answered. "Study? Why, I've left school."

Her father nodded. "Still you won't like hanging around idle, will you?"

Roberta opened her mouth and spoke, as is the habit of the younger generation, without thought and with heat, forgetting how wary are these middle-aged people—how quick to perceive and use any loopholes given them.

"I don't know what I want. Except to get away from this place."

"Girls who don't know what they want are dangerous animals to let loose in strange surroundings. When you know what you want come to me and we'll talk it over. Happiness, by the way, comes from within."

She hated him for his reasonableness.

Looking at her his face softened. "There was a time, Roberta, when you would have come to me and talked it over."

It was true. To her, as a child, her father had been someone great and powerful, whose coming meant gifts and fun, circuses, party clothes and treats innumerable. To be with her father, to walk beside him, silent or chattering as his mood permitted, to travel with him, to go to his office and see him monarch of all; to be made much of and to be admired by him and his friends, was as near heaven as this earth could give to Robert MacBeth's little daughter.

It was different now. Now she wanted to arrange her own life, be happy in her own way, and here her father, once her greatest ally, to whom she ran for advice and suggestions, was decidedly in the way.

"Don't you feel like going over your plans with me? Her father had been studying her downcast face.

She shook her head. She was oppressed with a desire to climb into his lap, to put her head against his shoulder as she used to do, but she would not yield to it. So across the gulf of the years that separated them, they looked at each other helplessly.

Helplessness being a state that Robert MacBeth was unaccustomed to and declined to accept, he said peremptorily: "Well, when you want me I'm here, my girl, and meantime what shall we do to make your aunt's visit pleasant?"

"I think you can manage that between you without my help," snapped Roberta.

"Just as you like. I thought it might amuse you to engineer it. Sir George will be a bit of a sensation here, don't you think?"

"I don't know. He doesn't interest me in the least."

Her father's face expressed a not too polite incredulity. "Since when?" he asked.

"Since I first saw him."

"Why?"

"Oh, I don't know. He's good looking enough but he has no—" she felt her father's amused eyes upon her and blurted it out, "no sex appeal."

Her father shouted with laughter and, mortified, Roberta withdrew. She had seen Sir George coming from the library as she fled to the summer house, while her father still roared with delight over her last speech.

It was little less than marvelous how Lady Sandison took hold of the housekeeping. Roberta, anticipating the terrible awakening her aunt would have when she encountered the usual American housekeeping difficulties, had so far been disappointed. Lady Sandison knew, none better, how housework should be done, and she saw that it was done in just that way.

She knew that in Roberta she had an enemy rather than an ally. Therefore she asked her brother, casually, how much his household bills amounted to on an average and being told, and shown the bills for the last few months, she had interviewed the new cook, stated the limit within which the bills were to be kept, promised her a bonus for any saving, and wiped that worry from her mind. She knew she had an ally in the new cook now, had made a possible saving for her brother's purse, and later, when she knew more, she could be more drastic. Lady Sandison, like most Scots of her class, was careful rather than mean, and provided well for both family and servants.

She was busy working out her plans, and adjusting herself to this vastly different life, with its vastly different needs, that she found herself plunged into. She was likewise very much concerned about her brother. It was her opinion that Rob was far too young a man to be crippled in this manner and she was planning an energetic campaign in which she meant to enlist the doctor, to get Rob to take a holiday far from domestic and office worries. But Rob would be hard to move and Roberta promised to be a barrier to any plan that took him from home just now.

"It was a mistake to tell Roberta your title."

"It would have been a bigger mistake to make a secret of it," said his sister, "and Roberta's no easily fooled. If you had tricked her she would have been just wild. She's red headed."

"I don't recognize her at all," said Roberta's irritated father. "Six months ago when she left school, you wouldn't have wanted to know a sweeter or better mannered girl."

"Who's the man?"

Robert glanced at his sister. "You're daft, Aggy! She's a mere child. She's popular enough with the boys, but there's no man. At least, there's no one in particular, that I know of."

"It's the one you don't know that counts. She has something up her sleeve. What is it?"

Robert MacBeth shook his head. "She hates the island," he admitted reluctantly.

Aggy looked about her and sighed. "It's a bonnie place. But you never can tell about young people."

There was a pause.

"Was there nothing Roberta ever asked you to let her do, Rob, and you refused?"

He shook his head. "Not any one particular thing. I think she had an idea she'd like to go abroad, but I thought that would come later. Anyway, she hasn't made any clamor about it."

Aggy nodded her head. "Well, it will break out somewhere, and where you least expect it. I wish she'd fill the house with young folks. I'd like fine to see her amused."

"I'll give a party for you and Sir George. That'll stir up things maybe."

"Maybe," agreed Aggy and sighed. "I wish she liked me."

Rob sighed, too. "It's strange the two women I like best will neither of them like each other."

"I like her fine," declared Aggy. "It's me she cannot thole. She's under a good deal of strain, Rob. I wouldn't give this party unless she wants it. You're likely to have her make it a terrible failure if you give it before she's agreeable."

"I wish I knew what to do," said Roberta's father. "I know this is only a temporary phase of Roberta's character we're seeing now, but I don't like it. It gives an entirely wrong view of Roberta. When she is nice—is herself, I mean—no girl could be sweeter."

"I take your word for it," said Lady Sandison.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Soapy Suds

(Copyright, 1931, by Howard R. Garis.)

All of a sudden, as Uncle Wiggily was looking at the cat lady who was washing her face, he saw her back hump up in an arch like one of those cute little bridges on a blue china plate. The cat lady stopped washing her face and her tail began to puff up like a big bologna sausage. She opened her mouth and funny noises popped out.

"Whatever is the matter, wash cat?" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Matter enough!" mewed the cat lady. "That dog you brought with you is the matter, Zizz!" and the cat hissed like a steam radiator on a cold and frosty morning. "I always puff out my tail, hiss and arch up my back when I see a dog," mewed the cat.

"Oh, excuse me! I didn't mean to get so close," barked the jolly old dog who had come with Uncle Wiggily who was looking for some one to do his wife's washing. "But I won't hurt you—I like cats."

"Oh, well, then everything is all right," mewed the cat. She unpuffed her tail, she unarched her back and she took back all her hisses and smiled at the dog, who stretched out on the green moss near the woodland stump on top of which the cat sat.

"I have been looking for you," said Uncle Wiggily. "This kind jolly, old dog, whom I met in the woods when I was looking for some one to wash the clothes, pointed you out to me. I'm sorry if he scared you."

"It was only for a moment," mewed the cat. "But what was that you said about washing the clothes?"

"Nurse Jane is away," explained Uncle Wiggily, "my wife has a sore paw. There are a lot of dirty clothes in the bungalow that need washing. There is plenty of soap and hot water to make suds. I told my wife, since the wash rabbit didn't come, I'd look for some one else."

"And I saw you washing your face," sleepily barked the jolly dog, "so I thought you might be a wash lady cat for Uncle Wiggily."

"No, thank you!" mewed the cat. "I don't wash."

"But you were just washing your face," said Uncle Wiggily, who was beginning to feel much disappointed.

"That's different," went on the cat, who was now washing the other side of her face with her other paw and combing out her whiskers. "I always wash my face, but I don't go out washing clothes."

"Oh, excuse me," spoke Mr. Longears. "I'm sorry!"

"But perhaps, just this once, on account of Nurse Jane being away and Mrs. Longears having a sore paw, you might wash the rabbit clothes, don't you think?" asked the dog.

The tabby cat kept on washing her face. Then she began to wash her tail, using her tongue, of course. I don't mean to say the cat lady dipped her tail in water. No, indeed. Then she said:

"Well, I don't mind just this once. I'd like to do Uncle Wiggily a favor. But I don't like to mix up the soap suds. I'll wash the clothes and hang them out to dry if somebody will mix the soap suds."

"I'll gladly do that," offered Uncle Wiggily. "Come to my bungalow as fast as you can. My wife is so worried about the washing!"

"Lead the way and I'll follow," promised the cat.

"Good luck to you!" wished the jolly old dog going to sleep.

"Did you find a wash rabbit?" she called.

"No, but I found a wash cat," answered Uncle Wiggily. "Here she is," and he introduced the wash lady cat to his rabbit lady wife. "I'll get the soapy suds all ready," went on Uncle Wiggily. "My wife, with her sore paw, can't do it," he added.

"Get everything ready and I'll wash the clothes," promised the cat.

Down in the laundry Uncle Wiggily was mixing the soap in the hot water, making a lovely sudsy lather when, all of a sudden some one called in the open laundry window:

"Oh, are you going to blow soap bubbles? And may I help?" Uncle Wiggily looked up and saw the Fox. At first the Fox thought it was the lady wash rabbit down in the laundry and the Fox was going to pretend to blow soap bubbles until he had a chance to catch Uncle Wiggily. But when the Fox saw it was the rabbit gentleman himself the Bad Chap started to climb in the window to get him.

"Going to blow soap bubbles?"

"None of that! Take this!" cried Mr. Longears. Then he splashed a lot of soapy suds in the eyes, nose and mouth of the Fox, through the window and the Fox howled, yowled and scowled and away he ran back to his den. Uncle Wiggily laughed and said it was a good thing he knew how to make soap suds. Then the wash cat made all the clothes clean for Mrs. Longears and Nurse Jane and everybody was happy.

So if the cake of soap doesn't jump up and down and splash all the water out of the bath tub I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the big eyes.

Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 17, 1931

Adverse aspects dominate strongly in the horoscope for this day, according to astrology. It is a time to be exceedingly careful in all important matters.

While it is a fortunate time for signing advertising contracts, leases and other legal papers should be ignored, it is pointed out.

It is wise to postpone business that entails decisions or plans that affect future politics, astrologers declare.

The judgment is not to be trusted while this configuration prevails. This applies to romance as well as business.

Under this direction of the stars deception may be practiced more easily than at other times, it is believed.

Deceit and lack of frankness may mark the conduct of persons who seek business interviews, it is foretold.

Women may be unusually coquettish and difficult to deal with in business, for the stars encourage guile.

This is not a lucky rule for theatres or those who play in them. Audiences may be discouragingly cold and unresponsive.

Care should be exercised in speech during this planetary government, for words easily lead to trouble.

The wise will be especially careful to avoid arguments, since quarrels are readily started under this rule.

As most of the eclipses this year fall in Aries or Libra all the astrologers who find them in line with Uranus predict a rapid succession of world events within the next few months.

Great reforms, marvelous inventions and tremendous advances in science are foretold as part of this year's history.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of large achievements and small vexations.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly serious in their characters and able to become leaders of their fellow men and women.

John Wesley, founder of Methodism, was born on this day, 1703. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Edward I, King of England, 1239; Charles Prohman, 1858, theatrical manager.

Gold Piling Up In Ottawa Treasury

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 16.—Gold held by the Minister of Finance against Dominion notes and deposits in the government savings banks on May 31 totaled $88,245,710. This was $7,564,551 above statutory requirements, according to a statement issued at the Finance Department. Dominion notes in circulation at the end of May amounted to $152,250,754, and gold held against them was $78,250,754 and $2,430,404 in gold was held to fulfil the statutory ten per cent requirement for savings bank deposits. The balance is in excess of the total needed.

"HERE'S YOUR START in LIFE, SON"

The Imperial Child's Thrift Plan

Have you a boy? Many times you have thought you would like to start a definite savings plan to ensure a good education or a good start in business for him.

You would like to have a plan which would teach him the value of thrift while he is young.

But—all ordinary savings plans have one big drawback—"Who would continue the savings should I die before he becomes of age?"

Under our Child's Thrift Plan your savings fund is arranged through a life insurance policy on the boy. It provides that should you die at any time The Imperial Life will waive the subsequent premium deposits until the lad has reached 21, when he will take over the Policy and make the remaining deposits, if any, himself.

This plan of savings can be arranged for either your boy or girl and at any age. Why not give your child the benefit of this method of building up a fund which will guarantee to him or her a good start in life?

Ask us to send you an interesting leaflet which describes the Plan in greater detail. There is no obligation.

GRAIN TRADE TRYING TO GET PRICES HIGHER

But Even If Canadian Crop Were Cut to 100,000,000 World Would Have Lots

Chicago, June 16. — Grain traders feel that, despite the fact that the United States Government has more than 200,000,000 bushels of cash wheat, it is to be held for better prices, and will incur a carrying charge of about 18 to 20 cents a bushel a year. There will be little old wheat sold except at prices materially higher, around 85 cents or more, if possible. In the meantime the grain trade is preparing to take care of the new winter wheat crop, harvesting of which is starting in the southwest, and will soon be a big factor. A few sales of new No. 2 red wheat were made in central Texas at 55 cents per bushel, the weight test being 63 pounds, with around 14 per cent moisture. At Chicago new No. 2 red wheat sold at 57 cents, August 15 to September 15 shipment.

FARMERS SELL DESPITE LOW PRICE

Expectations are that the new crop will be marketed in a liberal way and will go largely to millers, as farmers need money. This seems to be the case all over the wheat belt. An Indiana farmer, asked about his crop, said, "We have the biggest crop ever raised." It was suggested to him that the price would be low, to which he replied, "Never mind the price, what we want is the money. We can sell two bushels for the price of one."

MILLERS TO ABSORB FIRST RUN

Millers are expected to absorb the first run of new wheat in the southwest, and the impression prevails that they will not want to hedge it, owing to the low prices. Elevators and railroad facilities are in the best possible shape all over the winter wheat belt for carrying the new wheat which will be moving in volume by the end of this month in Texas and Oklahoma.

The southwest and Nebraska have had rains which have been beneficial. In the northwest good general rains are needed urgently on both sides of the international line. It is said that unless drought is relieved inside ten days spring wheat crop prospects will be greatly reduced. It is well to remember, however, that western Canada is estimated to have around 23,000,000 acres, and that even without general rains there a fair-sized crop might be obtained. Estimates by Winnipeg operators range as low as 200,000,000 bushels and up to 300,000,000 bushels for Canada. Last year's crop was 398,000,000 bushels compared with a short crop of 305,000,000 bushels in 1929, and an average yield of 431,000,000 bushels for the last five years.

SEE LOTS OF WHEAT

Those who are bearish say that should western Canada raise only 100,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, there would be, with the carryover, more than sufficient for bread and seed, leaving a comfortable surplus for export. In the United States a winter wheat crop of close to 700,000,000 bushels is regarded as sufficient for all requirements.

In case of a serious shortage of spring wheat in the northwest and a bull movement with an advance of 15 to 20 cents a bushel, the Farm Board might sell all the wheat for future delivery that the trade could absorb, and in that way reduce its holdings. Farm Board officials, however, believe that next year there will be a heavy reduction in acreage in all countries and that eventually they will be able to work off their big supplies.

What Sacrifices Must Be Made to Insure a Happy Marriage?—Man Who Must Reveal His Past to Save His Children

DEAR MISS DIX—Please tell me what sacrifices it requires to keep love alive in the hearts of both the husband and wife. X. Y. Z.

ANSWER:

It requires the sacrifice of self. It requires the putting of another's pleasure and interest and happiness before one's own. Selfishness kills love quicker than anything else on earth. The egotistic, self-centred husbands and wives who take the best of everything for themselves, who run roughshod over all about them and who never consider any one else soon crush out all affection in the breasts of their mates.

To keep your husband or wife in love with you, you must sacrifice many of your tastes and habits. You must give up many things that you like to do and do many things that it bores you to do, and you must do it with a smile, as if you enjoyed it, instead of wearing the expression of a martyr.

The husband must step out with his wife many an evening when he is tired and would like nothing so much as to drowse over paper and pipe. He must stay at home many a time with her and the babies when he would like to be downtown playing poker with the boys. He must do without the new gun or the new fishing rod he craves, to buy her the frock on which she has set her heart. He must pretend the cordiality he does not feel when her family come on interminable visits.

The wife must grab her hat and step out when husband wants to go, even if she is tired to death cleaning house. She must appear to enjoy vaudeville when her taste runs to grand opera. She must trot around with him over golf links if he wants her to play with him or refrain from posing as a golf widow if he prefers to play with men. She must be willing to take the trouble to humor him and to please him and to fuss over him when he is sick and to listen to him when he wants to talk and be interested in everything he does and not expect him to be thrilled at hearing about everything that she does.

If a husband and wife are to keep in love with each other they must make the sacrifice of controlling their temper and their tongues. They must not fly into rages and say the things that cut like two-edged swords and leave wounds that never heal. They must not indulge themselves in the luxury of criticizing each other and telling each other of their faults and shortcomings. On the contrary, no other people in the world should be so careful of what they say to each other as married people. And they should avoid argument and take the trouble to walk around each other's peculiarities and prejudices instead of bumping into them.

And finally, and above all, they should make the sacrifice of not permitting themselves to take the easiest way and slump after marriage. This applies not only to personal appearance but to manners and conversation also. Because husbands and wives have to look at each other every day of their lives, they should make every effort to keep themselves as easy on the eyes as they can. Because they have to live together they should treat each other with more courtesy and consideration and regard each other's feelings more than they do any one else's on earth. And because they are thrown upon each other for daily companionship they should strive to keep themselves interesting to each other.

Oh, marriage calls for many sacrifices, but they pay.

* * * * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—When I was a youngster I became the father of an illegitimate baby whose mother died. I placed the child in an orphan asylum from which it was adopted by a nice family. Later I married and have two fine children, and here is the trouble: My daughter, now twenty-three, has fallen in love with my illegitimate son and she wants to marry him. Neither, of course, knows of the relationship. Nor does anyone else but me. What shall I do about it? Shall I tell them?

ANSWER:

Certainly. It is your bounden duty to prevent a tragedy such as this marriage would be. But how our sins come back to torture us!

Our Own Safety Week

AVOIDING FALLS

The old saying, "What goes up comes down," is a good one to remember when we climb a ladder, a tree or anything else. If we come down too suddenly we may have to spend weeks in a hospital.

Falls of this kind bring a heavy toll in the home.

When you climb stairs, watch your step. You may miss a step and slide down half a dozen. Also take care on your way downstairs. Hundreds of persons are killed every year by falls down stairways.

The steps should be of exactly equal height all the way from bottom to top — remember that if you build a home. There should be a handrail on each side of every stairway—such a small help may save a life.

Sometimes a housewife places a dustpan, broom or mop on a stairway, meaning to pick it up a minute later. She may forget it, and someone may stumble against it and fall. A worn carpet or a child's toy at the head of a stairway may cause an accident.

In homes where there are babies or very small children, a gateway should protect the head of each stairway. Babies who hurt their heads in bad falls sometimes grow up to be serious misfits.

Another cause of falling is the use of support which is not firm. A housewife, trying to reach a high shelf, may stand on the edge of a chair. If the chair tips, it may spell T-R-A-G-E-D-Y. A short, firmly-built stepladder is found useful by some housewives. If you use a chair, be sure to stand near the middle of the seat.

High heels are a danger to life and limb. In a single year more than 4,000 girls and women in the United States were killed or injured through falls due to high heels, according to the figures of a supervisor of safety education. I believe the day will come when all women will refuse to wear high-heeled shoes.

Fruit peelings on street or sidewalk may cause someone to slip and fall. If you see such a peeling, remove it. This verse has been written about those who think of the safety of others:

Or shoves a rock out of a traveled road.
His feet are moving toward the central star,
His name is whispered in the gods' abode."

Corporation Profits Changes Analyzed

New York, June 16.—A national survey by Ernst and Ernst indicates that profits of 313 industrial corporations during the first quarter of this year were 58.94 per cent less than those of the corresponding quarter of 1930. For 71 railroads net operating income was 9.94 per cent less, 100 public utilities companies profits decline 4.41 per cent, while 105 telephone companies operating income showed an increase of .08 per cent. For all groups, comprising 689 companies, profits declined 7.03 per cent.

Of twenty-five groups of industrial companies lower earnings were shown by twenty-three groups, while two groups aeronautics and coal mining showed increases. It is pointed out by the survey that comparison of the first quarter of 1931 with the first quarter of 1930 is somewhat unfair to the 1931 figures, as 1930 was a year of declining profits and the first quarter was the best of the year. If profits for the 313 industries in 1930 were divided into four equal parts, the comparison of the first quarter of 1931 would show a shrinkage of 45.42 per cent instead of the 58.84 per cent shown

DAIRY MARKETS

Car lot prices of fresh Ontario and prairie eggs were unchanged, extras being quoted at 22 to 22½ cents, firsts at 17 to 18½ and seconds at 15 to 15½ cents a dozen. British Columbia fresh extras and firsts, in carlots, were 23 to 23½ cents and 18 to 18½ cents a dozen respectively. Cheese, Ontario, 11¼ cents; cheese, Quebec, 10½ cents; butter, No. 1 finest, fresh, 20½; eggs, fresh specials in cartons, 28 cents; eggs, fresh extras in cartons, 26 cents; eggs, fresh firsts in cartons, 22 cents.

H.M.S. Dragon Will Arrive Here Sunday

Plans Being Made to Receive British Destroyer Coming From Bermuda Station

Has Extensive Itinerary in B.C.; Carries 450 Men and Is Heavily Armored

Preparations are being made this week at the Esquimalt Naval Barracks to receive H.M.S. Dragon, of His Majesty's Bermuda station, which is expected in Esquimalt's historic harbor next Sunday evening in the course of an extensive training cruise in Pacific waters.

The itinerary has now been received here for the time the ship left Bermuda until she returns early in October. Many ports in the province will be visited while the Dragon is here, and while in the northwest she will visit Esquimalt or Victoria on three different occasions.

The Dragon left Bermuda on May 22, and went from there to Colon, on he eastern end of the Panama Canal. She left that port May 29 and went to Acatulco, Mexico, where she remained three days, leaving on June 6 for San Pedro, where she spent twelve hours taking on oil and supplies. To-day she is at Monterey Bay.

The trim British destroyer will spend until July 3 in Esquimalt. Much entertainment is being planned for the complement aboard and visitors' days are also being arranged. These will be announced later. After visiting Comox the Dragon will return to Victoria or Esquimalt on July 18, and will remain until July 22. The sailors will take part during that period in the celebrations which will be held here to celebrate B.C.'s sixtieth anniversary into Confederation. It is probable the Dragon with berth at the Ogden Point piers during that time. She will remain at Comox from July 3 to July 18.

EXTENSIVE ITINERARY

Following is the ship's itinerary after leaving Victoria on her second visit: Ladysmith, July 22 and July 27; Vancouver, July 27 to August 3; Prince Rupert, August 14 to August 10; Port Simpson, August 10 to August 14; Ketchikan, August 14 to August 19; Esquimalt, August 21, leaving same day; Uckuklesit, August 22 to August 26; Santa Barbara, August 29 to September 7; San Diego, September 8 to September 11; Balboa, on the Pacific end of the Panama Canal, September 21 to September 22, Kingston, Jamaica, September 29 and arrival at Bermuda, October 2.

The Dragon is a sister ship to the Dauntless, Despatch, Delhi, Durban and Danae, all of which have visited Esquimalt harbor. She was launched in 1918, and since then has served in all parts of the British Empire. She has a length of 472 feet, a breadth of forty-six feet and a depth of sixteen and has a displacement of 4,650 tons. She carries a complement of 450 men and is fitted up as a flagship, although on this voyage she is carrying only her regular captain. She is heavily armored and has six five-inch guns, three four-inch guns, four three-pounders, two two-pounder pom-pom guns, two machine guns and eight Lewis guns as well as twelve torpedo tubes (twenty-one inches) in four triple deck mountings.

Vancouver Shipping

Vancouver, June 16.—The freighter Gothic Star has sailed from New Westminster, direct for San Francisco, to load full with orangs. She loaded 2,000 tons of metal on the river.

Ss. Schwaben sailed yesterday for Europe via Seattle.

Ten head of milch cows, replacements for the Culty herd at Shanghai, will sail late this week on board Ss. Diana Dollar, of the American Mail Line. The ship, under command of Capt. M. C. Didliksen, arrived Sunday, and is at Barnet to-day to load 800,000 feet of lumber.

Effective with the sailing from here of Ss. Este in August, the joint service of the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American Lines will give weekly sailings. This increase in the service was announced to-day by F. J. Pickett of Dingwall, Cotts and Company, who, jointly with Dodwell and Company, is agent for the united line. The present service is a ten-day one. On and after August 13, when the Este will inaugurate the faster connection, there will be a sailing each Saturday, the increase having been made possible by the addition of the steamers Witram, Witell and Justin of the North German Lloyd, and the Leuna and Strassfurt of the Hamburg-American. All the vessels have refrigeration space. They sail for Hamburg, Bremen, Antwerp and for Scandinavian, Mediterranean, Levant, South and West Africa port, with transshipment at Hamburg or Bremen.

Ss. Kingsley, of the Kingsley Navigation Company, is at Kingsley dock, loading for California ports. It is understood this ship will replace Ss. Rochelle, which will be temporarily laid up. The Kingsley is a considerably larger vessel than the Rochelle.

C.N.R. SERVICES SEVERELY CUT

Ottawa, June 16.—In 1930 the Canadian National Railways discontinued fifty-two trains, eighteen were operated on reduced frequency and forty-seven were subjected to esasonal reductions, according to a return tabled in the Commons yesterday afternoon.

Since January 1, 1931, a reduction of sixty-two train services has been effected; seventy-nine have been put on reduced frequency and seventy-three subjected to seasonal reduction. Up to the month of April the average number of employees had been cut by 4,840 from the previous year.

JAPAN TO TAKE COLLEGE GROUP TO THE ORIENT

University of Oregon Party Will Be Here Aboard Liner on Saturday Afternoon

More than 100 professors and undergraduates of the University of Oregon will pass through Victoria on Saturday afternoon aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, bound for Honolulu and the Orient on their annual educational tour. They will swell the list aboard the liner to nearly 600, of whom 200 will be in the first class. The Japan will spend about two hours at this port in the late afternoon. Capt. Samuel Robinson will be in command.

Among the passengers will be Mrs. J. B. Erdman and two daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Waterhouse, Miss Jean McMillan, Miss Catherine Warren of Honolulu, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Pietsch of Hawaii, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Sloggett of the Island of Kauai, Prof. and Mrs. W. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. C. Ewert of Buffalo, Mrs. H. W. Elser and Mrs. W. Campbell of Boston, J. Glen Babb, manager of the Associated Press in the Orient; R. R. Liddell, superintendent engineer Canadian Pacific SS. Lad.; Kuyosji Fukiu, secretary for the Japanese legation at Ottawa; George T. Armitage, secretary of Hawaiian Tourist Bureau; C. R. Frazier, chairman of the bureau; E. F. Burke of Spokane, Mrs. J. L. Robinson and daughter of Portland, Ore.; a party of ten Jesuit missionaries for Manila; Mrs. H. F. Ostrander of Honolulu, Mrs. DeL. Calahan, Miss E. Hanson, Miss R. Laubscher of Chehalis, Wash.; Miss Isadore Engelof Tacoma, H. E. Babbidge of San Francisco, Miss Jean Little of Portland.

Mrs. T. D. Stimson of Seattle, widow of a well-known Seattle millionaire, who was killed in an aeroplane crash in Washington a few weeks ago, will also be a passenger with her daughter and two sons.

Prince Rupert Fishing Boats Being Tied Up

Prince Rupert, June 16.—Halibut fishing boat owners decided yesterday that as the boats came in from the banks they will be tied up and not allowed to return for more fish. This action was taken in view of the prevailing low prices for halibut, it was announced, owners claiming that present returns scarcely justify operations. There are about thirty boats already tied up here with approximately thirty-five still out.

Alaskan fishermen are agreeable to a proposal that fishing cease for ten-day periods between trips in an endeavor to bring about improved values, but Seattle boats are opposed to such a move, it was indicated at to-night's meeting.

TAFT DOCKS AFTER FINE OCEAN TRIP

Picturesque Steerage Passengers and Business People Fill Liner's Cabins

After one of her finest trips across the North Pacific in recent years, the American Mail liner President Taft docked at Rithet piers this morning at 8 o'clock from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan. Capt. K. A. Ahlin, master of the ship, reported fine weather all the way across, until this morning, when the liner ran into driving rain coming up the Straits.

All the time the ship was at the local docks rain poured down, keeping most of the passengers aboard, although a few of them braved the elements for sightseeing drives around Victoria.

The President Taft brought in thirty cabin and 180 steerage passengers this voyage, as well as a good general cargo and the usual mail consignment. Five cabin passengers disembarked from the ship here, and will proceed during the next few days to Vancouver. A large party of steerage passengers also left the liner here, including seven Japanese, seven Hindus and twenty Chinese en route to San Francisco, where they will join the new Dollar liner President Hoover, which is shortly to make her maiden transpacific voyage.

TRANS-SHIPPED HERE

For Victoria the Taft had 250 tons of general cargo, including a valuable parcel of raw silk. This freight will be loaded aboard the liner H. F. Alexander this evening for San Francisco, where it will be placed aboard the President Pierce for the voyage through New York by way of the Panama Canal. For Seattle there were about 1,980 tons of general and 825 bags of mail. For Canadian distribution 125 bags of mail were left here and shipped this afternoon to Vancouver. Percy Barnes took eighteen bags in his seaplane to Seattle when he left at 9.15 o'clock.

Among the cabin passengers aboard to-day were Miss Elizabeth Auchincloss, English secretary of the Chinese national movement for the education of the masses, en route on vacation to her home in Rye, New York; Dr. D. J. Collins prominent Shanghai dentist, returning with Mrs. Collins and their small daughter for a holiday in the United States; Paul de Gaston, California photographic artist and etcher returning from a year's study in China; L. J. Herskovitz, resident fur buyer for the firm of Carlowitz and Company of New York returning from a business visit to the Orient; J. J. Merrill, chief engineer for the Corn Products Refining Company of Yokohama, returning from a combined business and pleasure tour of the Far East with Mrs. Merrill; George J. Muni, vice-president of the Manila Trading Company, returning to his New York office after two years in Manila; Hugo Riedl, sals representative of the Neuss-Hesslein Company of New York en route to his eastern headquarters after a business trip to the Orient; Dr. F. M. Rohow, a surgeon with the United States fleet en route to Seattle after duty in Manila and J. A. Thompson, executive of the General Milk Company, also bound for Seattle after a business visit to the Orient.

ALASKA SALMON FISHING OPENS

Juneau, Alaska, June 16.—Commercial salmon fishing opened yesterday in two districts of southeast Alaska with prospects of the smallest run in a decade. Only fifteen plants are expected to start the first of the week.

Basing his forecast on records of the cycle of years, Capt. M. J. O'Connor, assistant agent of the fisheries bureau, said a good run of pinks should be found, but that the run of red salmon would be only fair. He made no prediction about chums or cohoes.

Commodore Lindsay In Aileen Captures Motor Boat Honors

Commodore F. A. Lindsay in the Aileen captured the Lane Cup race for motor-driven craft of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club on Saturday afternoon, when he reached the finishing point at Cowichan Bay in a special time race. The event also was the second in the series of races for the Burchell Cup.

Five crafts competed, finishing as follows: Aileen, Commodore F. A. Lindsay; Timiset, R. P. Castle; Vouloir, Dr Mercer; Salton, Colonel Roome, and Avon, R. F. Thornton.

Commodore Lindsay reached the mark just two minutes and two seconds after the scheduled time.

Sailing races at Cowichan Bay were cancelled, the skippers of the local boats fearing there would be no wind

SHIP STRIKE NOW REMOTE

Federal Minister of Labor in Vancouver This Morning Is Discussing Situation

Vancouver, June 16.—Conferences looking to early termination of the towboat strike were started here this morning when Hon. Gideon Robertson, federal Minister of Labor, met officials of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, which embraces skippers and mates now on strike, and officials of the Association of Marine Engineers, who early in the dispute struck in sympathy with guild members.

The meeting to-day is not a joint conference, members of the Towboat Owners' Association not being present.

In the meantime, possibility of a complete tie-up of British Columbia shipping as the result of a widespread sympathetic strike appears more remote.

Following the statement of Capt. McMurray of the C.P.R. coast steamship services last week, that skippers and mates of his company's boats had signed an agreement to continue at work, announcement was made to-day by R. L. Holloway, manager of Frank Waterhouse & Company Limited, which said that:

"No fear of a strike of masters and mates affecting coastwise shipping is entertained as far as this company is concerned, as all of the masters, mates and engineers have renewed or signed agreements direct with the company for another year."

TWO BIG PARTIES AT BANFF HOTEL

Banff Springs Alta., June 16.—Returning from the recent Travelers' Protective Association convention held in San Francisco on June 8 approximately seventy-five delegates, under the leadership of W. S. Murchison of Raleigh, N.C., are spending to-day at the Banff Springs Hotel in the Canadian Rockies. Delegates here are from North and South Carolina, Maryland, Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

More than 200 delegates to the forty-first annual convention of the Canadian Electrical Association which opened in the ball room of the Banff Springs Hotel this morning arrived here yesterday.

MONOWAI TO ARRIVE HERE EARLY THURSDAY MORNING

Making fast time on her first voyage here, the liner Monowai, operating for the Canadian Australasian Line, will arrive at the William Head quarantine station Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, the captain of the liner this morning advised. After passing medical inspection at the station the liner will come into Victoria and will berth at Rithet piers before proceeding to Vancouver. She will dock here about 10 o'clock.

The Monowai is coming here this voyage in place of the motorship Aorangi which is now undergoing extensive overhaul in Sydney. The Aorangi and the Niagara are drydocked in Sydney nearly every voyage, but every two years are put in for two months and thoroughly gone over from engine-room to bridge. The interor accommodation is also fixed up and when the Aorangi returns here in August she will look almost like a new vessel. The Niagara was drydocked last year.

Although she is a fast ship, the Monowai will not make a faster voyage than either the Aorangi or the Niagara. The Aorangi has beaten this time by several hours and the Niagara has made the voyage just as quickly.

It is expected the Monowai will bring in a large list of passengers from Sydney, Auckland, Suva and Honolulu. She left the latter port last Friday and is not scheduled to arrive here until Friday morning of this week. She will remain in Vancouver until the following Wednesday morning when she will sail for Victoria en route to the South Seas again. The Monowai is regularly in service between Australia, New Zealand and California ports, flying the house flag of the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, of which the Canadian Australasian Line is a subsidiary.

Around the Docks

Two vessels of the Pacific Steamship Company's fleet are alongside the Rithet piers to-day, one bound for Alaska ports and the other for California. The Dorothy Alexander sailed from Seattle at 10 o'clock this morning and is due here at 3 o'clock. At 6 o'clock she is scheduled to sail from Seattle at 5 o'clock this afternoon and will arrive here at 9 o'clock this evening. At 11 o'clock she will sail for San Francisco and Los Angeles. She will have a capacity list of passengers.

The Princess Ena returned over the week-end from Vancouver, after several freight trips to Alaska ports. She went around to Thetis Cove, Esquimalt Harbor, this morning, to tie up until her service is again needed. The Nootka is also tied up in the cove. The fish trade along the West Coast of Vancouver Island, which usually keeps the Princess Ena and the Nootka busy during the summer months, is rather slack this year, and it is not known if either ship will operate.

The ferry steamer Indianapolis which has been here several times already this year, will come over to Victoria from Seattle on Thursday of this week with a special excursion party, E. E. Blackwood was advised this morning. She will arrive at 1.30 o'clock and will leave on the return trip at 6 o'clock. Thursday also will see 450 Hotel Greeters of America here aboard the specially chartered steamer Princess Alice from Vancouver.

There are 450 passengers aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia, which sailed from Yokohama on Saturday for Victoria and Vancouver. It was learned here this morning. The liner will arrive here next Monday morning. Several of the passengers aboard will leave the liner here and proceed from this port to Seattle en route to various destinations in the United States.

The American Mail liner President Taft, which arrived here this morning from the Orient, will be here again on Saturday afternoon, June 27, on her outbound return voyage to ports in Japan, China and the Philippine Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, June 16.—Operators of steamers plying in the intercoastal service met here yesterday to discuss the Hawaiian pineapple transportation problem.

The pineapple service became snarled several weeks ago when the Isthmian Line contracted for direct delivery of the Dole pack of 5,000,000 cases annually from the islands to north Atlantic and gulf ports.

The meeting failed to produce any definite result to meet the Isthmian's reduced rates, or to make a proportionate cut with that of the Matson Line of from $4.80 to $4.25 per ton between Honolulu and San Francisco.

The liner Virginia arrived here yesterday from New York with reports that the Panama Pacific Line is negotiating with the Ward Line for acquisition of the new and fast liners Oriente and Morro Castle.

The liners presumably would be fitted into the intercoastal trade along with the California, Pennsylvania and Virginia. Five vessels in the coast-to-coast service would enable the Panama Pacific to maintain a weekly schedule.

CANNERS PROTEST AGAINST LIFTING SOCKEYE EMBARGO

To Permit Sale to U.S. Would Endanger Canadian Canneries, They Say

B.C. Government Asked to Back Objections to Dominion Government

Objections by representatives of canning interests in British Columbia through the Canadian Manufacturers' Association against any proposal to lift the embargo against the export of sockeye salmon to the United States were lodged with Hon. S. L. Lowe, B.C. Commissioner of Fisheries, yesterday.

The matter comes under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government but the Provincial Government was asked to give force to the representations of Ottawa of the British Columbia canners. The matter is under advisement, Mr. Howe said, and will be considered by the cabinet before representations are made to Ottawa.

Canners in protesting against the lifting of the embargo, which it is said some of the fishermen desire removed so they will be able to sell their sockeye catches to United States firms claim that without the sockeye salmon they would be unable to remain in business. The sockeye, they argue, is the mainstay of the canning industry while pinks, chums and cohoes help carry the overhead. If free export of sockeye to the United States were permitted, U.S. firms would move their plants closer to the border and virtually all the canning would be done on the U.S. side. Many workers in the industry beside fishermen are affected, canners point out. Last year 12,000 men were engaged in landing fish, most of them in salmon fishing. While they might reap some advantage if permitted to sell sockeye to the United States there were 7,419 workers engaged in the canning industry who would suffer.

CREW RESCUED AS SHIP BURNS

Men Quit Lumber Carrier Near Michigan; Picked Up By Coast Guard

Au Sable, Mich., June 16—The crew of the Langell Boys was picked up by a coastguard cutter at about 11.30 o'clock Saturday night, after they had escaped in lifeboats from the four-year-old lumber carrier, which caught fire about six miles south of here an hour and a half previous. In a comparatively short time the ship became a mass of flames.

The Langell Boys carried a crew of twelve men and a passenger, Arthur H. Hampstead, president of the Eddie Parker Lumber Company of Saginaw, Mich. Passenger and crew took to boats before coastguardsmen reached the burning vessel.

Chinese Party To Sail For Homeland

Vancouver, June 16.—A large party of Chinese, accompanied by their wives and families, arrived in Vancouver yesterday over the Canadian National Railways. Members of this party came from the British West Indies and South America and are en route to China. They sail from Vancouver this afternoon on Ss. Tyndareus of the Blue Funnel Line.

SEATTLE SHIPPING

Seattle, June 16. — Agents for the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyd Line here announced yesterday fifteen ships will operate in their new joint service between the Pacific Coast and Europe. The new service will provide for sailings every seven days instead of every ten days from Seattle, Vancouver, B.C., Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco to Europe.

The Hamburgh-American ships in the service will be the Portland, Oakland, San Francisco, Seattle, Tacoma, Vancouver, Los Angeles and Leuna. And the North German Lloyd vessels the Este, Donau, Schwaben, Justin, Witram, Witell and Strassfurt.

The Este, sailing from Hamburg July 1, will inaugurate the service. On her return voyage the Este will leave Vancouver August 13, Seattle August 19, Portland August 24, San Francisco August 29 and Los Angeles August 31. All the vessels have refrigerator space for fresh fruit and almost all of them carry passengers.

POSED AS BOY

"I'm through with being a boy—know anybody who's got a job for a girl?" says Frances Jenkins, twenty-two, above, who shipped as a messboy aboard the Ss. Mundelta at New York and continued the deception during a voyage to New Orleans, via Havana. An approaching physical examination of the crew by the ship's doctor in preparation for a trip to South America caused Frances to disclose her sex.

The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the tables, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.
